Lineage.

The surname of this family was anciently written, in Latin, de Monte Acuto, and in English, Montacute; but the original was, nevertheless, Montagu, from the town of that name in Normandy. The first of the Montagus in England was

DROGO DE MONTRACUTO, a warrior in the immediate train of Robert, Earl of Moreton, at the Conquest. From this personage descended, in nearly five centuries afterwards,

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., a distinguished Lawyer, who was appointed Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench in 1539, which office he resigned in 1545, and was constituted, in the same year, Lord-Chief-Justice of the Common-Pleas; "a descent," says Fuller, "in honor, but an ascent in profit." Sir Edward was also of the Privy-Council, and in such high favor and esteem with his sovereign, HENRY VIII.,* that the King appointed him one of those sixteen executors of his last will and testament, who should be Regents of the kingdom, and governors to his son, EDWARD VI. He m. thrice; and the eldest son of his third marriage (the sons of his first marriage all d. in infancy).

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Harington, of Exton, in Rutlandshire, by whom he had six sons. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage, Montagu, Dukes of Montagu.) The third son,

SIR HENRY MONTAGU, was one of the representatives of the city of London in the Parliament called by JAMES I. upon his accession (19 March, 1604), and acquired great distinction as a Parliamentary orator. In 1616, he was appointed Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench; in 1620, constituted Lord-Treasurer of England; and elevated, 19 Dec. in the same year, to the Peerage, as Baron Montagu, of Kimbolton, and Viscount Mandeville. Upon the accession of CHARLES I., his Lordship was advanced (5 Feb., 1626) to an Earldom, as Earl of Manchester, and subsequently appointed Lord-Privy-Seal. He m. 1st, Catherine, second dau. of Sir William Spencer, of Yarn-ton, in Oxfordshire, third son of Sir John Spencer, of Althorp, and had issue,

EDWARD, his successor.

Walter, who, having embraced the Catholic religion, retired into a monastery in France; and attracting the notice of the QUEEN MOTHER, Mary de Medicis, was received into the special favor of that Princess, and eventually appointed by her Abbot of St. Martin's Abbey, near Pontoise, in the diocese of Rhoan.

* Sir Edward had been Speaker at one time of the House, and the following anecdote is related of him when filling the Chair. A Bill of Subsidies not passing, Mr. Speaker was sent for by the King, and thus addressed while on his knees in the Royal presence. "Ho! will they not let my Bill pass?" and laying his hand on the head of Montague, HENRY continued, "Get my Bill to pass by such a time to-morrow, or else by such a time this head of your's shall be off." The speech was brief and conclusive; for we are told that Sir Edward "wrought so effectually, that before the time prescribed, the Bill passed with the approbation of the House, and the Sovereign's satisfaction."

He was also of her Cabinet Council, and the chief instrument of introducing Cardinal Mazarine to her Majesty. In 1643, he was apprehended at Rochester coming to England with letters of importance, and he remained in confinement here until 1647, when he was banished the kingdom by a vote of Parliament. He d. in 1670, and was buried in the Church belonging to the Hospital of Incurables, at Paris.

This nobleman was an active and successful General of the Parliamentary Army during the Civil Wars, and particularly distinguished by his celebrated victory over Prince Rupert at Marston Moor, in which engagement CROMWELL acted as his Lieut.-Gen. His Lordship, however, refused to sanction the murder of the King, and retired from Parliament until 1660, when he assisted at the meeting of Peers, who voted for the restoration of CHARLES II.; and was deputed by the Lords, as their Speaker, to congratulate the King upon his return to his capital; a duty, which the Earl eloquently fulfilled at Whitehall, 29 May, 1660, concluding his address in these words:

"Great King! give me leave to speak the confidence, as well as the desires of the Peers of England: be you the powerful defender of the true protestant faith; the just asserter and maintainer of the laws and liberties of your subjects: so shall judgment run down like a river, and justice like a mighty stream; and God, the God of your mercy, who hath so miraculously preserved you, will establish your throne in righteousness and in peace."

Upon the decease of his nephew, Sir Andrew Murray, of Balvaird, without issue,

SIR DAVID MURRAY, of Gospertie (the 2nd son) was served heir of the family. This gentleman, who was cup-bearer to JAMES VI., becoming a great favorite with that monarch (having been instrumental in preserving his life from the attempt of the Earl of Gourie, and his brother Mr. Ruthven, in the town of Perth, 8 Aug., 1600), accompanied the King to England, and was created Lord Scone, 7 April, 1605, having previously received a grant of the whole Abbey of Scone, of which the Earl of Gourie had been commendator. His lordship was advanced to the Viscounty of Stormont, 16 Aug., 1621; and, having no issue, he obtained a reversionary clause in the patent, conferring the honors upon Sir Mungo Murray, of Drumcairn, and several of his kinsmen. His lordship d. 27 Aug., 1631, and was buried at Scone, where a magnificent monument was erected to his memory. His honors devolved according to the extended limitation upon

SIR MUNGO MURRAY, of Drumcairn, as 2nd Viscount. This nobleman m. Anne, elder dau. of Sir Andrew Murray,

WILLIAM, b. at Scone, 2 March, 1705, who, being called to the English Bar in 1730, attained, with unprecedented rapidity, the highest reputation and honor of that arduous profession. In 1733, he was associated with the Attorney-General, Talbot, and the Solicitor-General York, in an appeal case in the House of Lords; and was, soon afterwards, engaged in so many similar causes, that his friend, Pope, addressed to him his Imitation of the Sixth Epistle of the First Book of Horace, congratulatory of the circumstance. In 1742, Mr. Murray was appointed Solicitor-General; in 1754, Attorney-General; and in two years subsequently, 8 Nov., 1756, he was raised to the Judgment-seat as Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of King's-Bench, when (on the same day) he was elevated to the Peerage as Baron Mansfield, of Mansfield, in the Co. of Nottingham. His Lordship was created 19 Oct., 1776, EARL OF MANSFIELD, with remainder of the dignity of Countess of Mansfield to Louisa, Viscountess Stormont, wife of his nephew, David, Viscount Stormont, under the impression, at that period, that no English Peerage could be limited to a Scottish Peer, even in remainder: when the converse was, however, established in law, his Lordship obtained another patent, dated 1 Aug., 1792, creating him EARL OF MANSFIELD, of Caen Wood, Co. Middlesex, with remainder to his nephew, Viscount Stormont. His Lordship m. in 1736, Elizabeth, dau. of Daniel, Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham; but dying s. p. 20 March, 1793, in the 89th year of his age, the original Barony of Mansfield expired, while the two Earldoms devolved according to the specific limitation.* (For the first, Mansfield and Nottingham, see Countess of Mansfield).

* In 1751, a charge was made against Mr. Murray for being a Jacobite and drinking the Pretender's health at Mr. Vernon's, to which he gave a denial upon oath, and the Lords of the Council were unanimous in reporting to the King that the charge was groundless. Mr. Vernon was a Mercer on Ludgate Hill, who having lost his only son, Mr. Murray's friend and companion at Westminster school, devised to that gentleman estates in the Cos. of Chester and Derby.

MARJORIBANKS.

MARJORIBANKS, SIR WILLIAM, of Lees, Co. Berwick; b. in 1830; s. his father as 3rd Bart., 22 Sept., 1834.

Lineage.

The original surname of this family was Johnston, and at what period the alteration took place cannot now be determined; it continues, however, to bear the Johnston arms. The assumed surname, which is local, is said to have been thus derived:—when Walter, High-Steward of Scotland, and ancestor of the royal House of Stuart, espoused Marjorie, only dau. of Robert Bruce, and eventually heir to his crown, the Barony of Ratho was granted by the King, as a marriage portion, to his dau., by charter, which is still extant; and those lands being subsequently denominated "Terre de Matho-Marjoriebankis," gave rise to the name of Marjoribanks.

As in the case with many other private families, no records remain of the early history and intermarriages of the House of Marjoribanks; but several of its members are mentioned in the history of Scotland, as representatives in the Scottish Parliament. In 1540, Thomas Marjoribanks, of Matho, sat for Edinburgh, and was appointed one of the Senators of the College of Justice in 1554.

The Duke is a Prince of the Holy Roman Empire.

Lineage.

FAMILY OF CHURCHILL.

The patriarch of the CHURCHILLS, according to the eminent antiquary Dr. James Anderson, (genealogical tables) was

GRITO DE LEON, of a noble family in Normandy, who lived in the year 1055, and whose 2nd son,

WANDRIL DE LEON, was Lord of Courcil. This Wandril m. Isabella de Tuys, and his eldest son,

ROGER DE COURCIL, coming into England with the CONQUEROR, was rewarded for his services, as appears by Domesday-Book, with divers grants of lands in the Counties of Somerset, Dorset, and Devon. The grandson of this Roger,

SIR BARTHOLOMEW DE CHURCHIL, a great warrior, and celebrated in old ballads, held the castle of Bristol for King STEPHEN, and died fighting in his cause. From Sir Bartholomew we pass to

M A R

CHARLES CHURCHILL, who was engaged by Thomas Courtenay, Earl of Devon, in the cause of EDWARD IV., and adhering to that Monarch, when the Earl deserted his party, obtained in marriage, by the King's interest, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir William Widville, a lady nearly allied to the Queen. The descendant of this marriage,

JASPER CHURCHILL, of Bradford, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Chaplet, Esq. of Harrington, in Dorsetshire, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, Esq. of Minterne, in Devonshire, an eminent Lawyer, who m. Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Winstan, of Standon, in Lincolnshire, and by that alliance, as well as his practice at the Bar, considerably augmented his estate. He was father of

SIR WINSTAN CHURCHILL, b. in 1620, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Drake, Bart. of Ashe, in Devonshire, and had, with other issue,

i. John, of whom presently.

ii. George, b. in 1635, a Naval Officer of eminence in the reign of King WILLIAM, and one of the Council in Naval affairs to the LORD-HIGH-ADMIRAL, Prince GEORGE of Denmark, temp. Queen ANNE. He d. nam. in 1710, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

iii. Charles, a Military Officer, who served with distinction at the battle of Steinkirk and Landen, and was made Lieut-Gen. by King WILLIAM. He was subsequently Governor of the Tower, and participated in the glory of Blenheim. He d. s. p. in 1714.

iv. Arabella, who was mistress to JAMES II. when Duke of York, and had issue by the King,

1. James Fitz-James, the celebrated Duke of Berwick (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage).	prior, created by his father, DUKE OF ALBEMARLE.
2 Henry Fitz-James, commonly called the grand	3 Henrietta, m. to Henry, Lord Waldegrave.
	4 A dau., a nun.

Arabella Churchill married afterwards Col. Charles Godfrey, Master of the Jewel Office, and d. in 1714, leaving by him two daughters,

1 Charlotte - Godfrey, m. to Hugh Boscawen, Viscount Falmouth.	2 Elizabeth-Godfrey, m. to Edmund Dunch, Esq. of Wittenham, in Berkshire.

The eldest surviving son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, who became the most celebrated Captain of the period in which he lived, and is yet esteemed the first Gen. in the Military Annals of England, was b. 24 May, 1650, and in his youth was page of honor to James, Duke of York, through whose favor he obtained an Ensigny in the Guards. In 1671, he served at Tangier against the Moors; and being in the Army sent next year under the Duke of Monmouth, to the assistance of LEWIS XIV., against the Dutch, signalized himself at the siege of Maestricht. In 1679, he attended the Duke of York into Flanders, and the following year into Scotland. He was also with the Duke in 1682, when the Gloucester frigate, in her voyage to Scotland, struck on the Lemon and Oar sand, and was one of those persons for whose preservation his Royal Highness was particularly solicitous. In the Dec. following, by the influence of the Duke, he was dignified with the title of LORD CHURCHILL, of Eye-mouth, Co. Berwick, in the Peerage of Scotland; and the next year, being then a General Officer, he got the command of the 1st Regt. of Dragoons, at that time newly raised. The Duke of York ascending the throne, as JAMES II. Lord Churchill was accredited Ambassador to the Court of France, and he was created a Peer of England, 14 May, 1685, as BARON CHURCHILL, of Sandridge, Co. Hertford. Notwithstanding, however, these sterling marks of royal favor, Lord Churchill, who had assisted in defeating the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth, at Sedgemore, was amongst the first to attach himself to the fortunes of the PRINCE OF ORANGE, in 1685, and to vote in the convention Parliament for the vacancy of the throne, and for filling it with the PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF ORANGE. For these good services he was sworn of the Privy-Council to the new Sovereign, and created, 9 April, 1689, EARL

OF MARLBOROUGH. In which year he was sent to command the English forces in the Netherlands, under Prince Waldeck, General of the Dutch Troops. He subsequently fell under the displeasure of KING WILLIAM, and was confined for a short time in the Tower. Upon the accession of Queen ANNE, her Majesty appointed the Earl of Marlborough Capt.-Gen. of all her forces in England, and of those employed in conjunction with her allies, and he was created, 14 Dec., 1702, Marquess of Blandford and Duke of Marlborough. Within two years afterwards, 2 Aug., 1704, his Grace won the great victory of BLenheim, which has immortalized his name, and for which he obtained a grant from the Crown, at the desire of Parliament, to himself and his heirs, of the Royal Manor of Woodstock and hundred of Wootton, in Oxfordshire. Here a splendid palace, bearing the proud name of BLenheim, was erected at the national expense, and a monumental pillar raised to hand down to posterity the achievements of the great and victorious soldier. His Grace espoused Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Richard Jennings, Esq. of Sandridge, Co. Hertford, by whom he had issue,

John who d. in infancy of the small-pox, 20 Feb., 1702-3.

HENRIETTA, m. to Francis, Earl of Godolphin, and succeeded, under a special Act of Parliament, as Duchess of Marlborough. Her Grace had an only son, WILLIAM, Marquess of Blundford, who d. s. p. in 1731.

The Duchess d. 24 Oct., 1733.

Anne, m. to Charles Spencer, Earl of Sunderland, (see family of Spencer), and had issue, Charles, Earl of Sunderland, who s. his aunt, Henrietta, in the DUKEDOM OF MARLBOROUGH.

Her Ladyship d. 15 April, 1716.

Elizabeth, m. to Scroop, 1st Duke of Bridgewater, and d. 22nd March, 1713-14, without surviving issue.

Mary, m. to John, Duke of Montague.

The Duke having no prospect of heirs male, after the death of his only son, and being desirous of having his honors and dignities, together with the manor of Woodstock and house of Blenheim, settled on his posterity, an act for that purpose obtained the royal assent 21 Dec., 1706; and, on Jan., 28th ensuing, the like sanction was given to another act, for settling on him and his posterity a pension of £5000 per annum. The Emperor LEOPOLD, in consideration of the eminent services performed by the Duke of Marlborough, created him a Prince of the empire in 1704; and his Majesty's son and successor, the Emperor JOSEPH, bestowed upon his Grace the principality of Mindelheim, in Swabia. The Duke d. 16 June, 1722, having survived some years his mental faculties, and was s. under the Act of Parliament, by his daughter,

HENRIETTA, as Duchess of Marlborough, at whose decease, 24 Oct., 1733, the honors and estates of this GREAT branch of the CHURCHILLS devolved upon her nephew,

CHARLES SPENCER, 5th Earl of Sunderland, as Duke of Marlborough, &c.

FAMILY OF SPENCER.

SIR ROBERT SPENCER, Knt. of Wormleighton, Co. Northumberland, descended from Geoffry Le Despencer, younger brother of Hugh, Justiciary of England (from whom the Barons Le Despencer derive), was elevated to the Peerage, 21 July, 1603, by the title of Baron Spencer, of Wormleighton. This nobleman appears to have been a very spirited member of parliament, as his reply to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel, in a debate upon the royal prerogative, in 1621, evinces:—"My Lord," said Howard, "when these things were doing, your ancestors were keeping sheep." "When my ancestors were keeping sheep," replied Spencer, "your Lordship's ancestors were plotting treason." This excited such irritation at the moment, that Arundel, as the aggressor, was committed to the Tower; but soon after, acknowledging his fault, was discharged. His Lordship d. 25 Oct., 1627, and was s. by his son, MARR AND KELLIE, EARL OF (John-Francis-Miller Erskine), and Baron Erskine, of Alroa, in the Peerage of Scotland, and Baron of Dorleton; b. 28 Dec., 1795; s. to the dignity, as 15th Earl, upon the demise of his father, 20 Sept., 1828; m.

24 April, 1827, Philadelphia, eldest dau. of Charles-Granville Stuart-Menteith, Esq.

Lineage.

Of the title of Marr, Lord Hailes says, "This is one of the Earldoms whose origin is lost in its antiquity. It existed before our records, and before the era of genuine history."

MARTACUS, Earl of Marr, is witness to a charter of donation by Malcolm Canmore, to the Culdees of Lochleven, of the manor of Kilgad-Earnoch, in 1065. From this nobleman we pass to his descendant, GRATNEY, 11th Earl of Marr, who succeeded his father in 1394, and d. before 1300. He m. Lady Christian Bruce, dau. of Robert, Earl of Carrick, and sister of ROBERT I., and by her (who m. 2ndly, Sir Christopher Seton, of Seton); and, 3rdly, Sir Andrew Moray, of Bothwell) had issue,

DONALD, his successor.

Elyne, who m. Sir John Mententh, and had a daughter,

CHRISTIAN, m. to Sir Edward Keith, and had a daughter, JANET KEITH, m. to Sir Thomas Erskine, and was mother of Sir ROBERT ERSKINE, who claimed the EARLDOM OF MARR in 1435.

The Earl was s. by his son,

DONALD, 12th Earl of Marr. This nobleman, upon the death of Randolph, Earl of Moray, Regent of Scotland, was unanimously appointed to fill his place by the Parliament assembled at Perth, 2 Aug., 1302. His Lordship immediately assumed the command of the Scottish Army; which by his ignorance of military discipline, was totally defeated, by an inferior force under Edward Balliol, 13th of the same month, and the Earl of Marr paid for his inexperience with his life, being smothered in the rout. He had m. Isabel, only dau. of Sir Alexander Stewart, of Bonhill, and had a daughter, MARGARET, of whom presently, with an only son, his successor.

THOMAS, 13th Earl of Marr, a person of much political importance in the reign of DAVID II. His Lordship was Great Chamberlain of Scotland in 1358, Ambassador to England in 1362, and one of the guarantors of a truce with the English in 1369. The Earl obtained from King DAVID, a charter of confirmation of the Lordship of Garioch. He d. s. p. in 1377, and with him terminated the direct male line of the old Earls of Marr. His Lordship was s. by his sister,

MARGARET, Countess of Marr, who m. 1st, William, Earl of Douglas, (who in her right became 14th Earl of Marr), and was designed Earl of Douglas and Marr), and had issue,

John, Earl of Douglas and Marr, killed at Otterburn, in 1388, and d. s. p.

Isabel.

Her Ladyship being divorced from Lord Douglas, m. 2ndly, Sir John Swinton, of Swinton, who fell at Homildon, in 1402. Her Ladyship d. in 1395, and was s. by her son, mentioned above, who was s. in the Earldom of Marr, by his only sister,

ISABEL, Countess of Marr. Her Ladyship m. 1st, Sir Malcolm Drummond, of Drummond, who d. without issue; and, 2ndly, Alexander Stewart, natural son of Alexander, Earl of Buchan, 4th son of ROBERT II. The first appearance of this person in life was at the head of a formidable band of robbers, in the highlands of Scotland, when storming the Countess of Marr's Castle of Kildrummie, he obtained her Ladyship in marriage, either by violence or persuasion. The Countess subsequently made a free grant of all her honors and inheritance to her said husband, and dying s. p. 1419, he,

ALEXANDER STEWART, designed, in right of the deceased Countess, Earl of Marr and Lord of Garioch, resigned those honors to the Crown, when they were re-granted to him 20 May, 1426, in remainder to his natural son, Sir Thomas Stewart, to revert, in case of failure of male issue of the latter, to the Crown. His Lordship was Ambassador to England in 1406, and again in 1407, when he engaged in a tournament with the Earl of Kent. The following year he went to France and Flanders, with a noble company, and eminently distinguished himself in the service of the Duke of Burgundy, who employed him to assist in quelling a rebellion of the people of Leige, against their Bishop, John of Bavaria. The Earl commanded the royal army at the battle of Harlaw, against the Lord of the Isles in 1411, and was appointed Ambassador-Extraordinary to England in 1416, and soon afterwards Warden of the Marches. He d. in 1433, and his natural son, mentioned above, having predeceased him, the Earldom of Marr, according to the charter, reverted to the Crown; when it was claimed, in 1438, by Sir Robert Erskine, of Erskine, as lineal descendant of Lady Elyne Marr, (refer to Gratney, 11th Earl), but though the descent was indisputably established, the Earldom was not conferred upon the Erskines until it had been enjoyed by four Earls of different families, the last of whom was the celebrated ROBERT MORAY, a period of 130 years having elapsed, when at last it was restored, in 1565, by QUEEN MARY, to

JOHN, 5th Lord Erskine, who should of right be 6th Earl of Marr, of the Erskine race. This nobleman was appointed by charter, in 1508, heritable Sheriff of the Co. Stirling, and Keeper of Stirling Castle, and chosen Regent of Scotland, by Parliament in 1571, during the minority of JAMES VI. His Lordship m. Annabella, dau. of Sir William Murray, of Tullibardine, ancestor of the Dukes of Atholl, and, dying in 1572, was s. by his only son,

JOHN, 7th Earl. This nobleman, who took a leading part in Scotch affairs, in the reign of JAMES VI., accompanied that monarch into England, and was sworn of the Privy-Council, and invested with the Garter, 27 July, 1603. His Lordship had a charter, on his own resignation, of the Earldom of Marr, Lordships of Strathdon, Strathdee, Garioch, Alloa, &c., the heritable offices of Capt. of the Castle of Stirling, and Sheriff of the shire thereof, &c., to him and his heirs, and erecting the whole into the EARLDOM OF MARR, 3 Feb., 1620. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and had an only son,

JOHN, his successor.

The Earl espoused, 2ndly, Lady Mary Stewart, 2nd dau. of Esme, Duke of Lennox, and had with other issue, JAMES, Earl of Buchan.

Henry, to whom his father assigned the Peerage of Cardross, ancestor of the modern Earls of Buchan.

Alexander, (Sir) a Col. in the Army, who was blown up at Dunglass, with his brother-in-law, the Earl of Haddington, in 1640.

Charles, (Sir) of Alva, ancestor of the EARL OF ROSLYN, (see that dignity.)

His Lordship d. 14 Dec., 1634, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 8th Earl. This nobleman sold to the Crown the heritable Sheriffship of Stirlingshire, and the Bailiary of the water of Forth, for £8000, and he accordingly resigned those offices 4 Nov., 1641. His Lordship m. Lady Christian Hay, 2nd dau. of Francis, 9th Earl of Errol, and, dying in Sept., 1654, was s. by his son,

JOHN, 9th Earl, who m. 1st, Lady Mary Scott, eldest dau. of Walter, 1st Earl of Buchan, but had no issue. His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Lady Mary Mackenzie, eldest dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Seaforth, and, dying in Sept., 1668, was s. by his son,

CHARLES, 10th Earl, who was obliged, in order to satisfy the pecuniary engagements of the last Lord, to dispose of a great part of his landed property, particularly the Barony of Erskine, the original possession of the family. His Lordship m. Mary, dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Panmure, and had (with other issue),

JOHN, his successor.

GEORGE, and taking an active part in the Rebellion of 1715, (having proclaimed that personage, by the title of JAMES VII. of Scotland, and Third of England), followed his Royal Master to the continent, after the battle of Sheriffmuir; and was attainted, by Act of Parliament, in 1718. He d. in 1738; and his only son, Thomas, Lord Erskine, in 1768. From the period of passing the Bill of Attainder, the Earldom remained under its influence, until its reversal, through the gracious and special recommendation of his Majesty GEORGE IV., by Parliament, 17 June, 1824, in favor of

JOHN-FRANCIS ERSKINE, Esq. (revert to children of the 10th Earl). His Lordship was b. in 1741; m. in 1770, to Frances, only dau. of Charles Floyer, Esq., Governor of Madras, by whom he had issue,

FAMILY OF ERSKINE.

Tradition states that a Scotchman, having killed, with his own hand, temp. MALCOLM II., ENRIQUE, a Danish General, at the battle of Murhill, cut off his head, and, with the bloody dagger in his hand, showed it to the king, saying, in Gaelic, Eris Skine, alluding to the head and dagger, whereupon MALCOLM imposed upon him the surname of Erskine, and assigned for his armorial bearing, a hand, holding a dagger, with "Je pense plus" for motto. It is more probable, however, that the name was assumed from the Barony of ERSKINE, on the Clyde, the property of the family for many ages.

HENRICUS DE ERSKINE was proprietor of the Barony of Erskine, in the reign of ALEXANDER II. His grandson,

JOHN ERSKINE, of Erskine, submitted to EDWARD I. of England, in 1206, and left a son,

SIR JOHN ERSKINE, of Erskine, whose grandson,

SIR ROBERT ERSKINE, of Erskine, was appointed GREAT CHAMBERLAIN of Scotland in 1350; and was one of the Commissioners to treat of the release of DAVID II. in 1348, 1351, 1352, and 1354; and at a Parliament held at Perth, 17 Jan., 1356-7, he was nominated, with the Bishops of St. Andrews and Brechin, plenipotentiary to treat with England, not only for the ransom of the King, but likewise for a truce between the two kingdoms. These objects being accomplished, Thomas, son of Sir Robert, was one of the hostages granted for the ransom. In 1358, he was accredited Ambassador to France; and he ratified the alliance with that kingdom at Paris, 29 June, 1359. From DAVID II., Sir Robert obtained extensive grants and immunities; and upon the demise of that monarch, ROBERT II. coming to the throne, he assisted at the new King's Coronation, and did homage at Scone, in March, 1371, his seal being appended to the Act of Settlement of the Crown of Scotland. Sir Robert d. in 1385, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR THOMAS ERSKINE, of Erskine, who m. for his 2nd wife JANET KEITH, only child of Sir Edward Keith, Marischal of Scotland, and great grandau. of Gratney Marr, 11th Earl of Marr, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROBERT ERSKINE, of Erskine, who claimed unsuccessfully the EARLDOM OF MARR, in 1433, but nevertheless assumed the title. He d. in 1453, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS ERSKINE, who was dispossessed of the Earldom of Marr by the assize of Error in 1457, and had a charter to Thomas, LORD ERSKINE, of the lands of Dalnotter, in Lennox, 5 Jan., 1458-9. His Lordship was s. by his son, ALEXANDER, 2nd Lord Erskine, who being in great favor with JAMES IV., was sworn of the Privy-Council to that monarch, and constituted Governor of Dunbarton Castle. He d. in 1510, and was s. by his son,

MARTIN.

MARTIN, SIR ROGER, of Long Melford, Co. Suffolk; b. 22 Feb., 1778; s. to the title, as 5th Bart., upon the demise of his father, 15 Sept., 1815. Sir Roger is senior merchant, and 2nd Judge of the Court of Appeal, at Moorshedabab, on the Bengal establishment.

Lineage.

This very ancient and knightly family, (as Harvy, in his Visitation of Suffolk, terms it) settled at Long Melford, in the reign of RICHARD II., where in 1438, RICHARD MARTIN died, leaving a son,

LAURENCE MARTIN, who purchased lands in 1449, of William, then Abbot of St. Edmunds Bury, and exchanged others. The great-great-grandson of this Laurence,

ROGER MARTIN, was so remarkable for benevolence, that when he advanced in years, and was not able to go far from home, he contrived a whistle at the end of his cane, to collect the poor around him. In the 14th of HENRY VIII., he was appointed one of Commissioners for levying the subsidy granted to that King, having previously been called to the Bar, and chosen a Benchler of Lincoln's Inn. In the reign of MARY, upon being offered the Secretaryship of State, he replied, that, for himself, he was highly satisfied with the sufficiency God had bestowed upon him, and as for his son, he would inherit a competency sufficient, if he proved an honest man, but if he became otherwise, far too much. This excellent person reached nearly his hundredth year, and from him lineally descended,

MAXWELL.

MAXWELL, SIR WILLIAM, of Calderwood, Co. Lanark; b. 7 Jan., 1748; s. to the title, as 6th Bart., upon the decease of his father, 2 Jan., 1789; m. 5 May, 1807, Hannah-Leonora, youngest dau. of the late Robert Pasley, Esq. of Mount Annan, Co. Dumfries, by whom (who d. 1 Oct., 1829) he has no surviving issue.

Lineage.

The family of Maccusville, by corruption Maccuswell, or Maxwell, may be regarded as one of the most ancient and distinguished in North Britain. It is generally believed to have been founded by

MACCUS, son of Unwyn (evidently of Saxon origin), who is a witness, in 1116, to the inquisition of David, Earl of Cumberland (subsequently DAVID I.), into the possessions of the church of Glasgow. The grandson of this Maccus,

HERBERT DE MACCUSVILLE, living temp. MALCOLM IV., was the first who assumed the abbreviated surname of Maxwell. He d. in 1180, and was s. by his son,

JOHN DE MAXWELL, Great-Chamberlain and Sheriff of Roxburgh, in the beginning of the reign of ALEXANDER II., who d. in 1241, and was s. by his son,

EUMERUS DE MAXWELL, Lord of Carlaverock, who, temp. ALEXANDER II., was Justiciar of Galloway. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Roland de Mearnis, with whom he obtained extensive possessions in the West of Scotland, viz. the lands and Baronies of Mearnis, Nether-Pollock, Dryps, and Calderwood. This Eumerus left two sons: Sir Herbert, from whom sprang the Lords Maxwell, Earls of Nithsdale (an Earldom forfeited in 1715); and

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, Knt., who got from his father the lands and baronies of Nether-Pollock, Co. Renfrew, and the lands of Dryps and Calderwood, in the shire of Lanark; and, dying in the beginning of the reign of DAVID BRUCE, was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, Knt. of Calderwood, who d. in 1363, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollock and Calderwood. This gentleman m. Isabel, dau. of Sir James Lindsay, and had two sons: JOHN, to whom he gave the lands of Nether-Pollock; and

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, who got the Barony of Calderwood, and other lands. This distribution of the estates of Sir John Maxwell is proved by a mutual indenture and entail entered into by the two brothers, in which all their lands are enumerated; and in which it is provided, that, failing heirs male of either of their bodies, the whole estate shall devolve upon the surviving heir male of the other. This deed is dated at Dumbarton, 18 Dec., 1400. Sir Robert m. in 1402, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Denniston, of Denniston, by whom he obtained a considerable augmentation of landed property. From this marriage lineally descended

SIR JAMES MAXWELL, Knt., of Calderwood, who d. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Robert Porterfield, Esq. of Porterfield, by whom he had two daus. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of Sir Alexander Hamilton, of Innerwick, by whom, with six daus., he had two sons; and, thirdly, Margaret, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Glencairn, relict of Sir James Hamilton, of Evandale, and sister of Ann, Marchioness of Hamilton, by whom he had four daus. and two sons,

John, lineal ancestor of the present Bart. Alexander.

Sir James d. in 1722, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. SIR JAMES MAXWELL, of Calderwood, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 28 March, 1627. Upon the demise of Sir John Maxwell, of Pollock, without surviving issue, in 1647, the estates of that gentleman ought to devolve, it was presumed, upon Sir James, according to the deed mentioned, as having been executed, in 1400, by their ancestors, the brothers, Sir John and Sir Robert Maxwell; but Sir John, of Pollock, displeased with the expensive habits of Sir James, made a disposition, some time before his death, in favor of George Maxwell, of Auldhous, who succeeded accordingly. Sir James endeavoured to set aside this disposition, but unsuccessfully. He d. in 1657, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM, who re-agitated his claim to the Pollock estates in 1695, but as unsuccessfully as his predecessor. This gentleman m. Jean, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, of Soughton Hall; but leaving no male issue at his decease, having outlived his two sons, the title reverted to his first cousin,

III. SIR JOHN (only son of Col. John Maxwell, half-brother of the 1st Bart., who fell fighting under the banner of royalty, at the battle of Dunbar, in 1650.) This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Capt. Wood, and was s. at his decease by his only surviving son, IV. SIR WILLIAM, who m. Christian, dau. of Alexander Stewart, Esq. of Torrence, by whom he had, with four daus., three sons, viz.

WILLIAM, his successor.

John, a Col. in the Army.

Alexander, a Merchant at Leith, who m. Mary, dau. of Hugh Clerk, Esq., and left, with other issue, WILLIAM MAXWELL, Esq., a General Officer in the Army, heir-presumptive to the title, who m. Isabella, dau. and heir of Henry Wilson, Esq. of Newbottle, Co. Durham, and has four sons.

Murray, (Sir) a gallant and distinguished Naval Officer.

Sir William d. in 1780, and was s. by his eldest son,

V. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Grisel, dau. of James Peadie, Esq. of Rough Hill, and, dying 2 Jan., 1789, left an only surviving son,

VI. SIR WILLIAM, b. 7 Jan., 1748, m. 5 May, 1807, Hannah-Leonora, youngest dau. of the late Robert Pasley, Esq. of Mount Annan, in Dumfries-shire, but, dying s. p., was s. by his nephew,

SIR WILLIAM, the present Bart.

MAXWELL.

MAXWELL, SIR JOHN, of Nether Pollock, Co. Renfrew; m. Hanway-Anne, dau. of Richard Gardiner, Esq. of Mount Amelia, in Norfolk, and has issue,

- I. JOHN, M.P. for the Co. Renfrew.
- II. Harriett.
- III. Elizabeth, m. to Archibald Stirling, Esq. of Kenmure.

Sir John s. as 7th Bart. on the decease of his father, in 1785.

Lineage.

This family, with fourteen others, mentioned by Lord Hales, accompanied Edgar Atheling into Scotland, when England submitted to WILLIAM of Normandy; and Mac-cus (whose posterity took, like Somer, the term vill, or well, indicating their possessions) was witness, in 1116, to the Inquisitio Davidii, as the Diplomata Scotie proves. A charter from WILLIAM the Lion, of a grant of property, is still in the possession of the Nether-Pollock family, who had founded the church of Maccuswell, now Maccuston, as early as the beginning of that Monarch's reign.

JOHN DE MACCUSVILLE, who was Ambassador to England, from 1215 to 1220, was a guarantee to the treaty of marriage between Joanna of England and ALEXANDER II. This John left a son,

AYMER DE MACCUSWELL, who acquired lands in Renfrewshire and Dumfries-shire, and was Chamberlain of Scotland in the year 1258. As a Baron of Scotland, this Aymer (according to Rymer's Fœdera) engaged that the Scotch should not make peace without the consent of the Welsh. He left three sons,

Herbert, ancestor of the family of Caerlaverock, in Dumfries-shire, Earls of Nithsdale, attainted in 1715. (See family of CONSTABLE-MAXWELL, of Everingham and Caerlaverock, BURKE's Commoners, Vol. 1. p. 325.)

John, founder of the family before us, which is now chief of the ancient house of Maxwell. He is generally styled Dominus de Pollock, and is allied, by marriage, to the celebrated Bruce, and the unfortunate house of Stuart.

Alexander.

SIR JOHN MAXWELL (descended from the above John). 3rd Baron of Pollock, and of Calderwood, left two sons the younger of whom, Sir Robert Maxwell, obtaining the

MAX

Barony of Calderwood from his father, became the founder of the Maxwells of Calderwood, while the elder son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, Knt., inherited Nether-Pollock, and several other estates. This Sir John, and his brother, Sir Robert, executed a deed, in the year 1400, mutually providing that, should the male descendants of one at any time fail, the estates of both were to devolve upon the surviving male heir of the other. Sir John Maxwell d. in the reign of JAMES I., leaving issue,

JOHN, his successor.

Hugh, ancestor of the present Baronet.

From the elder son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, descended

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, at whose decease, without issue, being the last descendant of Sir John Maxwell, one of the parties to the deed of 1400, already mentioned, the estates ought to have devolved, it was asserted, upon Sir James Maxwell of Calderwood; but some time previously to Sir John's decease, he made a disposition of those estates in favour of his kinsman, George Maxwell of Auldhous. This disposition was subsequently litigated, but without being disturbed. Sir John was therefore s. by

SIR GEORGE MAXWELL, Knt. of Auldhous, descended from Hugh Maxwell, Esq., younger son of Sir John Maxwell, the first of Nether Pollock. This Sir George m. Annabella, dau. of Sir Archibald Stewart, by whom he had one son and three daus., and, dying in 1677, was s. by his son,

This gentleman was nominated one of the Privy-Council, for Scotland, by King WILLIAM, on the first institution thereof in 1696; and constituted one of the Lords Commissioners of the Exchequer and Treasury. Sir John was appointed, in 1699, a Senator of the College of Justice and Justice-Clerk. He m. Marian, dau. of Sir James Stewart, of Kirkfield; but, dying without issue, the title devolved upon his cousin,

II. SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Blawarthill, who m. 1st, Lady Anne Carmichael, dau. of John, Earl of Hyndford, by whom he had one son and a daughter. He m. 2ndly, Barbara, dau. of Walter Stewart, Esq. of Blairhill, and by that lady had three other sons and two daus.; and, 3rdly, Miss Margaret Caldwell, without issue. Sir John d. about the year 1753, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR JOHN; at whose decease, unm., in 1758, the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. SIR WALTER, who m. Darcy, dau. of Thomas Brisbane, Esq. of Brisbane and Bishoptoun, and, dying in 1761, was s. by his only child,

V. SIR JOHN; at whose decease in infancy, nine weeks after his father, the title reverted to his uncle,

VI. SIR JAMES. This gentleman m. Frances, 2nd dau. of Robert Colquhoun, Esq. of St. Christopher's, by whom he had issue, JOHN, present Bart.

MOLYNEUX, SIR CAPEL, of Castle Dillon, Co. Armagh: m. 1785, Margaret, eldest dau. of the late Sir Neil O'Donnel, Bart. of Newport, Co. Mayo, but has no issue. Sir Capel s. as 4th Bart., on the decease of his father, in 1797.

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of the family of Molyneux, Earls of Sefton; springing immediately, it is supposed, from Sir Thomas Molyneux (2nd son of Sir William Molyneux, of Sefton, a celebrated warrior under the Black Prince), who added to his arms, as a distinction, the fleur-de-lis in the dexter chief, still borne by the family. Sir Thomas commanded the forces of Robert De Vere, Duke of Ireland, but was defeated and slain by the combined insurgent Lords at Radcot Bridge, near Farringdon, Berks, in 1388. The genealogy, however, and records of this branch of the Molyneux family, which resided at Calais, being destroyed during the sacking of that town by the Duke of Guise in 1588, a chasm, of necessity, occurs in the pedigree.

SIR THOMAS MOLYNEUX, who was b. at Calais in 1531, falling into the hands of the enemy on the capture of that place, above alluded to, was ransomed for 500 crowns. He came to England in 1568, and was sent to Ireland in 1576, by QUEEN ELIZABETH, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, when he obtained, with extensive grants of land from her Majesty, a lease for twenty-one years of the exports and imports of the City of Dublin (wines excepted) for the annual rent of £183. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir William Usher, Clerk of the Privy-Council, and had five sons and three daughters. He was s. in 1632, by his third, but eldest surviving, son,

Upon his subsequent departure for England, general orders were published to the Army both by the Governor-General in Council, and by the Government of Madras, highly complimentary of his services. Captain Montgomery was appointed in 1803, Inspecting-Field-Officer of Yeomanry and Volunteers in the Co. Donegal, with the rank of Lieut.-Col. in the Army. He served in Parliament for the Borough of St. Michael's and the Borough of Yarmouth, and was created a Bart. 3 Oct., 1808. Sir Henry m. Sarah-Mercer, dau. of Leslie Grove, Esq. of Grove Hall, Co. Lineage.

According to the Scottish historians, this ducal family is as ancient as the restoration of the monarchy of Scotland, by FERDUS II.; and, by the same authority, it derives its origin from the renowned GRAMES, who governed that kingdom during the minority of FERDUS's grandson, EUGENE II., which Monarch's reign commenced in the early part of the 5th century. It is certain, however, that no family of North Britain can boast of greater antiquity.

SIR DAVID GRAHAM, Knt. of Old Montrose, Co. Forfar (lands obtained by his father, Sir David Graham, of Kincardine, in exchange for the estate of Cardross, from ROBERT I.), a personage remarkable for patriotism and valor, was one of the Scottish Barons employed to negotiate the ransom of DAVID II., made prisoner at the battle of Durham, in 1346; and Sir David's son,

SIR PATRICK GRAHAM, Lord of Dundaff and Kincardine, Knight-Banneret, became one of the hostages by which the release of the King was eventually accomplished. Sir Patrick m. 1st, Matilda, and had issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Matilda, m. to Sir John Drummond, of Coneralg.

He m. 2ndly, Egidia, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Ralston, brother of ROBERT II., by whom he had four sons, of which, Sir Patrick Graham, the eldest, m. Euphame, COUNTESS PALATINE OF STRATHERNE and Countess of Caithness, and in her right became EARL OF STRATHERNE. Sir Patrick was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM GRAHAM, of Kincardine, who m. 1st, Mariota, dau. of Sir John Oliphant, of Aberdally, by whom he had two sons, Alexander.

John.

He m. 2ndly, the Lady Mary Stewart, 2nd dau. of King ROBERT III., and widow of George, Earl of Angus, and of Sir James Kennedy, of Dunure, by whom (who m. 4thly, Sir William Edmonstoue, of Dunreath) he had five sons, of which,

Robert, was ancestor of the GRAHAMS of FINTRY (now represented by ROBERT GRAHAM, Esq.), and of the GRAHAMS of Claverhouse.

Patrick, Bishop of St. Andrews, and Papal Nuncio, now d. a prisoner in Lochleven Castle, in 1478.

William was progenitor of the GRAHAMS of Garvock, now represented by ROBERT GRAHAM, Esq. of Garvock, (see BURKE'S Commoners, Vol. iii. p. 125), and of the gallant LORD LYNDCE.

Sir William was s. by his grandson,

PATRICK GRAHAM, of Kincardine, who having been appointed one of the Lords of the Regency during the minority of JAMES II., was made a Lord of Parliament about the year 1445, by the title of LORD GRAHAM. His Lordship d. in 1465, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Lord Graham, who had a safe conduct to go into England, or to pass through it into foreign parts, 23 Nov., 1406. His Lordship m. Lady Anne Douglas, dau. of George, 4th Earl of Angus, and was s. at his decease, in 1472, by his elder son,

WILLIAM, 3rd Lord Graham, who was raised to the dignity of Earl of Montrose, 3 March, 1504-5, in consideration of the gallantry he had displayed at the battle of Sauchyburn, in 1408, wherein his Royal master, JAMES III., lost his life. His Lordship fell, with JAMES IV., at Flodden Field, 9 Sept., 1513, and was s. by his only son by his first wife, Annabella, dau. of John, Lord Drummond,

WILLIAM, 2nd Earl. This nobleman was one of the Peers to whom John, Duke of Albany, Regent of Scotland, in the minority of JAMES V., committed the tuition of the young Prince during his own absence in France, in 1523. His Lordship m. Jane, dau. of William Keith, 3rd Earl Marischal, and was s. at his decease, 24 May, 1571, by his grandson,

JOHN, 3rd Earl (posthumous son of Robert, Lord Graham, who was slain at the battle of Pinkey, 10 Sept., 1547, by Margaret, 3rd dau. of Malcolm, 3rd Lord Fleming, Great Chamberlain of Scotland). This nobleman, on the fall of the Earl of Gowrie, the Lord-Treasurer, in 1582, obtained the White Staff, which he soon after surrendered to Sir Thomas Lyon, of Auldbar. He was appointed Chancellor in 1588-9, and held the Seals until 1604, when it was required that the Chancellor should be a Lawyer. His Lordship was then constituted Viceroy of Scotland, by virtue of which high office he presided in the Parliament of Perth, A.D. 1606, when the Episcopal Government was restored to the Church. He m. in 1560, Jean, eldest dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and was s. at his decease, in 1608, by his eldest son,

JAMES, 5th Earl. This nobleman took a distinguished part, in the first instance, on the side of the Covenanters, and afterwards, during the Civil Wars, on that of his ill-fated Sovereign, CHARLES I., and became one of the most illustrious heroes of the age. He was created Marquess of Montrose 16 May, 1644, and constituted Capt.-Gen. and Commander-in-Chief of all the Forces to be raised in Scotland for the King's Service. His Lordship immediately put himself at the head of an army, and numerous brilliant successes followed his first movements. In little more than one year he became master of the greater part of North Britain; but, being unexpectedly attacked at Philiphaugh, 12 Sept., 1645, by Major-Gen. David Leslie, he experienced a total and most signal defeat; after which, his Lordship retired into France; but returning to Scotland in 1650, he collected a new army, and being again defeated, was forced to fly the field of battle in disguise. He was made prisoner, a few days after, at the house of McCleod, of Assint, by whom he was betrayed to Leslie, whence he was led captive to Edinburgh, and there executed upon a gallows thirty feet high, 21 May, 1650. The night preceding his execution, he wrote with a diamond, in allusion to the sentence he had received, the following lines upon his prison window:—

"Let them bestow on every airth a limb,
Then open all my veins that I may swim
To thee, my Maker, in that crimson lake,
Then place my parboiled head upon a stake,
Scatter my ashes, strew them through the air,
Lord, since thou knowest where all these atoms are,
I'm hopeful thou'lt recover once my dust,
And confident thou'lt raise me with the just."

His Lordship m. Lady Magdalen Carnegie, dau. of David,

JAMES, 2nd Marquess, called "the Good," who was restored to his estates and honors at the return of CHAS. II. This nobleman m. Isabel, 5th dau. of William, 2nd Earl of Morton, and widow of Robert, 1st Earl of Roxburgh and by her had

His Lordship s. as 10th Earl, at the decease of his father, 8 Aug., 1810. Lord Moray is Lord Lieutenant of the Co. of Elgin.

The Earldom of Moray became vested in the Crown of Scotland, by the forfeiture of ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS,* Earl of Moray, in 1450, and it remained Dormant until the reign of JAMES IV., who by letters patent, dated 20 June, 1501, conferred it upon

JAMES STUART, his natural son, by the Honorable Janet Kennedy, the Lord Kennedy's daughter; but this nobleman dying without male issue in 1544, the Earldom again reverted to the Crown, and was presented by QUEEN MARY, in 1548, to George, Earl of Huntly, High-Chancellor of Scotland; her Majesty recalling, however, that grant, was graciously pleased to bestow the Earldom, 30 Jan., 1561, upon

JAMES STUART, Prior of St. Andrews, illegitimate son of JAMES V., by Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Erskine, and natural brother to her Majesty. This nobleman played a conspicuous part, subsequently, as REGENT of Scotland, when the unhappy Queen was compelled to surrender her Crown to her infant son, JAMES VI. His Lordship m. in 1561, Anne, dau. of William Keith, Earl Mareschal, and by that lady had two daughters, ELIZABETH, m. to Sir James Stewart, son of James, Lord Down.

MARGARET, m. to Francis, 9th Earl of Errol.

The REGENT MORAY, one of the most prominent persons in Scottish history, is thus characterised. "Personal intrepidity, military skill, and vigour, in the administration of civil affairs, are virtues, which even his enemies allow him to have possessed in an eminent degree. In a fierce age, he was capable of using victory with humanity, and of treating the vanquished with moderation. A patron of learning; zealous for religion to a degree which distinguished him even at a time when professions of that kind were not uncommon. His confidence in his friends was extreme, and inferior only to his liberality towards

* SIR THOMAS RANDOLPH, who commanded the left of the Scottish Army at Bannockburn, in 1314, obtained for his gallant services the EARLDOM OF MORAY. He was nephew of ROBERT BRUCE, being the son of Lady Isabel Bruce, that monarch's sister. His Lordship m. Isabel, only dau. of Sir John Stewart of Bonkyl, and had issue,

THOMAS, } successively Earls.
JOHN, }

Agnes, m. to Patrick, 9th Earl of Dunbar and March, who in her right became eventually Earl of Moray.

The Earl d. in 1332, and was s. by his elder son.

THOMAS RANDOLPH, 2nd Earl of Moray. This nobleman adopting, like his illustrious father, the profession of arms, fell in action at DUBLIN, 12 Aug., 1332, just twenty-three days after the late Earl's decease; dying unm., he was s. by his brother,

JOHN RANDOLPH, 3rd Earl of Moray, who commanded the first body of the Scottish Army at Halidon-hill, 19 July, 1333. He fell in command of the right wing of the Scots at the battle of Durham, 17 Oct., 1346, and, dying s. p., the Earldom of Moray should have reverted to the Crown, but it was assumed by his Lordship's sister,

AGNES, consort of Patrick Dunbar, 9th Earl of Dunbar and March, and her husband became in her right EARL, in which dignity her Ladyship was s. by her 2nd son,

JOHN DUNBAR, who obtained, 9 March, 1371-2, from ROBERT II., a charter of confirmatory of the whole Earldom of Moray, and it remained in the Dunbar family until the decease of

JAMES DUNBAR, Earl of Moray, without male issue, in 1430, when the husband of his younger dau., Lady Mary Dunbar,

ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, obtained the EARLDOM OF MORAY, to the prejudice of the husband of the elder daughter. This nobleman, joining his brother, the Earl of Douglas, in arms against JAMES II., fell at Arkinholm, 1 May, 1455, and was afterwards attainted, when the EARLDOM OF MORAY, as stated above, became vested in the Crown of Scotland.

them, which knew no bounds. His treatment of MARY, to whose bounty he was so much indebted, was unbrotherly and ungrateful. Amidst the turbulence and confusion of the period of his Regency, he dispensed justice with so much impartiality, he repressed the licentious borderers with so much courage, and established such uncommon order and tranquillity in the country, that his administration was extremely popular, and he was long and affectionately remembered among the commons, by the name of the GOOD REGENT." The Earl of Moray eventually fell a victim to one of his foes. Hamilton, of Bothwellhaugh, a man distinguished for a vindictive disposition, in an age when revenge was counted a virtue and a duty, had, with many of the name, been made prisoner at the fight of Langside: with the other captives, he had been doomed to death after the battle, and, like others, he had received pardon from the Regent. But though Bothwellhaugh had been favourably treated, a separate property belonging to him had been declared forfeited, and was conferred by Moray upon one of his favourites, who, eager to obtain possession, brutally drove the wife of Bothwellhaugh, then recently delivered of a child, half naked into the fields, where she became ere morning furiously mad. Her husband vowed vengeance on the Regent as the original author of the injury; and the Hamiltons, his kinsmen, who had so much reason to hate and fear the then ruler of Scotland, encouraged him by applauding and abetting his design. Having taken singularly active measures for effecting his purpose and his escape, he lurked in an empty lodging in a street in Linlithgow, mortally wounded the Earl of Moray by a shot from a carbine, as he rode through the town, and, though closely pursued, got in safety to France, Moray, fell 21 Jan., 1569-70, in the 37th year of his age. He was s. by his eldest daughter,

ELIZABETH, Countess of Moray, who m. in 1560,

SIR JAMES STUART (son and heir of Sir James Stuart, of Doun, created Lord Down, 24 Nov., 1561), who assumed thereupon the title of EARL OF MORAY. This nobleman is known in history by the appellation of the "Bonny Earl of Moray." His Lordship had issue, MORDAUNT.

MORDAUNT, SIR JOHN, of Massingham, Co. Norfolk; b. 24 Aug., 1808; s. as 9th Baronet, on the demise of his father, 30 May, 1823; m. 7 Aug., 1834, Caroline-Sophia, 2nd dau. of the Rt. Rev. George Murray, D.D., Bishop of Rochester.

Lineage.

The family of Mordaunt was originally of the Co. Bedford, and it ranked amongst the most eminent houses in that shire; it is the only one now remaining of those enumerated by Fuller, from an old record or catalogue of the principal gentry, taken during the reign of HENRY VI.

SIR OSBERT LE MORDAUNT, a Norman Knight, of Radwell, Co. Bedford (an estate granted by WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to his brother), was s. by his son,

OSMOND LE MORDAUNT, whose son,

EUSTACHE LE MORDAUNT, obtained with Alice, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir William de Alneto, the Lordship of Turvey, Co. Bedford, and was s. by his son,

In consequence of which, at his Lordship's decease, in 1553, the honors devolved upon the said

JAMES DOUGLAS, of Pittendriech, as 4th Earl of Morton. This nobleman was raised to the Chancellorship by Queen MARY, and held the seals until March, 1565, when he was forced to fly into England for alleged acquiescence in the murder of David Rizzio. His Lordship obtaining soon afterwards a pardon, returned, and was again Chancellor, under the Regency of the Earl of Moray; he was, subsequently, High-Admiral of Scotland; and, in 1572, Regent of the Kingdom. This tide of prosperity ebbing, however, the Earl was accused of being accessory to the murder of Lord Darnley, and, being arraigned upon that charge, was found guilty, and publicly executed, at the Market-Cross of Edinburgh, 2 June, 1581, by the machine called the Maiden, which he had himself introduced into Scotland. His Lordship, having no issue, made an entail of the Earldom in favor of his nephew, the Earl of Angus, and, in case of failure of issue of that nobleman, then in favor of William Douglas, of Lochleven. After his Lordship's execution and forfeiture, however, the Crown immediately conferred the Earldom of Morton upon JOHN, Lord Maxwell, grandson of James, 3rd Earl of Morton, who became thus 5th Earl of Morton; but a general act of indemnity passing in 1543, that nobleman was obliged to surrender the Earldom to the heir of the entail; in recompense for which, the Crown created the Earldom of Nethsdale, with precedence, from Lord Maxwell's receiving the Earldom of Morton in 1581. On this surrender, the Earldom of Morton accordingly devolved upon

ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, 8th Earl of Angus, as 6th Earl of Morton (Lord Maxwell being regarded as 5th Earl), at whose demise, without issue, in 1588, it descended to

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, Knt. of Lochleven, as 7th Earl of Morton (refer to descendants of Sir Henry Douglas, of Lugton and Lochleven, 3rd son of Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith). This nobleman m. Lady Agnes Lealy, eldest dau. of George, 4th Earl of Rothes, and, dying in 1606, was s. by (the son of his deceased son, Robert, by Jean, only dau. of John, 10th Lord Glamis), his grandson,

WILLIAM, 8th Earl, K.G. and Lord High Treasurer of Scotland. This nobleman, before the Civil Wars broke out, was one of the richest and greatest subjects in the kingdom. Espousing the royal cause zealously, he advanced considerable sums for its support, disposing for that purpose of the noble property of Dalkeith, with other estates to the value of no less than £100,000 Scots of yearly rent. On that account the islands of Orkney and Zetland, with the whole jurisdictions and royalties appertaining thereto, were granted to his Lordship, 15 June, 1643, by royal charter, redeemable by the crown on payment of £30,000 sterling. He m. Lady Anne Keith, eldest dau. of George, 5th Earl Marischal, and, dying in 1648, was s. by his eldest son,

His Lordship m. in 1692, Lady Grisel Middleton, eldest dau. of John, 1st Earl of Middleton, but, dying without surviving issue, in 1681, the honors reverted to his uncle, MOUNTCASHELL.

MOUNTCASHELL, EARL OF (Stephen Moore), Viscount Mountcashell, Co. Tipperary, and Baron Kilworth, of Moore Park, Co. Cork, in the Peerage of Ireland, one of the Representative Lords; b. 20 Aug., 1792; s. as 3rd Earl, on the demise of his father, 27 Oct., 1822; m. 31 May, 1819, Anna-Maria, dau. of Samuel Wym, Esq. of Switzerland, and has issue,

Lineage.

This family deduces its descent from Thomas de Moore, one of the Knights who accompanied the CONQUEROR into England, and who survived the decisive battle of Hastings, in which he had a principal command. About the middle of the 14th century, the ancestors of the Earl were seated in the West of England, and in the beginning of Queen ELIZABETH'S reign they purchased an estate near Larden, Co. Salop; whence, for nearly a century, they were designated the Mores, of Shropshire (see BURKE'S Commoners). In the reign of King JAMES I.,

RICHARD MOORE emigrated to Ireland, and fixed his abode at Clonmell. This gentleman left two sons, the elder of whom,

STEPHEN MOORE, Esq., purchased the estate of Kilworth, Co. Cork, and settled there. Mr. Moore had the honor of being personally known to King WILLIAM, to whom, upon that Prince's arrival in England, he lent £3000, which sum was never refunded: he was, however, constituted by his Majesty Governor of the Co. Tipperary, and Colonel of its Militia. He m. Miss Croek, dau. of Sir George Croek, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, in England, by whom he had an only son,

Lineage.

This family, which derives its surname from Eggecomb, Egecomb, or Edgecomb (as it has been variously written in old records), in the parish of Cheriton-Fitz-Pain, near Crediton, was of great antiquity in the Co. of Devon; when, in the reign of EDWARD III.,

WILLIAM DE EDGECOMBE, marrying Hilaria, dan. and heir of William de Cotehele, of Cotehele, Co. Cornwall, removed to that place, and chiefly resided there. He d. in 1380, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM EDGECOMB, Esq., who m. the dau. and heir of — Denzet. He had a grant in the 6th HENRY V., with Robert Hethe, of the custody of the lead-mines, with the silver ore therein, which were in Devonshire. He left issue,

PETER EDGECOMB, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Holland, Esq., and was father of

SIR RICHARD EDGECOMB, Knt., a person of great eminence in the times of EDWARD IV., RICHARD III., and HENRY VII. In the 7th of the first-mentioned Monarch, he served in Parliament for Tavistock; and in the same year was Escheator of the Co. Cornwall, an office then of great trust. He subsequently joined Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, against RICHARD III., and had a narrow escape for his life after the defeat and execution of that nobleman. But making his way into Brittany, he enrolled himself under the banner of the EARL OF RICHMOND, and returning to England, participated in the victory of Bosworth, and received the honor of Knighthood from his victorious chief on the field of battle. He was afterwards sworn of the Privy Council, and appointed Comptroller of his Household by the new Monarch. He obtained likewise grants of the castle, honor, &c., of Totness, and the Manor of Cornworthy, with various other lands in the Co. Devon: of which shire he served the office of Sheriff in 1487. Sir Richard was subsequently sent into Ireland, "being a person (observes Sir James Ware), of singular prudence," to administer the oaths of allegiance and obedience, as well to the nobility, gentry, and prime officers, as to the commonalty of the realm: and brought over with him 500 armed men. He m. Joan, dau. of Thomas Tremane, Esq. of Collacomb, and had issue,

He m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Glanvil, of Broad Hinton, in Wilts, and, dying in 1600, was s. by his eldest son,

This ancient family deduces its descent from the Barons of Montmorency, in France; a branch of which illustrious house came into England with WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, and having obtained a grant in the principality of Wales, soon after settled in the Isle of Anglesey.

HERVEY DE MONTE-MARISCOR, of Beaumaris, uncle of Richard, Earl of Strongbow, attended that chief in his expedition to Ireland; and, upon the subjugation of the kingdom, obtained considerable territorial grants in the Co. of Wexford, Tipperary, and Kerry; some of which still remain with his successors, but the greater part have been conveyed, by intermarriages, to the houses of Leinster and Ormonde. This Hervey m. in 1175, Nesta, dau. of Maurice Fitzgerald, ancestor of the Duke of Leinster; but, in 1179, retired from the world, and became a Brother in the Monastery of the Holy Trinity, in Canterbury. MOUNTNORRIS.

MOUNTNORRIS, EARL OF (George Annesley, F.R.S., F.S.A., F.L.S.), Viscount Valentia, of Valentia, Co. Kerry; Baron Mountnorris, of Mountnorris Castle, Co. Armagh; Baron Altham, of Altham, Co. Cork, in the Peerage of Ireland, and a Baronet of the same part of the United Kingdom; b. 2 Nov., 1769; m. 3 Sept., 1790, Anne, dau. of William, 2nd Viscount Courtenay, and has had issue,

i. GEORGE-ARTHUR, Viscount Valentia, b. 2nd Oct., 1793.

ii. William, in Holy Orders; b. 19 Feb., 1796, and d. 1 Nov., 1830.

His Lordship s. as 3rd Earl, on the demise of his father, 4 July, 1816.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the lordship of Annesley, Co. Nottingham, where its ancestor,

RICHARD DE ANNESLEY, was seated at the time of the general survey in 1079. From this Richard descended

SIR JOHN ANNESLEY, Knt. of Hedynton, Co. Oxford, M.P. for Nottinghamshire, temp. EDWARD III. and RICHARD II., who m. Isabel, sister and co-heir of Sir John Chandos, one of the Knights of the Garter, at the institution of that noble Order: Viscount of the Isle of Constantine, in Normandy; Great Seneschal of Poitou; and High Constable of Aquitaine; and was s. by his son.

THOMAS ANNESLEY, Esq. of Annesley, M.P. for the Co. Nottingham, whose great-grandson,

WILLIAM ANNESLEY, Esq. of Rodington, had, with other children,

ROBERT ANNESLEY, Esq. of Newport Pagnell, Co. Bucks, who d. in 1553, and was s. by his son,

GEORGE ANNESLEY, Esq. of Newport Pagnell, whose eldest son,

ROBERT ANNESLEY, Esq., was a Naval Officer in the reign of Queen ELIZABETH, and also a Capt. in her Majesty's Army, raised to suppress the Earl of Desmond's rebellion, after which he became an undertaker in the plantation of Munster. He m. Beatrice, dau. of John Cornwall, Esq. of Moor Park, Co. Hereford, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR FRANCIS ANNESLEY, Knt., who filled for forty years several of the highest official situations in Ireland. In 1606, he was appointed Comptroller over the Clerk of the Works; in 1607, made Joint-Clerk of the Council, and Keeper of the Signet in the Province of Munster; in 1612, he was constituted Constable of the Castle of Mountnorris; in the next year, Sir Francis represented the Co. of Armagh in Parliament; and in 1616, he was nominated one of the Principal Secretaries of State for Ireland, and sworn of the Privy Council; but the office being granted without fee, he had a reversionary patent, dated 8 June, 1618, of the Secretaryship and Custody of the Privy Signet, on the avoidance or death of Sir Dudley North, whereupon he resigned the reversionary grant of the Muster-Master-Generalship, which he had previously obtained. Upon the institution of the Order of Baronets of Ireland, Sir Francis Annesley was the second person upon whom that dignity was conferred, by patent dated 7 Aug., 1620, and in the following year, Sir Francis obtained a reversionary grant, by patent, dated 11 March, 1621, of the Irish Viscounty of Valentia, at the decease of the then Viscount, Sir Henry Power. He was put, however, into the more immediate possession of a Peerage, by the title of Baron Mountnorris, of Mountnorris, Co. Armagh, 8 Feb., 1622. For the sufferings of this nobleman under the government of the Earl of Strafford, see BURKE's Extinct and Dormant Peerage. His Lordship m. 1st, Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Philips, Bart. of Picton Castle, Co. Pembroke, by whom he had ARTHUR, his successor, and other children. He espoused 2ndly, Jane, dau. of Sir John Stanhope, and widow of Sir Peter Courtene, Bart. of Adlington, Co. Worcester, by whom he had several children, the eldest of whom,

FRANCIS, m. Deborah, dau. of Henry Jones, Bishop of Meath, and was father of

FRANCIS, of Thorganby in Yorkshire, M.P., who left, with other issue,

1 FRANCIS, ancestor of the Annesleys of Bletchington. (See BURKE's Commoners, Vol. I. p. 7.)

2 Martin, in Holy Orders, had issue.

3 William, created Viscount GERRAWLEY, ancestor of the EARL OF ANNESLEY.

His Lordship d. in 1680, and was s. by his eldest son,

ARTHUR, 2nd Baron, who was enrolled amongst the Peers of England, 20 April, 1681, as Baron Annesley, of Newport Pagnell and Earl of Anglesey. This nobleman was Treasurer of the Navy, in 1667, and Lord-Privy-Seal in 1673. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir James Altham, of Oxey, Co. Herts, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, by whom he had (with other children),

i. JAMES, Lord Annesley.

ii. Altham, who was created Baron Altham, of Altham, with remainder to the issue male of his younger brothers (after his own), 14 Feb., 1680, and, dying in 1699, was s. by his only son,

JAMES-GEORGE, 2nd Lord Altham; at whose decease, in infancy, the dignity reverted to his (father's younger brother) his uncle,

iii. THE HON. AND REV. RICHARD ANNESLEY, D.D., Dean of Exeter, as 3rd Lord Altham, who d. in 1701, the year he inherited the Peerage, and was s. by his son,

ARTHUR, 4th Lord Altham, who m. Mary, natural dau. of John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham and Normanby, but, dying s. p. in 1727, was s. by his brother, RICHARD, 5th Lord Altham, of whom hereafter, as 6th Earl of Anglesey.

The Earl d. 6 April, 1686, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Earl of Rutland, and had issue,

JAMES, }
JOHN, } successively Earls of Anglesey.
ARTHUR, }

Elizabeth, m. to Robert Gayer, Esq. of Stoke Poges, Bucks.

His Lordship d. in 1690, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 3rd Earl, who m. Lady Catherine Darnley, natural dau. of JAMES II., and left an only dau. and heir,

Catherine, m. to William Phipps, Esq., son of Sir Constantine Phipps, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and had a son, CONSTANTINE - PHIPPS, who was created BARON MULGRAVE, in the Peerage of Ireland.

His Lordship d. 18 Jan., 1701-2, and was s. by his brother,

JOHN, 4th Earl, who m. in 1706, Lady Henrietta Stanley, eldest dau. and co-heir of William, Earl of Derby, by whom he had no surviving issue. He d. in 1710, and was s. by his brother,

ARTHUR, 5th Earl. This nobleman m. Mary, dau. of John Thompson, Lord Haversham, but, dying issueless, the honors devolved upon his kinsman,

RICHARD, 5th Baron Altham, as 6th Earl of Anglesey (revert to descendants of Altham, 2nd son of 1st Earl). This nobleman was not left, however, in uninterrupted enjoyment of the honors; for soon after his accession, a claimant arose in the person of Mr. James Annesley, who asserted that he was himself the son of Arthur, 4th Lord Altham, and a publication, entitled "The Adventures of an Unfortunate Young Nobleman," gave a very extraordinary and interesting narrative of his case. In that statement it was alleged, that Mr. Annesley was the true and lawful son and heir of Arthur, Lord Altham, and that he had been kidnapped and transported by his uncle RICHARD, to make room for his own accession to the honors and estates of the family. Mr. Annesley followed up the matter, instituted a suit at law for the recovery of the estates, and, after a trial in the Court of Exchequer in Ireland, James Annesley versus Richard, called Earl of Anglesey, begun 11 Nov., 1743, and continued daily, by adjournment, to the 28th of the same month, obtained a verdict. We believe, however, that he did not live long after, as the uncle, notwithstanding this decision, continued to enjoy the honors and fortune. The conduct of that person throughout the whole course of his iniquitous career, fully sustained the presumption that he had been very capable of committing the foul crime thus laid to his charge. He is said to have married three wives, two of whom he heartlessly abandoned, and the offspring of the third was unable, but partially, to establish his legitimacy. The second lady, Miss Simpson, he wedded when a half-pay officer, without title or fortune, and for some years afterwards was chiefly maintained by her father and friends. After his accession to the Barony of Altham, and subsequently, to the Earldom of Anglesey, this lady was received at the Vice Regal Court in Dublin, as the consort of his Lordship, and so introduced by himself. He cohabited with her for several years, during which time he had three daus., and these, with their mother, he eventually left to starve. His third wife was a Miss Donovan, whom he espoused in the lifetime of the second, under the allegation that he had a wife living when he married Miss Simpson, and that his marriage with that unhappy lady was therefore illegal. To Juliana Donovan he appears to have been married in 1741, immediately after the decease of Anne Phruist, the first wife, by his own chaplain, the Rev. L. Neil, at his seat, Camolin Park, Co. Wexford, and by her (who m. after his decease, Matthew Talbot, Esq. of Castle Talbot, Co. Wexford), he had an only son,

ARTHUR.

The Earl d. 4 Feb., 1761, when the legitimacy of his son was contested by the heir at law, John Annesley, Esq. of Ballysack, who petitioned the Irish Parliament to be admitted to the honors of the family. The matter excited great public interest, and was pending in the Irish House of Lords for nearly four years, when their Lordships came to a decision, establishing the marriage with Miss Donovan, and confirming the right of her son,

ARTHUR, to the VISCOUNTY OF VALENTIA and the other Irish honors. His Lordship on coming of age, in 1763, and taking his seat in the House of Lords of Ireland, applied for a writ as EARL ANGLESEY to the English Parliament, but there the decision was against him, and the writ was, of course, denied. He continued, however, to sit as Viscount Valentia (his claim being a second time investigated and confirmed in Ireland), and was created 20 Dec., 1793, EARL OF MOUNTNORRIS. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1767, Lucy, only dau. of George, 1st Lord Lyttelton, by whom (who d. in 1783), he had

GEORGE, present Earl.

Juliana-Lucy, m. to Lord Farnham.

Hester-Annabella, m. in 1801, Major-Gen. Norman Macleod, who d. in 1831.

Henry-Arthur, m. Sarah, only dau. of B. Ainsworth, Esq., and d. in 1818.

NELSON.

NELSON, EARL (Horatio Nelson), of Merton and Trafalgar; Viscount Merton and Trafalgar, of Merton, Co. Surrey; and Baron Nelson, of the Nile, and of Hilborough, Co. N E L

Lineage.

"One of the greatest names," says Sir Egerton Brydges, "which will hereafter occur in the annals of British history, or perhaps in the annals of the world, at least as far as the operations of war are concerned, will be NELSON. His heroic deeds are so numerous, so splendid, and so incalculably important, that in him the biographer is confounded with excess of light. Of some men, the great deeds require to be told, because they deserve celebration. The celebrity of NELSON is already so universal, that he who endeavours to add to it, incurs the hazard of effecting no other purpose than the tedium of a tale a thousand times told. The three words, NILE, COPENHAGEN, TRAFALGAR, would say more than a hundred pages could relate." Fully impressed with the truth of this opinion, we will not dare to dim the glory of this immortal seaman, by the faint light which our limited space could throw upon his exploits. His deeds—his fame—his death, are blotless in the recollection of Englishmen; and his name will be cherished by their posterity, so long as the shores of England shall be guarded by those wooden walls, which his proud career has rendered invincible.

The youngest son of the Rev. Edmund Nelson,

HORATIO NELSON, was born at the Parsonage House, Burnham Thorpe, 29 Sept., 1758, and he entered the Navy when twelve years of age, on board the RAISONNABLE man-of-war, then commanded by his maternal uncle, Capt. Maurice Suckling, which officer was appointed, in 1775, Comptroller of the Navy, and young Nelson was soon afterwards nominated to act as 4th Lieut. of the Worcester, commanded by Capt. Mark Robinson. On the 8th April, 1777, he passed his examination as Lieutenant, and the next day received his commission as Lieut. of the Rowkstoppe frigate: from which, at the end of a year's active service, he was appointed third Lieutenant of the Bristol, the flag-ship of Admiral Sir Peter Parker. In 1778, at the close of the year, he was a Commander in the Badger brig, and in Jan., 1779, POST-CAPTAIN. Thus much for his early promotions. He did not, however, attain the rank of Rear-Admiral until March, 1797, or before he had fairly won his way by the most gallant and indefatigable services: at this period he was rewarded, too, with the Order of the Bath. In addition we shall briefly state, that his triumph of the Nile was achieved 1 Aug., 1798, and that he was advanced to the Peerage in consequence, as BARON NELSON of the Nile, and of Burnham Thorp, Co. Norfolk; a pension of £2000 per annum being attached to the Peerage for his own life, and the lives of his two immediate successors. In April, 1801, his Lordship appeared before COPENHAGEN, and there, to the fame of a great Captain, added the reputation of a prudent negotiator. The next month (22 May, 1801) he was created VISCOUNT NELSON; and soon after gratified (4 Aug., in the same year) by the grant of a collateral Peerage to his family, under the title of BARON NELSON of the Nile, and of Hilborough, in Norfolk, with remainder to his family, and the heirs male of his body, and after those to his sisters, Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Matcham, in succession, and the heirs male of their bodies. From this period we pass over many a valiant exploit, until the Hero at length won the imperishable wreath of immortality, by the proudest conquest ever achieved, the VICTORY of TRAFALGAR (21 Oct., 1805). He fell, though, at the moment his country was saved. He fell when the naval host of France and Spain was scattered like dust before the whirlwind, and their importance, as naval powers, for ever annihilated.

* By his wife ANNE TURNER, dau. of Sir Charles Turner, of Warham, in Norfolk, Bart., by Mary, eldest dau. of Robert Walpole, and sister of Sir Robert Walpole, K.G., 1st Earl of Orford, and of Horatio, Lord Walpole, of Wolterton. See BURKE'S Commoners.

His Lordship espoused, in 1787, Frances, dau. of William Herbert, Esq., and relict of Josiah Nisbet, M.D. of the Isle of Navis; but, dying s. p., all his honors, save that of the last Barony, became EXTINCT, but that, in accordance with the limitation, devolved upon his brother, the REV. WILLIAM NELSON, D.D., the 1st Earl Nelson. The Viscount had been created, by the King of the Two Sicilies, DUKE OF BRONTE. The remains of the gallant and lamented hero were honored with public obsequies, and deposited in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, in London, 9 June, 1806. His Lordship was s. by his elder surviving brother,

WILLIAM (the REV., D.D.), 2nd Viscount, who was created EARL NELSON, 20 Nov., 1805, with permission from his Majesty to inherit his deceased brother's Sicilian Dukedom of Bronte. The Earl, who was b. 20 April, 1757, was a Prebendary of Canterbury: he m. 1st, 9 Nov., 1786, Sarah, dau. of the REV. HENRY YONGE, by whom (who d. 13 April, 1828) he had an only surviving dau., Charlotte-Mary, m. to the present Lord Bridport. Earl Nelson espoused, 2ndly, 26 March, 1829, Hilare, third dau. of Rear-Admiral Sir Robert Barlow, sister of the Viscountess Torrington, and widow of her cousin, Capt. George-Uric Barlow, who d. in 1824, by whom he had no issue. His Lordship d. 28 Feb., 1835, when the honors devolved on his nephew,

THOMAS BOLTON, 2nd Earl, who was b. 7 July, 1786, and m. 21 Feb., 1821, Frances-Elizabeth, dau. and heir of the late John-Maurice Eyre, Esq., by whom he had issue, 4 Eliza, m. to Thomas Taylor Rowley, Esq. of Moperath, Co. Meath.

The 2nd son,

JOHN TOLER, b. in July, 1740, was called to the Irish Bar in 1770, and returned to Parliament by the Borough of Tralee in 1776, when he arrayed himself under the banner of Government, and in the turbulent times that followed, sustained, as well by his eloquence, as his personal courage, the cause he had espoused. In 1781, he obtained a silk gown. In 1789, he was appointed Solicitor-General, and he succeeded Mr. Wolfe (the lamented Lord Kilwarden) in the Attorney-Generalship. While holding one of these offices, Mr. Toler accepted a challenge from the celebrated demagogue leader, James Napper Tandy, who afterwards shrunk from the rencontre. In the dreadful era of 1798, when his native country was desolated by a triumphant and vindictive faction—when the brand and the scourge blazed and resounded from one extremity of that ill-fated land to the other, and atrocities were of every day occurrence, at the bare recital of which humanity now revolts with disgust and horror, the arduous duties of Attorney-General devolved upon Mr. Toler,—how he fulfilled them the partisan depicts according to the tone and tinge of his party—will the impartial historian leave the ermine of Lord Norbury unsullied?

In 1800, he was elevated to the Bench and the Peerage, to the former, as Chief-Justice of the Court of Common-Pleas, to the latter (by letters patent, dated 29 Dec., in that year) in the dignity of BARON NORBURY; he had previously obtained a Peerage (7 Nov., 1797) for his lady, as BARONESS NORWOOD. His Lordship retired from the Bench in 1827, when he was advanced to the dignities of Viscount Glandine, and EARL OF NORBURY, with remainder to his 2nd son, HECTOR-JOHN. Lord Norbury m. 2 June, 1776, Grace, dau. of Hector Graham, Esq., Secondary of the Irish Court of Common-Pleas, and had issue,

DANIEL, who s. his mother in the BARONY OF NORWOOD, and his father, in that of NORBURY, but d. mm. in 1832, when those honors passed to his brother,

HECTOR-JOHN, present Peer.

Isabella.

Letitia, m. 8 March, 1813, to William Browne, Esq. of Browne's Hill, Co. Carlow (his 2nd wife).

"During a long enjoyment of lucrative offices," says a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine, "Lord Norbury accumulated a large fortune, at the same time he was an excellent landlord, and a gentle and forbearing master. In his deportment towards the Bar he was undeviatingly polite; and in private society he was a most agreeable, although a very grotesque, companion. His literary studies stopped short of the present century. He was always a remarkably good horseman, and to his latter years appeared well mounted in the streets." His Lordship d. 27 July, 1831. Lady Norwood pre-deceased him some years: her Ladyship d. 21 July, 1822.

His Grace s. as 12th Duke, on the demise of his kinsman, Charles, the late Duke, 16 Dec., 1815.

Lineage.

This ducal house stands, next to the blood royal, at the head of the Peerage of England, and is the chief of the family of Howard; of whose origin Dugdale thus speaks: "There are those, perhaps, who will expect that I should ascend much higher in manifesting the greatness of this honorable and large spreading family of Howard, in regard I do not make any mention thereof above the time of EDWARD I., some supposing, that their common ancestor, in the Saxon time, took his original appellation from an eminent office, or command; others, afterwards, from the name of a place. And some have not stuck to derive him from the famous Hereward, the chief conductor of those forces which so stoutly defended the Isle of Ely, for a time, against WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR and his Army. But to this last I cannot well assent, by reason that Ingulph, then Abbot of Crouland, who was his contemporary, affirms that Hereward left no other issue than an heir female, named Turfrida, wife to Hugh de Evermus, Lord of Deping, Co. Lincoln. I shall therefore, after much fruitless search to satisfy myself, as well as others, on this point, begin with William Howard, a learned and reverend Judge of the Court of Common-Pleas, for a great part of the reign of EDWARD I., and beginning of that of EDWARD II."

This WILLIAM HOWARD, who was Chief Justice of the Common Pleas from 1297 to 1308, had large possessions in Wiggenhale, Co. Norfolk. He m. twice: 1st, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir Edward Fitton, Knt., by whom he had two sons,

JOHN, his successor.
William;

N O R

and, 2ndly, Alice, dau. of Sir Robert Ufford, Knt., but there was no issue of that marriage. Sir William was s. by his elder son,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, Knt. of Wiggenhall, one of the Gentlemen of the Bedchamber to EDWARD I. He m. Joan, sister of Richard de Cornwall, and, dying in 1331, was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, Knt., who was constituted in the 9th of EDWARD III., Admiral and Captain of the King's Navy in the North, and in the following year had an assignation of £153. 7s. 6d. for the wages of himself, with his men at arms, &c., in that service. And the same year, having affairs to transact beyond the seas, the King granted him his protection, dated 24 April, 1337, to be in force, till the 1st of Aug. following. Sir John was Sheriff of Norfolk in 1345. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir Robert de Boys, and sister and heir of Sir Robert de Boys, of Furseld, in Norfolk, by which alliance the whole inheritance of the Boys's came into the Howard family. Sir John Howard was s. by his grandson,

SIR JOHN HOWARD (only surviving son of Sir Robert Howard, by Margery, dau. of Robert, Lord Scales) who was Sheriff of the Cos. of Essex and Hertford, in the reigns of HENRY IV. and HENRY V. He m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir John Plaiz, of Tofte, in Norfolk, and of Stansted, Mountfitchet, in Essex, by whom he had issue,

John, (Sir) who d. in the Holy Land during his father's lifetime (1409), leaving by his wife, Joan, dau. of Sir Richard Walton, Knt., and sister and heir of John Walton, Esq. of Wyvenhoe, in Essex, an only dau. and heir,

Elizabeth, who m. John Vere, Earl of Oxford, and through this lady the Veres acquired the Barony of Plaiz, and became co-heirs to that of Scales. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

Margaret, m. 1st, to Constantine Clifton, of Buckingham Castle, Norfolk, and 2ndly, to Sir George Talbot.

Sir John m. 2ndly, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir William Tendring, of Tendring, and had two other sons, ROBERT, (Sir) his successor.

Henry, who had by gift of his father, the Manors of Teringhampton, East Walton, Bockenham, Wiggenhall, and other lands in Norfolk. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Henry Hussey, and left a dau. and heir, Elizabeth, m. to Henry Wentworth, of Codham, Essex.

Sir John d. in 1436, and was s. by his elder surviving son,

SIR ROBERT HOWARD, Knt., who m. Margaret, elder dau. of Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Richard Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel, and cousin and co-heir of John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk. By this marriage, the inheritance of those great families became, eventually, in part vested in the house of Howard; and, by Isabel, the other co-heir, partly in the house of Berkeley. (The above-mentioned Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, was son and heir of John, Lord Mowbray, by Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John, Lord Segrave, and of Margaret-Plantagenet, his wife, dau. and heir of Thomas Plantagenet, surnamed de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, and Marshal of England, the eldest son of EDWARD I., by his 2nd wife, Margaret, dau. of PHILIP THE HARDY, King of France. This Thomas de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, was invested with the office of Earl Marshal, 12 Feb., 1365-6, being the first so designated, his predecessors having been simply styled Marshals.) Sir Robert Howard had, by this illustrious alliance, two daughters, Margaret, m. to William Daniel, Baron of Rathwire, in Ireland.

Catharine, m. (2nd wife) to Edward Nevil, Lord of Abergavenny.

And an only son,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, an eminent Yorkist, not only on account of his princely birth (maternally) and magnificent fortune, but from the stations of high trust which at different periods he had filled. After distinguishing himself very early in life, in the French wars of HENRY VI., Sir John was constituted, by EDWARD IV., in 1461, Constable of the Castle of Norwich; appointed Sheriff of the Co. of Norfolk and Suffolk; and granted some of the forfeited Manors of James Butler, Earl of Wiltshire, in England, and of Ormonde, in Ireland. In 1468, being Treasurer of the King's Household, Sir John Howard obtained a grant of the whole benefit that should accrue to the King by coinage of money in the city and Tower of London, or elsewhere, in the realm of England, so long as he should continue in that office. In 1470, when he was summoned to Parliament under the title of Lord Howard, he was made Captain-General of all the King's Forces at sea, for resisting the attempts of the Lancastrians, then rallying under Nevil, Earl of Warwick, the Duke of Clarence, and others. In 1471, his Lordship was constituted Deputy-Governor of Calais and the marches adjacent; and his summons to Parliament, as a Baron, continued until he was created Earl Marshal of England, and DUKE OF NORFOLK, 28 June, 1483; when his son and heir, Thomas Howard, was created Earl of Surrey. The Duke had been previously invested with the insignia of the Garter. As Earl Marshal, his Grace was empowered (in the King's presence or absence) to bear a golden staff, tipped at each end with black, the upper part thereof to be adorned with the royal arms, and the lower with those of his own family; and for the better support of the dignity of the said office, he obtained a grant to himself, and his heirs for ever, of £20 annually, payable half-yearly, out of the fee-farm rent of Ipswich, in Suffolk. His Grace was subsequently constituted Lord-Admiral of England, Ireland, and Aquitaine, for life, and obtained grants of divers Manors and Lordships in the Co. of Suffolk, Kent, Cambridge, Cornwall, Somerset, and Wilts. But he did not long enjoy these great possessions; for, the next year, being with RICHARD, at Bosworth Field, he fell in leading the van of that Prince's army. His Grace was warned by some of his friends to refrain from attending his sovereign to the field; and, the night previous to the battle, the following distich was set upon his gate:

"Jockey of Norfolk, be not too bold,
For Dickon, thy master, is bought and sold."

Yet he would not desert his royal master; but as he had faithfully lived under him, so he manfully died by his side. His Grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of William, Lord Molines, by whom he had issue,

THOMAS, Lord Surrey.
Anne, m. to Sir Edmund Gorges, of Wraxhall, Somersetshire, K.B.
Isabel, m. to Sir Robert Mortimer.
Jane, m. to John Timperky, Esq. of Hintlesham, in Suffolk.
Margaret, m. to Sir John Windham, of Croun Thorpe and Felbrig, in Norfolk.

His Grace espoused, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Chedworth, Knt., by whom he had one daughter, Catherine, m. to John Bouchier, Lord Berners.

The Duke was attainted by Parliament, 7 Nov., 1485, when all his honors became forfeited: while his only son,

THOMAS, Earl of Surrey, being also attainted, lost his Earldom. His Lordship was, however, after suffering an imprisonment of three years in the Tower, restored in 1489; and created Duke of Norfolk and Earl-Marshal, 1 Feb., 1514, installed a Knight of the Garter, and nominated Lord-Treasurer. This nobleman was a distinguished Military Commander, and celebrated as Lord Surrey, for the victory he had achieved over the Scottish Monarch at Flodden, in which that Prince (JAMES IV.) fell, 9 Sept., 1513. His Grace m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Frederick Tilney, Knt. of Ashwell Thorpe, Co. Norfolk, and widow

- viii. Thomas, who, aspiring to the hand of Lady Margaret Douglas, dau. of MARGARET, Queen of Scotland, and niece of HENRY VIII., was attainted of treason, and died a prisoner in the Tower of London, in 1536.
- ix. Anne, m. to John Vere, Earl of Oxford.
- x. Dorothy, m. to Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby.
- xi. Elizabeth, m. to Henry Ratcliffe, Earl of Sussex.

The Duke d. 21 May, 1524, and was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS, 3rd Duke, who was attainted in 1546, when his honors became forfeited; but he was restored in 1553, and installed a Knight of the Garter. His Grace m. 1st, the Princess Anne, 3rd dau. of EDWARD IV., but had no surviving issue; and, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, by whom he had

HENRY, K.G., Earl of Surrey, one of the brightest ornaments of the house of Howard, whose iniquitous and savage execution was the last tyrannical act of HENRY VIII. This distinguished statesman, poet, and warrior, Sir Egerton Bridges thus characterises—"Excellent in arts, and in arms; a man of learning, a genius, and a hero; of a generous temper, and a refined heart, he united all the gallantry and unbroken spirit of a rude age, with all the elegance and grace of a polished era. With a splendour of descent, in possession of the highest honors and abundant wealth, he relaxed not his efforts to deserve distinction by his personal worth. Conspicuous in the rough exercises of tilts and tournaments; and commanding armies with skill and bravery in expeditions against the Scots under his father, he found time, at a period when our literature was rude and barbarous, to cultivate his mind with all the exquisite spirit of the models of Greece and Rome: to catch the excellences of the revived muses of Italy, and to produce in his own language composition, which, in simplicity, perspicuity, graceful ornaments, and just and natural thought, exhibited a shining contrast with the works of his predecessors, and an example, which his successors long attempted in vain to follow." The Earl of Surrey underwent the penalty of his unjust sentence during the lifetime of his father (whom the death of the tyrant preserved from the same fate), 20 Jan., 1546, leaving issue by his wife, Frances, dau. of John Vere, Earl of Oxford,

THOMAS, successor to his grandfather.

HENRY, K.G., created in 1603, Earl of Northampton, d. unm.

His Grace d. 18 July, 1554, and was s. by his grandson, THOMAS, 4th Duke, K.G., who m. 1st, Mary, dau. and eventually heir of Henry Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage), by whom he had an only son, PHILIP; and, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Audley, of Walden, by whom he left two sons,

This nobleman shared the fate of his distinguished father; for, being attainted of high treason, for his communication with MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS, he was beheaded in 1572, when all his honors became forfeited. His eldest son,

PHILIP, however, inherited, in right of his mother, the feudal Earldom of Arundel, as owner of Arundel Castle, in Sussex, with the Baronies of Fitz-Alan, Clun, Osvaldestrie, and Maltravers, and was summoned to Parliament as Earl of Arundel; but being attainted in 1590, he died a prisoner in the Tower in 1596, leaving by his wife, Anne, sister and co-heir of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland, an only son,

Sir William filled the offices of Chief Gentleman of the Bedchamber, Usher of the Black Rod, Constable of Sudley Castle, Constable of the Castle of Gloucester; and, after the battle of Spurs, in which he took a distinguished part, he was constituted Chancellor of Ireland, for life, which he officiated by deputy. co-heir of the Barony of Latimer; co-heir of one moiety of the Baronies of Scales and Plaitz; and a representative of one of the co-heirs of the Barony of Badlesmere; a Knight of the Garter, and a Privy-Counsellor; b. 20 April, 1785; m. 29 April, 1817, Charlotte-Florentine, 2nd dau. of Edward, 1st Earl of Powis, but has no issue; s. as 3rd Duke, at the demise of his father, 10 July, 1817. His Grace was accredited Ambassador-Extraordinary, in 1825, from his Britannic Majesty, to assist at the coronation of CHARLES X., King of France, and was subsequently Lord-Lieut. of Ireland.

The Duke is Lord-Lieut. and Vice-Admiral of the Co. of Northumberland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Constable of Launceston Castle, and High-Steward of Launceston. Her Grace of Northumberland is Governess to H. R. H. the Princess Victoria.

Lineage.

The House of Percy was founded in England by one of the Norman chieftains (William de Percy) who accompanied WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, in 1066; and it derives the name from the village of Percy, near Villieu. The family of Percy, of Normandy, deduce its pedigree from Geoffrey (son of Mainfred, a Danish chieftain), who assisted Rollo, in 912, in subjugating that principality, and acquired considerable possessions there.

WILLIAM DE PERCY, being high in favor with the victorious Duke, obtained, according to Madon, in his "Baronia Anglica," a Barony of thirty Knights' fees from that monarch, in his new dominions, and thus became a Feudal Lord of the Realm from the Conquest. This Lord William de Percy, who was distinguished amongst his contemporaries by the addition of Algerons (William with the Whiskers), whence his posterity have constantly borne the name of Algeron, restored, or rather refounded, the famous Abbey of St. Hilda, in Yorkshire, of which his brother, Serlo de Percy, became first Prior. Accompanying, however, Duke Robert, in the first crusade, 1096, he died at Mountjoy, near Jerusalem, the celebrated eminence whence the pilgrims of the Cross first viewed the Holy City, leaving four sons and two daus., by his wife, Emma de Port, a lady of Saxon descent, whose lands were amongst those bestowed upon him by the Conqueror, and, according to an ancient writer, 'he wedded by that was very heire to them, in discharging of his conscience.' His Lordship was s. in his feudal rights and possessions by his eldest son,

ALAN DE PERCY, 2nd Baron, surnamed the GREAT ALAN, who m. EMMA, dau. of Gilbert de Gaunt (whom Gilbert was son of Baldwin, Earl of Flanders, and nephew of QUEEN MAUD, wife of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR); and was s. by his eldest son, WILLIAM DE PERCY, 3rd Baron; at whose decease, the eldest branch of the first race of Percys, from Normandy, became extinct in the male line, and their great inheritance devolved upon his Lordship's two daus. (by Alice de Tunbridge, dau. of Richard, Earl of Clare, who was usually styled De Tunbridge, from his Castle of that name), the ladies MAUD and AGNES DE PERCY, successively.

MAUDE DE PERCY, the elder, was 1st wife of William de Newburgh, Earl of Warwick, by whom (who d. in the Holy Land, A.D. 1184) she had no issue. Her Ladyship d. in 1204-5, and then the whole possessions of the Percys descended to the family of her sister,

AGNES DE PERCY, who m. Joceline, of Lorrain, brother of Queen ADELICIA, 2nd wife of HENRY I., and son of Godfrey Barbatos, Duke of Lower Lorrain, and Count of Brabant, who was descended from the Emperor CHARLEMAGNE. Her Ladyship would only consent, however, to this great alliance, upon condition that Joceline should adopt either the surname or arms of Percy; the former of which he accordingly assumed, and retained his own paternal coat, in order to perpetuate his claim to the principality of his father, should the elder line of the reigning Duke at any period become extinct. The matter is thus stated in the great old pedigree, at Sion House; "The ancient arms of Hainault this Lord Jocelin retained, and gave his children the surname of Percl." Of this illustrious alliance there were several children, of whom,

I. HENRY DE PERCY, the eldest son, who appears to have died before his mother, m. Isabel, dau. of Adam de Brus, Lord of Skelton, with whom he had the manor of Levington, for which he and his heirs were to repair to Skelton Castle every Christmas-day, and to lead the lady of the Castle from her chamber to the chapel to mass, and thence to her chamber again, and after dining with her, to depart. This Henry left two sons,

1 WILLIAM, of whom presently. 2 Henry, ancestor of the Percys of Hesse, Sussex.

II. RICHARD DE PERCY, the youngest son of Agnes and Joceline, got possession of the entire property of his aunt, Maud, Countess of Warwick, and even of a great proportion of that of his mother, and retained the same during the principal part of his life; at length, subsequently to infinite litigation, it was settled between him and his nephew, William de Percy, to whom the inheritance belonged, after a solemn hearing before the King in person, 6 July, 1234 (18th HENRY III.), that the estates should be divided into equal portions between the parties during Richard's life; and that after his death, all the ancient patrimony of the Percy family should devolve upon his nephew, aforesaid; a small reservation having been made for Richard's son and heir, Henry de Percy. This Richard de Percy continued for the whole of his life at the head of the family, and enjoyed all its baronial rights. He was one of those powerful Feudal Lords who took up arms, in 1215, against King JOHN, and having a principal hand in extorting the GREAT CHARTER of English freedom, was chosen one of the twenty-five Guardians to see the MAGNA CHARTA duly observed. He d. about 1244, and then his nephew,

WILLIAM DE PERCY, came into full possession of all those rights and properties which had been usurped at the decease of his mother; but did not live long to enjoy them. He d. in 1245, and was s. by his son (by his 2nd wife, Elena, dau. of Ingelram de Balliol, by whom he acquired, in dower, Dalton, afterwards called Dalton Percy, in the Bishopric of Durham),

HENRY DE PERCY, who m. Alianore, dau. of John Plantagenet, Earl of Warren and Surrey; and, dying in 1272, was s. by his only surviving son,

HENRY DE PERCY, 8th Feudal Lord, who was summoned to Parliament from 6 Feb., 1299, (27th EDWARD I.) to 29 July, 1315 (8th EDWARD II.) This nobleman obtained, 19 Nov., 1309, from Anthony Beck, Bishop of Durham, by purchase, a grant of the Barony of Alnwick, Co. Northumberland. His Lordship was one of the great Barons who subscribed, in 1301, the celebrated letter to Pope BONIFACE VIII., upon the attempt of his Holiness to interpose in the affairs of the Kingdom, intimating "That their King was not to answer in judgment, for any rights of the Crown of England, before any tribunal under heaven, &c., and that, by the help of God, they would resolutely, and with all their force, maintain against all men." * He d. in 1315, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY DE PERCY, 2nd Lord Percy, of Alnwick. This nobleman had a grant from the Crown in the 2nd of EDWARD III. of the reversion of the Barony and Castle of Warkworth, &c. He had summons to Parliament from 1322 to the time of his death, 26 Feb., 1351-2, when he was s. by his eldest son (by Idonia, dau. of Robert Lord Clifford),

HENRY DE PERCY, 3rd Lord Percy, of Alnwick; who in the lifetime of his father had participated in the glories of Cressy (26 Aug., 1346). His Lordship m. 1st, in her Ladyship's 14th year, the Lady Mary Plantagenet, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, which Henry was son of Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, Leicester, &c., 2nd son of HENRY III.; by this marriage his Lordship had two sons,

HENRY, his successor.

Thomas, created in 1397, Earl of Worcester, K.G., a very eminent Warrior and Statesman in the reigns of EDWARD III., RICHARD II., and HENRY IV. (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

His Lordship m. 2ndly, Joan, dau. and heir of John de Orbey, of Lincolnshire, one of the Barons in the reign of EDWARD III., by whom he left one dau., Mary, who m. John Lord Ros, of Hamelake, but d. s. p. in 1366. He d. 17 June, 1368, and was s. by his elder son,

HENRY, 4th Lord Percy, of Alnwick, a distinguished Military Commander in the reign of EDWARD III., who, assisting as Marshal of England, at the coronation of RICHARD II., was advanced, on the same day, 16 July, 1377, to the Earldom of Northumberland, with remainder to his heirs generally, and, like a Barony in fee, transmissible, it would appear, to female as well as male heirs. His Lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Ralph, Lord Nevill, of Raby, and had issue,

I. HENRY, (Sir) the renowned Hotspur, so celebrated by all our Historians. He fought the famous battle of OTTERBURN, near the Cheviot Hills, in Northumberland (Chevy Chase), where James, Earl of Douglas, was slain, and himself and his brother, Sir Ralph Percy, made prisoners. He m. Philippa, dau. of Edward Mortimer, Earl of March, by Philippa, dau. and heir of Lionel Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, and falling at the battle of Shrewsbury, in 1403, left issue,

1 HENRY, who inherited as 2nd Earl of Northumberland. 2 Elizabeth, m. 1st, to John, Lord Clifford, and 2ndly, to Ralph, Earl of Westmorland.

II. Thomas, (Sir) m. Elizabeth, elder dau. and co-heir of David Strabolgi, Earl of Athol, by whom (who m. 2ndly, Sir Henry Scrope) he had issue,

Henry, who left two daus., viz. -

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Thomas, Lord Burgh, and 2ndly, to Sir William Lucy.

Margaret, m. 1st, to Lord Grey, of Codnor, and 2ndly, to Richard, Earl of Oxford.

III. Ralph, (Sir) m. Philippa, the other dau. and co-heir of David Strabolgi, Earl of Athol, but d. s. p.

IV. Alan.

V. Margaret.

The Earl espoused 2ndly, MAUD, sister and heir of Anthony, Lord Lucy, which Anthony settled upon his Lordship, and his heirs, the honor and Castle of Cocker-mouth, with other great estates, on condition that the arms of his sister should be for ever quartered with those of the Percies. In the 7th year of the same Monarch, the Earl, having been elected one of the Knights of the Garter, the King bestowed upon him the Robes of the Order out of the Royal Wardrobe. In some years afterwards, however, being proclaimed a traitor, and his lands declared forfeited by King RICHARD, his Lordship, in conjunction with his son, Sir Henry Percy, and Henry, Duke of Lancaster, effected the dethronement of that Monarch, and placed the Crown upon the head of Henry, Duke of Lancaster, under the title of HENRY IV. Again dissatisfied with the government, the Duke is charged with concerting the Rebellion, in which his son, HOTSPUR, and his brother, the Earl of Worcester, engaged in 1403, for transferring the sceptre to Mortimer, Earl of March, then a boy. Of these two eminent persons, Sir Henry Percy fell, performing prodigies of valour, at Battle-field, near Shrewsbury, 21 July, 1403; and Thomas Percy, Earl of Worcester, was beheaded, after the battle, at Shrewsbury. The Earl of Northumberland fell subsequently (29 Feb., 1407-8), in arms against the King, at Bramham Moor, near Halsewood, when his honors became forfeited under an attainder, but were restored, in 1414, to his grandson,

HENRY PERCY, 2nd Earl of Northumberland, who m. Lady Eleanor Nevil, dau. of Ralph, 1st Earl of Westmorland, and Joan de Beaufort, dau. of John of Gaunt, and aunt of HENRY V. Of this nobleman and his Countess and their issue, the following account is given in a very curious MS. preserved in the British Museum, and there said to be extracted " Ex Registro Monasterij de Whitbye." " Henry Percy, the son of Sir Henry Percy, that was slayne at Shrewesbery, and of Elizabeth, the dau. of the Erle of Marche, after the death of his father and graunt-syre, was exiled into Scotland in the time of HENRY V.: by the labour of Johanne, the Countess of Westmorland (whose dau., Alianor, he wedded in coming into England), he recovered the King's grace, and the Co. of Northumberland, so was the 2nd Earl of Northumberland. And of this Alianor his wife, he begat IX sonnes and III daus., whose names be Johanne, that is buried at Whitbye; Thomas (created), Lord Egremont; Katheyne Gray, of Ruthyn (wife of Edmund, Lord Grey, afterwards Earl of Kent); Sir Raffe Percy; William Percy, a Byshopp; Richard Percy; John, that died without issue; another John (called by Vincent, in his MS. Baronage at the Herald's office, John Percy, senior, of Warkworth), George Percy, Clerk; Henry, that dyed without issue; besides the eldest sonne and successor, Henry, 3rd Erle of Northumberland." His Lordship, who was Lord-High-Constable, fell at the battle of St. Albans, 23 May, 1455, under the banner of HENRY VI., and was s. by his eldest surviving son.

HENRY, 3rd Earl, who m. Eleanor, dau. and sole heir of Richard Poynings, who died in the lifetime of his father, Lord Poynings; by which marriage the Baronies of Poynings, Fitzpayne, and Bryan, came into the family of Percy; and Sir Henry Percy was summoned to Parliament, while his father, the Earl of Northumberland, yet lived (29th HENRY VI.) as Baron Poynings. His Lordship fell leading the van of Lancastrians, sword in hand, at the battle of Towton, 29 March, 1461, and his honors became subsequently forfeited by an act of attainder, but were restored to his only son.

HENRY, 4th Earl, K.G., who was confined in the Tower of London from the death of his father until the 27th Oct., 1469, when, being brought before EDWARD IV. at his palace of Westminster, he subscribed an oath of allegiance, and was restored to his freedom and dignity, although the reversal of his father's attainder does not appear upon the rolls of Parliament. The King had previously created John, Lord Montague, Earl of Northumberland, but, upon the re-establishment of the rightful Earl, Lord Montague was created Marquess of Montague. This Henry, 4th Earl, fell a victim, in 1489, to the avarice of HENRY VII. In that year Parliament having granted the King a subsidy for carrying on the war in Bretagne, the Earl of Northumberland, as Lord-Lieut. of his County, was empowered to enforce the same; but the tax causing a general commotion, his Lordship wrote to inform the King of the discontent, and praying an abatement, to which HENRY peremptorily replied, "that not a penny should be abated;" which message being delivered incautiously by the Earl to the populace, who had assembled to complain of their grievances, they broke into his house (supposing him to be the promoter of their sufferings), Cocklodge, in Yorkshire, and murdered his Lordship and some of his attendants, 28 April, 1489. The Earl was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY-ALGERNON, 5th Earl, K.G., who m. Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Spencer, Knt., of Spencer-Combe, Devon (by Eleanor, his wife, dau. and, at length, co-heir of Edmund Beaufort, Duke of Somerset), and had issue,

His Lordship d. in 1527, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY-ALGERNON, 6th Earl, K.G. This nobleman entertained a strong and early passion for the beautiful ANNE-BOLEYN, but urged by the irresistible influence of HENRY VIII., his father compelled him to renounce all intention of making that lady his wife, and to espouse the Lady Mary Talbot, dau. of George, Earl of Shrewsbury. His Lordship d. without issue, in 1537, and his brother, Sir Thomas Percy, having been previously attainted and executed, all the honors of the family became forfeited, and the title of Duke of Northumberland was conferred, by EDWARD VI., upon John Dudley, Earl of Warwick; but that nobleman having forfeited his life and honors by treason against Queen MARY, in 1553, her Majesty was pleased to advance, by letters patent, dated 30 April, 1557,

THOMAS PERCY, son of the attainted Sir Thomas Percy, to the degree of a Baron, by the titles of Baron Percy, of Cockermouth; Baron Poynings, Lucy, Bryen, and Fitz-Payne; and, on the day following, his Lordship was created Earl of Northumberland, with remainder to Henry Percy, his brother, &c. This nobleman having conspired against Queen ELIZABETH, was beheaded at York, 22 Aug., 1572 (avowing the Pope's supremacy, and affirming the realm to be in a state of schism, and those obedient to ELIZABETH no better than heretics), when his honors would have fallen under his attainder, but for the revolutionary clause in favor of his brother,

The Earl having been committed to the Tower, for participating in a supposed plot in favor of MARY, Queen of Scots, was found dead in his bed there, wounded by three bullets from a pistol, 21 June, 1585, when he was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 9th Earl, K.G. This nobleman, after every effort to involve him in the Gunpowder Plot proved in vain, was "cast (says Osborne) into the Star Chamber," by which he was sentenced to a fine of £30,000, with imprisonment in the Tower during his Majesty's pleasure, and actually suffered several years' incarceration. His Lordship m. Dorothy, sister of Queen ELIZABETH's favorite, Essex, and widow of Sir Thomas Perrot, Knt., and, dying 5 Nov., 1632, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

ALGERNON, 10th Earl, K.G., who had been summoned to Parliament, in the lifetime of his father, as Baron Percy. This nobleman took an active part, during the Civil Wars, against CHARLES I., but was entirely free of any participation in his murder. He subsequently promoted the Restoration. His Lordship d. 13 Oct., 1668, and was s. by his only son (by Lady Elizabeth Howard, 2nd dau. of Theophilus, 2nd Earl of Suffolk),

JOCELINE, 11th Earl. This nobleman m. Elizabeth, youngest dau. of Thomas Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton, Lord-High-Treasurer of England, by whom he left, at his decease, 21 May, 1670, an only dau., ELIZABETH, of whom presently, but no male issue, when the honors created by Queen MARY ceased. By this marriage the Duchess had thirteen children, the eldest surviving of whom,

* CLAIM OF JAMES PERCY,

(KNOWN AS THE TRUNK-MAKER),

To the Honors and Estates of the Family of Percy, extracted from a Case addressed to CHARLES II.

The claimant deduced his descent from

SIR INGLEHAM PERCY, 3rd son of Henry, 5th Earl, who, he alleged, left two sons, HENRY and Robert. The elder,

HENRY PERCY, m. the dau. of one Tibbott, and had three sons, James, William, and HENRY. The two elder d. unm.; but the younger,

HENRY PERCY, m. Lydea, dau. of Mr. Robert Cope, of Horton, in Northamptonshire, and had three sons, Henry, who d. young.

JAMES, the trunk-maker, and claimant to the PERCY HONORS.

Henry, d. young.

JAMES PERCY, the claimant, arrived in England to prosecute his claim in 1670, and entered the same in the Signet-Office, 3 Feb., 1671. In 1674, he brought an action-at-law against one John Clerk, for scandal, in declaring that he had been an impostor, &c., but upon the trial he was nonsuited, owing, he declares, to the collusion of his attorney; and he states that the Lord-Chief-Justice Hales, dissatisfied with the decision, stood up, and said aloud, in open Court, "that the claimant had proved himself a true Percy, by father, mother, grandfather, and grandmother, and of the blood and family of the Percys of Northumberland; and that he did verily believe the claimant was cousin and next heir male to Joceline Percy, late Earl of Northumberland, only he was afraid he had taken the descent a little too late;" and Lord Hales is further stated to have said, when entering his coach, to Lord Shaftesbury, "I verily believe he (James Percy) hath as much right to the Earldom of Northumberland, as I have to this coach and horses, which I have bought and paid for." The claimant brought a subsequent action against another of his adversaries, one Wright, for slander, in declaring his illegitimacy, &c., and the case was tried before Lord Chief-Justice Rainsford, when, having proved his legitimacy and pedigree, he had a verdict for £300 damages. After this he appears to have had a long litigation in the Exchequer, with Edward Craister, Esq., Sheriff of Northumberland, for the £20 annual rent out of that shire attached to the Earldom, and it must be owned that all the difficulties, which wealth and power could devise, were thrown in the way of anything like a fair decision of the merits of the case.

SIR HUGH SMITHSON, Bart. (see "Family of Smithson" at foot), who had married his Grace's dau., the Lady Elizabeth Seymour, and who succeeded to those honors upon the demise of the Duke in 1750, obtaining in the same year, an Act of Parliament to allow himself and his Countess to assume the surname and arms of PERCY. His Lordship was installed a Knight of the Garter in 1757; and created Earl Percy and Duke of Northumberland 18 Oct., 1766. His Grace obtained the Barony of Louvaine, of Alnwick, with remainder to his 2nd son, Lord Algernon Percy, by patent, dated 28 Jan., 1784. He d. in 1786, and was s. by the eldest son,

HUGH, 2nd Duke, K.G., b. 14 Aug., 1742, who succeeded to the Baronies in fee upon the decease of his mother. He m. 1st, 2 July, 1764, Anne, dau. of John, Earl of Bute, which marriage produced no issue, and was dissolved by Act of Parliament in 1779; and, 2ndly, in the same year, Frances-Julia, dau. of Peter Burrell, Esq. of Beckenham, Co. Kent, by whom he left

HUGH, present Duke.

Algernon, of the Royal Navy, b. 15 Dec., 1792, created Baron Prudhoe. (See that dignity.)

Agnes, m. 16 Aug., 1821, to Frederick-Thomas Buller, Esq., Capt. Coldstream Guards.

Emily, m. in 1810, to James, Lord Glenlyon.

His Grace d. 10 July, 1817.

Creations.—Bart., 2 Aug., 1606. Baron and Earl, 2 Oct., 1749. Earl and Duke, 18 Oct., 1766; Baroness in fee, through various alliances of the ancient Percys. SIR HARRIS NICOLAS, in his very able SYNOPSIS, comes to the following conclusions regarding the Baronies supposed to be vested in his Grace of Northumberland.

1. That according to the fair deduction from modern decisions, the ancient BARONY OF PERCY, created by writ of summons, 6 Feb., 1299, became extinct on the death of Henry-Algernon, 6th Earl, in 1537.

2. That the BARONY OF PERCY of Cockermouth, and Pelworth, with the Baronies of Poynings, Lucy, Bryan and Fitzpayne, created by the patent of 30 April, 1557, became EXTINCT on the death of Joceline, 11th Earl, in 1670.

3. That Algernon Seymour, afterwards Duke of Somerset, and 1st Earl of Northumberland, was erroneously placed in the precedency of the ancient Barony on being summoned to Parliament in 1722.

4. That Hugh Percy, grandson of the said Duke, and Baron Percy, jure matris, and Hugh, present Duke of Northumberland, were likewise erroneously placed in the precedency of the original Barony.

5. That the only Barony of Percy vested in his Grace, Hugh, present Duke of Northumberland, is the Barony in fee, created by writ of summons to his great-grandfather, ALGERNON SEYMOUR, in 1722.

Family of Smithson.

The family of Smithson derives its surname from an ancient town in the North Riding of Yorkshire, called Smithton, or Smethton, in which district the Smithsons have possessed considerable estates since the Conquest.

In Domesday Book the name is written Smethton, and, MALORUM de Smethton held a manor there.

ROBERT DE SMYTHON, brothers, or first cousins, and

THOMAS DE SMYTHON, } were both summoned to appear on a jury in an inquisition taken on Thursday, the feast of St. Catherine, anno 1333; and it appears that the family about this period removed from Smithton to Yafford, which latter estate

JOHN SMYTHON exchanged, in 1441, with Robert Danby, for the lands of Newsome, &c. From this John we pass to his lineal descendant,

ANTHONY SMYTHON, Esq. of Newsome, b. in 1565, who m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of George Catherick, Esq. (the representative of a family which ranked amongst the most ancient gentry of Yorkshire), and had several children, of which the 2nd son,

Lineage.

This family paternally derives from the ancient Milesian family of O'Reilly, Princes of Lower Brefney, (now in the Co. Cavan). Of the O'Reillys, Gough, in his additions to Camden, makes the following observations: "Whence Mr. Camden received his information that the O'Reillys derive from the Riddleys does not concern us to enquire. Spencer falls into a similar error; he derives the Mac Mahons from the Veres of England, because the one in Latin, and the other in Irish, have some affinity in sound to the name of bour pig in those languages; but both are equally the impositions of etymology. Before the English got footing in Ireland, the O'Reillys of Cavan, the Mac Mahons of Monagan, the Mac Guires of Fermanagh, the O'Donels of Donegal, with other chieftains in their own septs, were tributaries to O'Nial, of Ter Oen. Such of the descendants of those chieftains as I have conversed with, seem rather to glory in their Milesian extraction. When Hugh O'Nial threw off his allegiance to Queen ELIZABETH, he also threw off the title of Earl of Tyrone, saying that 'he would rather be O'Nial of Ulster, than King of Spain.'"

OGILVIE, SIR GEORGE - MUSGRAVE, of Barras, Co. Kincardine; b. 10 Aug., 1779; s. as 6th Bart., on the decease of his father, in 1799.

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of the family of Ogilvie, of Innerquharity (Barta.), springing from

ANDREW OGILVIE, son of Sir John Ogilvie, the first possessor of the Barony of Innerquharity; from whom we pass to his lineal descendant,

I. GEORGE OGILVIE, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of the Hon. John Douglas, of Barras, Co. Kincardine, which estate he afterwards purchased from his brother-in-law, Sir John Douglas. During the Civil Wars, Mr. Ogilvie, who had been for many years an Officer in the King's Service, was nominated Lieut.-Governor of the fort and castle of Dunottar, wherein the Regalia of Scotland had been deposited; and although obliged, after a protracted siege, to surrender to the arms of the usurper, Captain Ogilvie contrived, nevertheless, to preserve those invaluable insignia of Royalty in security until the restoration of the monarchy. The Regalia were removed from the castle prior to its surrender by Mrs. Grainger, the wife of Mr. James Grainger, Minister of Kinness, who passed through the besieging Army, attended by a servant, with a bundle of flax upon her back, in which lay concealed the crown, sword, and sceptre of Scotland. After the Restoration, Captain Ogilvie delivered up those valuable ensigns to the Earl Marischal, and was created, in consideration of his fidelity and sufferings, a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 3 March 1661, obtaining a warrant at the same time, to the Lord-Lyon, to matriculate his coat of arms in the Lyon Register, conformable to the blazon therein stated; in which he was allowed to bear a crowned thistle, the Royal Badge of Scotland, with the motto,

"Præclarum regi et regno servitium." Sir George Ogilvie was s. at his decease by his only son,

The Earl s. on the demise of his grandmother, 20 Dec., 1831. His Lordship is one of the Representative Peers.

Lineage.

The EARLDOM OF ORKNEY was claimed by

HENRY SINCLAIR, eldest son of Sir William Sinclair, of Roslyn, and Isabel, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Malise, Earl of Strathern, Caithness, and Orkney, and his claim was admitted by HAKON, 6th King of Norway, in 1379, but his investiture was burdened with severe conditions. He was considered as being appointed Governor and Earl of Orkney, by an absolute grace of the King; was bound to serve him with 100 men completely armed, when required; to defend Orkney against any invasion with the whole power of his house, &c. From this period the earldom remained in the family of Sinclair, until JAMES III. having acquired the Islands of Orkney in marriage with Margaret of Denmark, in 1469, William Sinclair, 3rd Earl of Orkney, resigned the Earldom, the next year, into his Majesty's hands, and it was annexed to the crown by act of Parliament, in 1471; the late Earl being stiled instead, Earl of Caithness and Lord Sinclair. The Orkneys thenceforward conferred no dignity until the year 1557, when

JAMES HEPBURN, 4th Earl of Bothwell, was created Duke of Orkney, 12 May, in that year, three days after his marriage with MARY, Queen of Scots, but he forfeited all his honors in the December following.

ROBERT STEWART, natural son of JAMES V., abbot of Holyrood-House, but who conformed to the protestant faith, in 1559, had a grant of the crown lands of Orkney and Zetland in 1565, and was created EARL OF ORKNEY, in 1581. He m. Lady JANE KENNEDY, eldest dau. of Gilbert, 3rd Earl of Cassilis, and had issue,

Miss Isabella Graem, of Graemshall, and left a dau., Jane, m. to Robert Richan, Esq. of Linklater, head of an ancient and distinguished Danish family, which settled in the Orkneys in the 9th century. He left a son, the late Capt. William Richan, of Hapness, who left a son and several daughters.

Col. John Stewart, of Newark, who d. s. p.

He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

PATRICK STEWART, 2nd Earl, who was condemned for high treason, and beheaded at the market-cross of Edinburgh, 6 Feb., 1614. He d. s. p., and his estates and honors were forfeited to the Crown; the former of which, King JAMES VI. granted to Bishop Law.

So much for the extinct Lords Orkney; we now proceed with the extant.

LORD GEORGE HAMILTON, 5th son of Lord William Douglas (created Duke of Hamilton for life), by Anne, Duchess of Hamilton, was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland, 3 Jan., 1696, by the titles of Baron Dechmont, Viscount Kirkwall, and EARL OF ORKNEY, to him and the heirs male of his body, which failing, to the heirs whatsoever of his body. The 2nd, Frances, married the Earl of Scarborough; and the youngest, Harriet, married John, Earl of Cork and Omory. The Earl of Orkney was a celebrated Military Commander, and distinguished himself in the wars between JAMES and WILLIAM, in Ireland; and, subsequently, participated in the brilliant triumphs of the reign of Queen ANNE. Lineage.

The antiquity of this family is indisputable; but its origin is not so clearly established. The surname, however, admits of no doubt as springing from the Chief Butlerage of Ireland,* conferred by HENRY II. upon

THEOBALD WALTER, in 1177, who had accompanied him into that kingdom in 1171. This Theobald was eldest son of Herveus Walter (one of the companions of the Conqueror), by Maud de Valois, and brother of Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1193 (translated from the See of Salisbury, while a prisoner in the Holy Land), and subsequently Chancellor, Chief-Justice, and Treasurer of England. Theobald Walter, having returned to England, afterwards accompanied Prince JOHN into Ireland, anno 1185. He was possessed of the Baronies of Upper Ormond, Lower Ormond, and numerous other territories; and, dying in 1206, was s. by his only son (by his wife, Maud, dau. and heir of Robert Vavasour, a great Baron of Yorkshire),

THEOBALD, who first assumed the surname of Le Botiler, or Butler, in 1221, and was appointed Lord-Justice of Ireland, in 1247. He m. Joan, eldest sister and co-heir of John de Marisco, a considerable Baron in Ireland, to whose estates in that kingdom, and in England, his posterity succeeded; and, dying in 1248, was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD LE BOTILER, who m. Margery, eldest dau. of Richard de Burgo (ancestor of the Lords Clanricarde), by whom he acquired a considerable accession of landed property, and was s. by his son,

THEOBALD, 4th Butler, who sat as a Baron in the Parliament of Ireland, and assisted EDWARD I. in his wars in Scotland. He m. Joan, eldest dau. of John Fitz-Geoffry, Lord of Kirtling, and Baron of Berkhamstead, Lord-Justice of Ireland, and youngest son of the famous Geoffry Fitzpiers, Earl of Essex, and Lord-Justiciary of England, by whom he had a numerous family. This Lord Theobald, who obtained a grant from EDWARD I. of the prize of wines in Ireland,† d. in 1285, and was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD, 5th Butler, who sat in Parliament as a Baron, his name appearing 5th upon the roll. He d. unm. in 1290, and was s. in his Barony and estates by his brother,

EDMOND. This feudal Lord received the honor of Knighthood, in London, in 1300. In 1312, he was appointed Lord-Deputy of Ireland; in 1314, Chief-Governor, under the title of Lord-Justice; and, on the 1st Sept., 1315, created Earl of Carrick-Mac-Griffyne. His Lordship m. in 1302, Joan, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Kildare, by whom, with two daus., he left three sons,

JAMES, his successor.

John, from whom the present Earl of Carrick derives. Lawrence.

The Earl, going on a pilgrimage into Spain, to the shrine

* For a very interesting account of the hereditary office of "CHIEF-BUTLER," and of the ORMONDE FAMILY, see "A view of the Legal Institutions, &c., of Ireland, by the late William Lynch, Esq., F.S.A.;" decidedly the ablest work, as yet published, upon the feudal dignities of that kingdom. Prince JOHN confirmed the grant of Butlerage upon the wines imported into Ireland to Theobald Walter, and when confirming and enlarging the incorporation charters of Ireland, he reserved, according to Mr. Lynch, a privilege, "That out of each ship that thither should happen to come, his officer (meaning Lord Theobald, who is styled 'Pincerna' in those charters) might choose two hogsheads of wine for his use, for forty shillings, that is to say, for twenty shillings each hogshead, and nothing more, unless at the pleasure of the merchant."

† This grant was purchased in 1810, from Walter, Marquess of Ormonde, for £216,000, and the contract received the sanction of Parliament by an Act passed 31 May, 1811.

of St. James of Compostella, died after his return to London, 13 Sept., 1321, and was s. by his eldest son, JAMES, 2nd Earl of Carrick and 7th Butler. This nobleman was a minor at the decease of his father, but obtained license, in four years after, for the sum of 2000 marks, to marry whomsoever he pleased; he accordingly wedded Eleanor, 2nd dau. of Humphrey de Bohun, 4th Earl of Hereford and Essex, HIGH-CONSTABLE of England, by Elizabeth, dau. of EDWARD I.; and was created, in consequence of this alliance, by EDWARD III. 2 Nov., 1338, Earl of Ormonde. His Lordship had a renewed grant of the prisage of wines, 5 June, 1372 (which had been resumed by the crown in 1344), and a grant of the regalities, liberties, &c. of the Co. of Tipperary, with the rights of a palatine in that County for life. He d. 6 Jan., 1337-8, and was s. by his elder son.

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Ormonde, called the Noble Earl, on account of being great-grandson of EDWARD I. In 1369 and 1360, his Lordship was appointed Lord-Justice of Ireland, and dying in 1382, was s. by his son (by Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Darcy, Lord-Justice of Ireland),

JAMES, 3rd Earl, who, by building, and making the Castle of Gowran his usual residence, was commonly called Earl of Gowran. His Lordship purchased, in 1391, the Castle of Kilkenny, from the heirs of Sir Hugh le de Spencer, Earl of Gloucester (an edifice erected in the beginning of the 13th century, by William, Earl Marshal), which he made his chief place of abode, and which has ever since been so considered by the head of the family. In 1392, 1401, and 1404, his Lordship was Lord-Justice of Ireland. He m. Anne, dau. of John, Lord Welles, and had issue,

JAMES, his successor.

Richard, (Sir) of Polestown, Co. Kilkenny, m. Catharine, dau. of Gildas O'Kelly, Lord of the Co. of Cavan, and was s. by his son,

Edmund, (Sir) who was s. by his son,

James, (Sir) m. Sabina, dau. of Donald Reogh Mac Murrough Cavenagh, Prince of his sept, and dying in 1487, left with other issue, PIERCE, of whom hereafter, as 8th Earl of Ormonde.

His Lordship d. in 1405, and was s. by his elder son,

JAMES, 4th Earl, who was called the White Earl, and esteemed a very learned personage. His Lordship prevailed upon HENRY V. to create a King of Arms in Ireland, by the title of Ireland King of Arms (a designation altered by HENRY VIII. to Ulster, King of Arms), and he gave lands for ever to the Herald's College. He was Lord-Justice of Ireland in 1407, and again in 1440, in which latter year he had a grant of the temporalities of the See of Cashel, for ten years after the death of the archbishop, Richard O'Hedian. His Lordship m. 1st, Johan, dau. of Gerald, 5th Earl of Kildare, by whom he had three sons, successive Earls, and two daus.; and, 2ndly, in 1432, Elizabeth, dau. of William Beauchamp, Lord Bergavenny, and widow of John, Lord Grey of Wilton. He d. in 1452, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 5th Earl, who was created, by HENRY VI. 8 July, 1449, for his fidelity to the Lancastrian interest, Earl of Wiltshire, in the Peerage of England. In 1451 he was made Lord-Deputy of Ireland, and the next year succeeding his father in the title of ORMONDE, was appointed Lord-Lieut. for ten years. In 1455 he was constituted LORD HIGH TREASURER OF ENGLAND, and afterwards made a Knight of the Garter. Falling into the hands of the Yorkists, after the battle of Towton, his Lordship was beheaded, at Newcastle, 1 May, 1461, when the Earldom of Wiltshire expired, as would that of Ormonde, the Earl's brother and heir being also at the battle of Towton, and, in consequence, attainted, had not EDWARD IV. restored him in blood, and so enabled him to succeed, as

JOHN, 6th Earl of Ormonde. This nobleman was considered one of the first gentlemen of the age in which he lived; and EDWARD IV. is reported to have said, "that if good breeding and liberal qualities were lost in the world, they might be all found in the Earl of Ormonde." He was complete master of the languages of Europe, and was sent Ambassador to its principal Courts. He d. in 1478, in the Holy Land, having, in a fit of devotion, made a visit to Jerusalem, and was s. by his brother,

THOMAS, 7th Earl, who was also attainted, but restored by HENRY THE SEVENTH's first Parliament, in Nov., 1485, and the statutes made at Westminster, 1st EDWARD IV., which declared him and his brothers traitors, were utterly abrogated. He was afterwards sworn of the Privy-Council of England, and had summons to Parliament, 14 Nov., 1493, as Lord Rochford. He d. in 1515, leaving two daughters (by his wife, Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Richard Hankford), who inherited the English estates, namely,

ANNE, m. to Sir James St. Leger.

MARGARET, m. to Sir William Boleyn, K.B., by whom she had

THOMAS, (Sir) who was created, 18 June, 1525, Baron and Viscount Rochford, and 29 Nov., 1527, Earl of Wiltshire and Ormonde, all in the Peerage of England. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, and had

GEORGE BOLEYNE, Lord Rochford, beheaded 17 May, 1536.

ANNE BOLEYNE, m. 25 Jan., 1532, to HENRY VIII., by whom she had an only daughter, ELIZABETH, who ascended the British Throne. The fate of the unhappy ANNE BOLEYNE is so well known, as hardly to require the statement that she suffered decapitation, 19 May, 1536.

Mary Boleyn, m. to William Carey, and had

WILLIAM, Lord Hunsden.

At the demise of Earl Thomas, in 1515, the Peerage passed to his kinsman,

SIR PIERCE BUTLER, as 8th Earl of Ormonde (refer to second son of 3rd Earl), but this nobleman was obliged to relinquish it to Thomas, Viscount Rochford (see descendants of 7th Earl). In consideration of which abandonment, however, Sir Pierce was created, by HENRY VIII., 23 Feb., 1527-8, Earl of Ossory. Soon after this he returned to Ireland, where he was chosen Lord-Deputy by the Council, and proceeding through the city on horseback to St. Mary's Abbey, was there sworn into office. Thomas Boleyn, Earl of Ormonde, dying s. p. in 1537, the King restored the Earl of Ossory to his original title of Ormonde. He m. Margaret, second dau. of Gerald, 8th Earl of Kildare (which lady was called the Good Countess of Ormonde), and had, with other issue,

JAMES, his successor.

Richard, created Viscount Mountgarret.

Thomas, who left an only daughter,

Margaret, m. 1st, to Rory O'More, of Leix, and, 2ndly, to Sir Maurice Fitzgerald, of Lackagh.

His Lordship d. in 1539, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Ossory, who had been created, in 1535, Viscount Thurles; and was subsequently restored, by Act of Parliament, 6 Nov., 1541, to the Earldom of Ormonde, as 9th Earl. His Lordship m. Joan, dau. and heir of James, 11th Earl of Desmond, and had seven sons, viz.

THOMAS, Viscount Thurles.

Edmund, (Sir) of Roscrea and Clougrenan.

supper at Ely House, Holborn,) and was s. by his eldest son.

THOMAS, 10th Earl of Ormonde, and 3rd Earl of Ossory, called, from the darkness of his complexion, the "Black Earl." This nobleman was the first of his family who conformed to the Church of England. He was educated at the court of England, and stood high in the estimation of Queen ELIZABETH, by whom, in 1559, he was constituted LORD TREASURER OF IRELAND. The right of this Earl to the butlerage having been denied by the merchants of Wexford, from whom his servants had demanded "two tonnes of sacke," as his prize on a certain cargo of Spanish wines, there imported, his Lordship, when pleading his right to the butlerage, alleged that such office and prize was in him and his ancestors from time immemorial, that it was subsequently confirmed to them by divers royal grants therein specified, and that the duty consisted of "one choyse tonne of Wyne out of every shippe or bottome arriving, and contayning nyne tonnes of Wynes, and twoe choyse tonnes of every shippe or bottome so arriving, and contayninge 20 tonnes of Wynes or upwards." His Lordship d. in 1614, and leaving (by his 2nd Countess, Elizabeth, dau. of John, 2nd Lord Sheffield) one surviving child only, ELIZABETH, who, through the influence of King JAMES, was married to Sir Richard Preston, Baron Dingwall in Scotland, and Earl of Desmond in Ireland, the honors devolved upon

SIR WALTER BUTLER, of Kilcash, grandson of James, 9th Earl, as should the estates,* but the influence of the deceased Lord's son-in-law, Lord Dingwall, retained them. The Earl m. Hellena, eldest dau. of Edmund, 2nd Viscount Mountgarret, and had (with daus.) one son, that left issue, namely,

THOMAS, Viscount Thurlis, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Pointz, Bart. of Acton, Co. Gloucester, and being unfortunately drowned in his passage from England, 15 Dec., 1619, left (besides four daus.) three sons, viz.

- 1 JAMES, successor to his grandfather.
- 2 John, who d. unm.
- 3 Richard, of Kilcash, who had a confirmation, 24 June, 1639, of that place, Garryricken, and other lands in the Cos. of Tipperary and Kilkenny, with a limitation thereof to his heirs male. This gentleman joining the Irish in 1641, was made Governor of the Co. of Wexford, and had the rank of Lieut.-Gen. in the Irish Army. He m. Lady Frances Touchet, youngest dau. of Mervin, Earl of Castlehaven, and, dying in 1701, was s. by (the son of his eldest son, Walter, who had died in his lifetime) his grandson,

THOMAS, of Kilcash, who d. in 1738, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, who was really 15th EARL OF ORMONDE, but was not aware of the fact. He d. s. p., and was s. by his first cousin, WALTER (son of John Butler, of Garryricken), really as 16th EARL OF ORMONDE. He was s. by his son,

Earl Walter d. in 1632, and was s. by his grandson,

JAMES, 12th Earl, who was installed a Knight of the Garter, and created, in 1642, MARQUESS OF ORMONDE. This nobleman for his fidelity to the house of Stuart, and his eminent services in the Royal cause, was elevated at the restoration of the monarchy, 23 March, 1661, to the DUKEDOM OF ORMONDE, in Ireland; and enrolled amongst the Peers of England, in 1673, as Baron Butler, of Llanthony, and Earl of Brecknock; and created, in 1682, Duke of Ormonde, also in England. His Grace was appointed Lord-Lieut. of Ireland in 1661, and continued in that high office until 1668. He m. his cousin, Lady Elizabeth

i. THOMAS, the "gallant EARL OF OSSORY," who was summoned by writ to the Parliament of England, in 1665, as LORD BUTLER, of More Park. His Lordship d. before his father (in 1680), leaving by his wife, Lady Amelia Nassau, eldest dau. of Louis, Lord of Beverweert, natural son of Maurice, Prince of Orange,

1 JAMES, who s. his grandfather as Duke of Ormonde, and grandmother in the Barony of Dingwall.

2 Charles, b. 4 Sept., 1671, was made, by King WILLIAM, a Lord of his Bedchamber, Col. of a Regt. of Horse, and elevated to the Peerage of Ireland (after the extinction of the same honors by the decease of his uncle),

8 March, 1693, as Baron of Cloughgrenan, Viscount of Tulloch, and EARL OF ARRAN; and to the Peerage of England, as LORD BUTLER, of Weston.

iv. Elizabeth, m. to Philip, 2nd Earl of Chesterfield.

v. Mary, m. to William Cavendish, 4th Earl of Devonshire.

The Duke d. 21 July, 1688, and was s. by his grandson,

JAMES, 2nd Duke, who inherited the Scottish BARONY OF DINGWALL from his grandmother. This nobleman was appointed a Lord of the Bedchamber in 1685, and, serving in the Army, participated in the victory over the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth, at Sedgemore. He was afterwards, however, one of the first to join the Standard of the Prince of Orange, and when that Prince ascended the Throne, his Grace obtained the Garter, and was constituted HIGH-CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND for the coronation. He attended WILLIAM into Ireland, was at the Boyne, and subsequently entertained his Majesty most sumptuously at his Castle in Kilkenny. In 1693, he was at the battle of Landen, where he received several wounds, and had a horse shot under him. In 1702, his Grace was constituted by Queen ANNE, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF of the land forces sent against France and Spain, when he destroyed the French fleet, sunk the Spanish galleons in the harbour of Vigo, and took the fort of Redondella, for which important services he received the thanks of both Houses of Parliament. In 1711, he was declared CAPTAIN-GENERAL and COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF of the land forces in Great Britain, or which were, or should be, employed abroad, in conjunction with the troops of the allies; which post he held till the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713; in which year he was made Warden of the Cinque Ports, and Constable of Dover Castle. But in two years afterwards (GEORGE I. having in the interim succeeded to the throne), his Grace was impeached (21 June, 1715) of high treason, and, having retired into France, was attainted, when his estates became forfeited, his (English) honors EXTINGUISHED; and Parliament passed an act, which annulled the regalities and liberties of the County Palatine of Tipperary, vested his lands in the Crown, and proclaimed a reward of £10,000 for his apprehension, should he attempt to land in Ireland. He d. 16 Nov., 1743, when his remains were brought into England 22 May, 1746, and deposited in the family vault, in HENRY VIII.'s Chapel, Westminster Abbey. At this period, it was supposed that the Duke's honors were all forfeited under the act of Attainder passed by the English Parliament; but it was subsequently decided, that no proceeding of the English legislature could affect Irish dignities. According to that decision, his Grace's brother,

CHARLES, Earl of Arran, was really 14th Earl of Ormonde, and 3rd Duke and Marquess; but his Lordship never enjoyed, assumed, or was aware of possessing those dignities. He m. The Scottish BARONY OF DINGWALL passed from the BUTLER family to the heir of the Prestons, in which it is now certainly vested, and the Irish EARLDOM OF ORMONDE and Viscounty of Thurles, supposed to have fallen under the English attainder, became Dormant, in which state those honors remained, until restored in 1791, by the decision of the House of Lords in Ireland, to JOHN BUTLER, Esq. of Carryricken (revert to the descendants of Richard Butler, Esq. of Kilcash, 2nd son of Walter, Lord Thurles, son of Walter, 11th Earl), as 17th Earl of Ormonde. - IV. Charlotte-Mary, m. to Brigadier-General Bacon, a distinguished Officer in the service of DONNA MARIA, during the late Civil War in Portugal.

- V. Anne.
- VI. Frances.
- VII. Louisa.

Lineage.

The family of Harley can be traced to a period antecedent to the Conquest, and its station was then so eminent, that the great house of Harlai, in France, deduces its origin from the Harleys of England.

SIR ROBERT DE HARLEY (eldest son of Sir Richard de Harley, Knt., who d. about the 13th of EDWARD II.), m. Margaret, eldest dau. and co-heir (with her sister Elizabeth, wife of Sir Richard de Cornwall, son of Richard, Earl of Cornwall, King of the Romans, brother of King HENRY III.) of Sir Bryan de Brampton; by which marriage he acquired a great estate and the seat of Brampton Castle, which has continued ever since the chief residence of his descendants. His great-grandson,

SIR JOHN HARLEY, of Brampton Castle, received the honor of Knighthood from EDWARD IV., on the field of battle, at Gaston, near Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1471; and was Sheriff of Shropshire, in the 21st year of the same Monarch. From him lineally descended

THOMAS HARLEY, Esq.* of Brampton Castle, who was

* Jane, sister of this Thomas Harley, of Brampton, m. Roger Mynors, Esq. of Treago, ancestor of PETER RICKARDS-MYNORS, Esq., now of Treago. (See BURKE'S Commoners, Vol. I. p. 36.)

born about the year 1543, and obtained a grant from King JAMES I., of the Honor and Castle of Wigmore, Co. Hereford. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Andrew Corbet, Knt. of Morton Corbet; and, dying in 1631, was s. by his only surviving son,

SIR ROBERT HARLEY, K.B., M.P. for the Co. Hereford. This gentleman had a grant, 12 Sept., 1626, of the office and offices of Master and Worker of Monies to be coined in the Tower of London during his life, with a salary of £4000 a year; but, after the murder of the King, refusing to coin with any other than the die of the deceased Monarch, he was removed by Parliament. Sir Robert m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Charles Barret, Esq. of Belhouse, Essex; 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Sir Francis Newport; by neither of whom, however, had he any issue to survive; and, 3rdly, Brilliana (so christened from Brill, of which her father was Governor at the time of her Ladyship's birth), dau. of Edward, Viscount Conway, by Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Tracy, of Todington, Co. Gloucester, and sister to Mary, wife of the celebrated General Sir Horace Vere, Lord Vere of Tilbury (by which alliance the Harleys became connected with the Veres, Earls of Oxford, Holleses, Earls of Clare, and other ancient families). Lady Brilliana Harley was celebrated for her gallant defence of Brampton Castle, during the Civil Wars, when invested, in 1643, by the rebels, whom she forced to raise the siege, after seven weeks' of unavailing hostility. Her Ladyship dying, however, in the Oct. following, the besiegers returned to the Castle, which, after a second gallant resistance, being forced to surrender, was burnt to the ground. Sir Robert Harley d. 6 Nov., 1656, and was s. by his eldest son,

COL. SIR EDWARD HARLEY, Member for the Co. Hereford, in the Parliament which restored CHARLES II., who was appointed Governor of Dunkirk by the new Monarch. Gloucester, by whom he had (with other issue)

Col. Sir Edward Harley d. 8 Dec., 1700, and was s. by his eldest son, ROBERT HARLEY, Esq., b. 5 Dec., 1661. This gentleman was first returned to Parliament for Tregony, in Cornwall, and afterwards, in 1690, for the town of Radnor, which he continued to represent so long as he remained a Commoner. On the 11th of Feb., 1700-1, Mr. Harley was elected Speaker of the House of Commons. In 1704, he was sworn of the Privy Council, and constituted one of the principal Secretaries of State, filling the Speaker's Chair at the same time. In 1710, he was appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer. About this period, Mr. Harley had a miraculous escape from assassination, having been stabbed with a penknife by the Marquess of Guiscard, then under examination before a Committee of the Privy Council at Whitehall. On the 24th May, 1711, the Rt. Hon. gentleman was elevated to the Peerage by the titles of Baron Harley, of Wigmore, Co. Hereford, EARL OF OXFORD, and EARL OF MORTIMER, with remainder; in default of male issue, to the heirs male of his grandfather, Sir Robert Harley, Knight of the Bath; and 20th May, in the same year, his Lordship was constituted Lord High Treasurer of England. His memory is celebrated by Pope, in the following lines:

"A soul supreme, in each hard instance tried,
Above all pain, all anger, and all pride,
The rage of power, the blast of public breath,
The lust of lucre, and the dread of death."

The Earl d. 21 May, 1724, and was s. by his only son,

EDWARD, 2nd Earl. This nobleman devoted himself much to literature, and the country is indebted to him for the celebrated collection, so well known as the Harleian Miscellany, purchased by Parliament from the Countess, in 1754, after the Earl's decease, and deposited in the British Museum. His Lordship m. 31 Oct., 1713, Lady Henrietta-Cavendish Holles, only dau. and heir of John Holles, last Duke of Newcastle, of that family (the dignity expired in 1713), by whom he had an only dau. and heir, Margaret-Cavendish, who m. in 1734, William, 2nd Duke of Portland. Lineage.

The TEMPLES, from whom this family paternally, and the present ducal House of Buckingham and Chandos maternally, descend, are said to have been of Saxon origin, and to have sprung immediately from the son and heir of Algar, Earl of Mercia,

EDWYN, who was deprived of the Earldom by the CONQUEROR, and killed in defending himself against the Normans in 1071. This Edwyn left a son,

EDWYN, styled Earl of Leicester and Coventry, who is said to have assumed the surname of TEMPLE, from the manor of Temple, in the hundred of Sparkenhoe, Wellesborough, "which manor (says Burton, in his Leicestershire) was given by the old Earls of Leicestershire to the Knights Templars, who usually gave the name of Temple to their lands, and they granted it to one whose family was called Temple, of great account and livelihood in those parts." Be this, however, as it may,

HENRY DE TEMPLE was Lord of Temple and Little Shepey, in the reign of the CONQUEROR, and from him descended

THOMAS TEMPLE, of Whitney, Co. Oxford, whose great-grandson.

His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, in 1822, Miss Elizabeth Barton, but has no other issue. This nobleman, who is the 2nd son of George Ramsay, 8th Earl of Dalhousie, having inherited, through his grandmother, JANE MAULE, dau. of the Hon. Harry Maule, of Kellie, the estates of the Earls of Panmure, changed his paternal surname and arms for those of the family of MAULE, and obtained his Peerage by letters patent, dated 9 Sept., 1831.

Lineage.

The ancient family of MAULE was of French extraction, their surname having been assumed from the town and lordship of MAULE, in the Vexin Français, eight leagues from Paris, a lordship which belonged to the Lords of that name for four centuries. Roger, last Lord of Maule, was slain at the battle of Nicopolis, in Hungary, fighting against the Turks, anno 1396; and his coat of arms was set up in the Parisian Cathedral of Notre Dame. His only dau. and heir espoused Simon de Moravilliers, Lord of Flaccourt.

WILLIAM, his successor.

Thomas, (Sir) who was Governor, in 1303, of the Castle of Brechin, the only fortress that interrupted the course of the Conquests of EDWARD I. Sir Thomas Maule was a soldier of acknowledged intrepidity and boldness, of great vigour and bodily strength; and his resistance to the power of England was strenuous, valiant, and obstinate. He fell, mortally wounded, however, and the garrison of Brechin capitulated the day after.

The elder son,

SIR WILLIAM DE MAULE, of Panmure, held the office of Sheriff of Forfarshire at the death of ALEXANDER III., and swore fealty to EDWARD I. at St. Andrews, 10 July, 1292. He m. Ethama, dau. of John Vaux, Lord of Dirleton; the great-grandson of this marriage,

SIR WILLIAM MAULE, of Panmure, espoused Marion, only child of David Fleming, of Biggar, and grandaun, maternally, of SIR DAVID BARCLAY, of BRECHIN. From this Sir William we pass (over two centuries at least) to his descendant,

PATRICK MAULE, of Panmure, who s. his father, in 1600, and, dying in five years afterwards, was s. by his only son,

PATRICK MAULE, of Panmure, who accompanied King JAMES VI. into England in 1603, and was appointed one of the gentlemen of the Bedchamber to that Monarch; an office which he afterwards held under CHARLES I., who constituted him Keeper of the Palace and Park of Eltham, and Sheriff of the Co. Forfar. He subsequently adhered with great fidelity to the King in his troubles, and was en-

| I. THOMAS. | IV. Mary. |
| II. William. | V. Sophia-Pontia. |
| III. Lionel. | VI. Elizabeth. |

Lineage.

Fuller says, that the Pilkingtons were originally of Rivington, Co. Lancaster, and a right ancient family; that they were gentlemen of repute in the shire before the Conquest, at which time the chief of the house, being sought after by the Norman soldiery, was fain to disguise himself as a thrasher in a barn; from which circumstance, partly alluding to the head of the flail falling sometimes on the one, and sometimes on the other side, and occasionally on himself, he took for the motto of his arms, "Now thus! now thus!" The first of the family we find upon record is

LEONARD PILKINGTON, of Pilkington Tower, Co. Lancaster, living in the reign of HENRY I.; from him descended

THE RIGHT REV. LEONARD PILKINGTON, fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Lord Bishop of Durham in 1560. In 1569, the northern rebels coming to Durham, tore the Bible and English Liturgy into pieces, and the bishop would most probably have shared a similar fate, could they have found him. His Lordship subsequently instituted a suit at law against Queen ELIZABETH, for the lands and goods of the rebels attainted in the bishopric, and would have succeeded, had not Parliament interfered, and adjudged these forfeitures, "pro hoc tempore," to the Crown. From this learned prelate we pass to

THOMAS PILKINGTON, Esq. of Nether Bradley, Co. York (the 12th in lineal descent from the 1st Leonard) who m. Barbara, dau. of Lionel Reresby, Esq. of Thriberg, near Rotherham, and was s. by his son,

II. SIR LYON, who was s., in 1684, by his only son,

III. SIR LYON. This gentleman m. Amy, dau. and heir of Thomas Eggleton, Esq. of Grove, Co. IV. SIR LYON, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Michael Wentworth, Knt. of Wooley, Co. York, and was s. by his eldest son,

V. SIR LYON. This gentleman served the office of High-Sheriff of the Co. of York in 1741, but, dying without issue, the Baronetcy devolved upon his brother,

Lineage.

This family is descended from a common ancestor with the Fitzgeralds and Fitzmaurices of Ireland, and the Carews of Cornwall; namely,

WALTER FITZ-OTHO, Warden of the Forests in Berkshire, and Castellan of Windsor, in the time of WILLIAM the Conqueror; which Walter was descended from Othore, a rich and powerful Lord, mentioned in the appendix to the life of King ALFRED, as living in that Monarch's reign. Walter Fitz-Otho left, at his decease, three sons,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Robert, Lord of Eston, or Estains, in Essex, whose line terminated with an heiress, his granddaughter, who m. Robert de Hastings.

Gerald, sent as Capt.-Gen., by HENRY II. against Rhese, Prince of South Wales, whose dau., Nest, after the submission of that Prince, he married, and from which union descended the Gerald, the Fitz-Maurices, the Fitz-Geralds, &c.

Walter Fitz-Otho was s., at his decease, in the Wardenship of the Forest of Berkshire and the Governorship of the Castle of Windsor, by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, who bore the name of Windsor, as also Fitz-Walter, and was a Baron of very extensive possessions. He was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DE WINDSOR, a powerful Baron temp. HENRY II., from whom descended

SIR RICHARD DE WINDSOR, of Stanwell, Co. Middlesex, M.P. for that shire, 26th and 33rd of EDWARD I., and again 2nd, 5th, and 6th EDWARD II. Sir Richard d. in the 19th year of the latter reign, seised of the manors of Stanwell, Middlesex, and West-Hakeburn, Berks, also the ward of the Castle of Windsor, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE WINDSOR, of Stanwell, who had issue by his 2nd wife, Julian, dau. and co-heir of James Mulyne, Co. Southampton, two sons,

JAMES, his successor.

William, (Sir) a personage of great military renown, who was constituted by EDWARD III. his Lord-Lieut. in Ireland, in the 49th year of that King's reign. This William married the celebrated Alice Pier, of whom Barnes, in his history of the reign of EDWARD III. says "That, being a person of extraordinary beauty, she was in the 48th of EDWARD III. made Lady of the Sun, and rode from the Tower of London, through Cheapside, accompanied with many lords, knights, and ladies, every lady leading a lord or a knight, by his horse's bridle, till they came into West Smithfield, where presently began solemn justs, which held for seven days together." Sir William was summoned to Parliament as a Baron, 4th RICHARD II., and died in the 8th year of the same Monarch, without issue (see BURKE's Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article Windsor).

Bucks.* Of this nobleman Sir William Dugdale states, "That, after the dissolution of the great monasteries, King HENRY sent a message to Lord Windsor, communicating his intention of dining with his Lordship on a certain day at Stanwell, and accordingly came; when he was magnificently entertained. Whereupon the King told him he liked that place so well that he was resolved to have it, yet not without a more beneficial exchange. And the Lord Windsor answering he hoped his Highness was not in earnest, it having been the seat of his ancestors for many ages, and humbly begging he would not take it from him; the King with a stern countenance replied, 'It must be,' commanding him on his allegiance to go speedily to his Attorney-General, who would more fully acquaint him with his reason for it. Being, therefore, afraid of his displeasure, he accordingly repaired to the Attorney-General, who showed him a draught ready made of an exchange of his lordship and manor of Stanwell, in lieu of Bordesley Abbey, with the lands and appurtenances thereunto belonging in Worcestershire. Whereof being constrained to accept of this exchange, he was commanded to quit Stanwell, though he had then laid in his Christmas provisions, for the keeping of his wonted hospitality there, all which he left in the house, saying, 'they should not find it bare Stanwell.'" His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, and sister and co-heir of Edward, Lord Mountjoy, and had, with daughters,

Lineage.

This family was settled at Wallop, Co. MATTHEW DE WALLOP obtained a grant, 27 April, 1203, to himself and his heirs for ever, of the custody of the house, castle, and gaol of Winchester, with the lands of Wodecote, and one hide of land in Andover, with the appurtenances, &c., thereunto belonging; and, in the 9th of King JOHN, he had a grant from that monarch of two hundred and eight acres of land in Wallop, which had been Stephen de Bendenge's. This John Wallop was Sheriff of the Co. of Southampton, in the 33rd of HENRY VI., and in the 1st year of EDWARD IV., in the 12th year of which latter monarch he represented the Co. of Southampton in Parliament. He was s. by his son,

RICHARD WALLOP, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of ——— Hampton, Esq. of Old Stoke, Co. Southampton, but, having no issue, was s. by his brother,

SIR ROBERT WALLOP, Knt., at whose decease s. p. the estates devolved upon (the eldest son of his brother Stephen, by a dau. of Hugh Ashley, Esq. of Wymburn St. Giles) his nephew,

SIR JOHN WALLOP, Knt., an eminent military and diplomatic personage in the reign of HENRY VIII., who was installed a Knight of the Garter, in 1544. Sir John m. twice, but, having no issue, his estates passed, at his decease, in the 5th year of EDWARD VI., to his brother,

SIR OLIVER WALLOP, Knt., so created for his gallant conduct at the great battle of Muscoborough, in 1547. He m. 1st, Bridget, dau. of Pigot, of Beechampton, Bucks, by whom he had three sons and a daughter, Rose, who m. Walter Lambert, Esq. Sir Oliver espoused, 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Robert Martin, Esq. of Athelhampton, in Dorsetshire, and widow of Thomas Tregonwell, Esq., and had two other sons and two daughters. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR HENRY WALLOP, Knt., Vice-Treasurer and Treasurer-of-War in Ireland, in the reign of Queen ELIZABETH. This gentleman was constituted by her Majesty, in 1582 (in conjunction with Lord Grey, of Wilton, and Adam Loftus, Archbishop of Dublin and Lord-Chancellor), Lord-Justice of Ireland. And we have upon record the following account of a trial by battle before their Lordships: "Two near kinsmen, of the noble family of the O'Connors, having charged each other with sundry treasons in the late rebellion, and desiring a trial by combat, the Lords-Justices consented to it. Whereupon all things being prepared, according to the customary laws in such cases, and the Lords-Justices, the Lords of the Council, Judges, &c., sitting in their places, every one according to his degree, the appellant, stripped in his shirt, was brought before the Court, with only his sword and target, and when he had done his reverence to the Lords-Justices and the Court, was set on a stool; the defendant was likewise brought in the same order, and with the like weapons, and placed over against the appellant. After the challenge was read, each combatant took an oath of what he averred, and that it was true, and would justify the same, both with sword and blood. Then the signal, by sound of trumpet, being given them to engage, the appellant did not only disarm the defendant, but also with the sword he took from him, cut off his head, and on the point thereof presented it to the Lords-Justices, who thereupon acquitted him." Upon Sir Henry's return to England, he had the honor of entertaining Queen ELIZABETH, anno 1591, for some days, with her Court, at Farley Wallop. This gentleman obtained considerable estates in Ireland, and, amongst others, the Castle, Manor, and Abbey of Eniscorthy. He d. 14 April, 1599, and the inscription to his memory, in St. Patrick's Church, Dublin, records, that during his government in Ireland, "the wars of Desmond terminated; and that the head of that nobleman was sent into England." Sir Henry was s. by his eldest son (by Catherine, dau. of Richard Gifford, Esq.),

SIR HENRY WALLOP, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Robert Corbet, Esq. of Morton Corbet, by whom he acquired the manor and noble seat of RED CASTLE, and divers other lordships and manors, in Salop, and had one son and five daughters. He d. 5 Nov., 1624, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT WALLOP, Esq., M.P. for the Co. of Southampton, and subsequently for Andover. This gentleman, taking an active part against CHARLES I., was named one of the unhappy Monarch's Judges, and he sate as such in the painted chamber, but did not sign the warrant for the King's execution. At the Restoration, the Parliament excepted him from receiving any benefit from his estate, &c.; and being brought to the Bar of the House, he was sentenced to be degraded of his gentility, drawn upon a sledge to, and under the gallows of, Tyburn, with a halter round his neck, and to be imprisoned for life, which sentence was put in force, 30 Jan., 1662. Lineage.

The surname of Wingfield is derived from the Manor of Wingfield, Co. Suffolk, where the progenitors of this family are stated to have been located before the Conquest, and the place of their abode was denominated Wingfield Castle. Camden says that this manor gave both a name and seat to a large family, in those parts, famous for their knighthood and ancient gentility, which brought forth an abundance of renowned knights, and among them two celebrated Companions of the Order of the Garter, under the reign of HENRY VIII.

SIR RICHARD WINGFIELD (lineally descended from the Wingfields of Letheringham, in Suffolk, of which distinguished family a full account may be seen in BURKE'S History of the Commoners, Vol. ii. page 476; article WINGFIELD of TICKENCOTE), a personage of high military reputation, commenced his career under [his uncle, the Lord-Deputy, Sir William Fitzwilliam, in the Civil Wars in Ireland. PRESTON.

PRESTON, SIR ROBERT, of Valleyfield, Co. Perth; b. 21 April, 1740; m. 27 April, 1790, Elizabeth, dau. of George Brown, Esq. of Stockton, by whom he has no issue. Sir Robert s. as 6th Bart., at the decease of his brother, 23 March, 1800. Sir Robert Preston d. in May, 1833, but the Baronetcy being assumed by a gentleman claiming a right to its possession (the grounds of which claim we are not yet in possession of), the details are allowed to remain, and the dignity not deemed extinct.

Lineage.

The name of Preston, which is of great antiquity in North Britain, was assumed by the ancestors of the present family from their territorial possessions in Mid Lothian, in the time of MALCOLM CREAN-MOHR. The first of the family upon record is

LEOLPHUS DE PRESTON, living temp. William the Lion, whose grandson,

PRE

SIR WILLIAM DE PRESTON, Knt., was one of the Scottish nobles summoned to Berwick, by EDWARD I. in the competition for the Crown of Scotland, between Bruce and Baliol, after the death of King ALEXANDER III. in 1291. This Sir William was s. by his son,

NICHOL DE PRENTON, one of the Scottish Barons who swore fealty to King EDWARD. He d. in the beginning of the reign of DAVID II., and was s. by his son,

SIR LAWRENCE PRESTON, who was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE PRESTON, a gallant soldier, high in the favor and confidence of King DAVID BRUCE, who accompanied that monarch in his unfortunate expedition into England, and, falling into the enemies' hands at the battle of Durham, in 1346, suffered several years' imprisonment in the Tower of London, and was released, only by ransom. His son,

SIR SIMON DE PRESTON, witnessed a charter of donation to the Monastery of Newbottle in 1360. He was s. by his son,

SIR SIMON DE PRESTON, who left issue,

GEORGE, (Sir) his successor.

Henry, (Sir.)

ANDREW, whose son,

GEORGE, of Whitehill, was great-grandfather of

SIR RICHARD PRESTON, who was created a Peer of Scotland, in the dignity of BARON DINGWELL, 8 June, 1609, to himself and his heirs whatsoever. His Lordship, through the favor of his royal master, JAMES I., obtained the hand of Lady Elizabeth Butler, only surviving child of Thomas, 10th Earl of Ormonde and Ossory. By this lady he left an only child,

ELIZABETH, Baroness Dingwall, who m. James, 12th Earl (afterwards Duke) of Ormonde, and was s. by her grandson,

JAMES, 2nd Duke of Ormonde, who was impeached in 1715, and attainted, when all his English honors expired; but it is doubtful if the attainder could affect the claim of the PRESTON family to the BARONY OF DINGWALL, the line (BUTLER) of the attainted Duke having failed, and the dignity reverting, as it has done, to the heir general of the 1st Lord Dingwall.

Sir Simon was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE PRESTON, whose great-grandson, WILLIAM PRESTON, of Craigmiller, had issue,

Simon, (Sir) who succeeded to Craigmiller; and his line failed with

ROBERT PRESTON, of Craigmiller, in 1639.

HENRY.

The second son,

HENRY PRESTON, living in the reigns of JAMES IV. and JAMES V., was father of

JAMES PRESTON, Esq., who acquired by charter, dated in 1544, the lands and Barony of Valleyfield, from William, Commendator of Culross, upon the resignation of Patrick Bruce; and his descendants have ever since been designated from that estate. He was s. by his son,

ARCHIBALD PRESTON, Esq., 2nd Baron of Valleyfield; whose grandson,

SIR JOHN PRESTON, 4th Baron of Valleyfield, m. Grizel Colville, dau. of Alexander, Commendator of Culross, by whom, with three daus., he had two sons,

GEORGE, his successor.

Robert, a Lord of Session; from whom the Prestons of Gourtown are descended.

Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

I. GEORGE PRESTON, Esq. of Valleyfield, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 31 March, 1637. Sir George m. in 1634, Marian, only dau. of Hugh, 3rd Lord Sempill, and grandau. (maternally) of James, Earl of Abercorn, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of Sir James Lumsden, of Innergelly, and was s. by his eldest son,

PRE

III. SIR GEORGE, who m. Agnes, dau. of Patrick Muirhead, Esq. of Raahyhill, and, dying in 1741, was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR GEORGE. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of William, Lord Cochrane, of Ochiltree, and grandau. (maternally) of the Earl of Kiucardine, by whom he had issue,

Patrick, who pre-deceased his father, leaving two daughters,

- 1 — Lady Baird, widow of the late Sir David Baird, without issue.

Alexander, who also died before his father, leaving no issue.

CHARLES, successor to his father.

ROBERT, present Baronet.

Anne, m. to Robert Wellwood, Esq. of Garvoch, and had issue,

ROBERT WELLWOOD, of Garvoch, Esq., whose eldest daughter,

ISABELLA, m. Robert Clarke, Esq. of Comrie Castle, Co. Perth, and has a son, ANDREW CLARKE - WARDLAW, Esq.* younger, of Comrie Castle, who m. Jane, dau. and heir of Sir John Wardlaw, Bart.

Agnes.

Sir George was s. in 1779, by his third, but eldest surviving, son,

V. SIR CHARLES. This gentleman, who was a Military Officer, obtained great renown by his gallant defence of Fort St. John, against the American General, Montgomery, and which he only surrendered at the last extremity. Sir Charles was a Commissioner of the Customs, and M.P. for Kirkcaldy. He d. 23 March, 1800, and was s. by his brother, ROBERT, the late Baronet.

Hants, by Elizabeth, dau. of Isaac Preston, Esq., of Beeston St. Lawrence, assumed by royal license, the surname and arms of PRESTON, and was created a Baronet, 30 May, 1815. Isabel, who became, eventually, Countess of Marr.

The Countess was divorced from Lord Douglas, and m. 2ndly, Sir John Swinton, of Swinton, and, dying in 1385, her son,

JAMES, became Earl of Douglas and Marr. This distinguished chieftain, making an excursion into England, in 1388, penetrated to the gates of York; whence returning spoil-laden, his Lordship had many skirmishes with the English at Newcastle, in one of which he became possessed of the pennon of Henry Percy (Hotspur), and vaunting that he should erect it on the pinnacle of his own castle, Percy retorted with an oath, "Thou shalt never bear it out of Northumberland;" and to uphold by arms the declaration, himself and his brother, Ralph Percy, attacked Douglas in his camp at Otterburn, 19 Aug., 1388, when a furious conflict ensued, wherein Lord Douglas fell; but the Percys eventually sustained a signal defeat. While Douglas lay wounded, in the brunt of the battle, one of his knightly companions (Sinclair) inquired, "How goes it, cousin?" "But so so; praised be to God (replied the sinking soldier), few of my ancestors have died in chambers, or in beds. Avenge me, for I die. My heart faints too rapidly. Raise again my banner, and shout 'DOUGLAS!' But tell not friend nor foe how it fares with me, for my enemies would exult, and my friends be disconsolate." The Earl married, but leaving no legitimate issue, his only sister, Isabel, succeeded as Countess of Marr, while the Earldom of Douglas passed to the male heir of that family. Lord Douglas and Marr, left an illegitimate son,

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, upon whom he had conferred the Barony of Drumlanrig, Co. Dumfries, by charter sans date. This Sir William, who was a very eminent Commander in the wars with England, was deputed Ambassador to that kingdom, in 1412, to solicit the release of JAMES I. of Scotland, and obtained a charter, dated 30 Nov., 1412, from that Monarch, all written in the King's own hand, upon vellum, confirming to himself and his heirs the several Baronies of Drumlanrig, Hawick, and Selkirk. Lineage.

This family is maternally descended from

SIR JOHN RAMSAY, Knt. of Balmaine and Tasque, Co. Kincardine, who was created by JAMES III., a Lord of Parliament, in 1433, and sat, under the title of Lord BOTHWELL. Adhering, however, to his unfortunate Sovereign, against whom the nobles of Scotland rebelled, his Lordship was outlawed, and his estates subjected to confiscation in 1483, by the first Parliament of JAMES IV., while that Monarch conferred the dignity of Earl of Bothwell upon Hepburn, Lord Hailes, whose descendant became the third husband of MARY, Queen of Scots, and was the last of his family that enjoyed the Peerage. In 1498, the disgraced Lord received, however, a royal pardon, but under the simple designation of John Ramsay; and he obtained, at the same time, some lands in the Cos. of Forfar and Wigtown, which favours were followed by a charter, in 1510, of the Barony of Balmaine. The grandson of this personage,

GILBERT RAMSAY, Esq., was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 3 Sept., 1625, and the title passed, in regular succession, to

SIR ALEXANDER RAMSAY, the 6th Bart., at whose decease, 11 Feb., 1806, it passed to his kinsman and heir at law, and has since become extinct, while the estates devolved, by bequest, upon Sir Alexander's nephew,

GODFRIED STRUTT DE HINKELRED, of Under Walden, chief of the Swiss auxiliaries, received the honor of Knighthood, but in subsequent dissensions, being upon the less fortunate side, Sir Godfried was obliged to seek an asylum in England, where it appears he took up his permanent abode, and from him descended

REA REAY.

REAY, LORD, (Eric Mac Kay), of Reay, Co. Caithness, in the Peerage of Scotland, and a Bart. of Nova Scotia; b. in Dec., 1773; s. as 7th Baron, at the decease of his cousin, 26 Jan., 1797.

Lineage.

This very ancient family, according to the best authorities, held possessions in the north of Scotland seven centuries ago; which possessions were originally denominated Strathnaver, but more recently Lord Reay's Country.

ODO MACKY, descended from Angus Dow Macky (who is styled leader of 4000 Mackys, of Strathnaver), obtained extensive territorial grants in the Counties of Caithness and Sutherland, in 1469, and 1507. He fell at Flodden, and was s. by his son,

JOHN MACKY, who was s. by his brother,

DONALD MACKY, characterised by historians as "a great General, and a wise and political gentleman." This personage was at the battle of Solway-Moss, and returned to Edinburgh with the King three days after the conflict, when his Majesty bestowed upon him, in requital of his faithful services, the forfeited lands of several individuals, by charter, dated 28 Nov., 1542. He d. in 1565, and was s. by his son,

Y MACKY, who obtained his father's lands from the Earl of Huntly, to whom they had been granted by the Crown. He had several conflicts with the Earl of Sutherland, to whom surrendering himself in 1556, he was sent prisoner to the Castle of Edinburgh. Being released, he returned to Strathnaver, where he conducted himself turbulently until his death, in 1571. His wife was Barbara Sinclair, dau. of the Laird of Dim, and he was s. by his son,

HUGHSON MACKY, a personage of a very different disposition to that of his predecessors. He is described as "very liberal, if not rather inclining towards prodigality, and yet preserving the ancient inheritance of his family free from any burden of debt. Finding his countrymen consumed almost with civil discords and slaughters, by the iniquity of the times, he conducted himself so that in a short space they were finally reconciled. He delighted in hunting and public conventions; but fearing that such meetings would produce dimensions, he gave them over, till in the end all quarrels were quite forgotten." He m. 1st, Lady Elizabeth Sinclair, 2nd dau. of George, 4th Earl of Caithness, by whom he had an only child, Christian, m. to John Macintosh, of Dalzell. He espoused, 2ndly, in 1589, Lady Jaen Gordon, eldest dau. of Alexander, 11th Earl of Sutherland, and dying, beloved and bewailed, in 1614, was s. by his elder son,

SIR DONALD MACKAY, Knt. of Far, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 18 March, 1627, and elevated to the Peerage by the dignity of BARON REAY, with remainder to his heirs male for ever, bearing the name and arms of Mackay, 20 June, 1628. His Lordship, who was a distinguished and gallant soldier, took an active part, during the civil war, in favor of royalty; but being one of those excepted from pardon in the treaty between the Covenanters and King CHARLES, he was obliged to retire to Denmark, where he died in Feb., 1649. He m. 1st, in 1610, Barbara, eldest dau. of Kenneth, Lord Kintail by whom he had JOHN, his successor, with two other sons and two daughters. His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Rachel Winterfield of Harrison, by whom he had two other sons. Of this latter marriage Lord Reay procured a sentence of nullity, and then married Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Thompson, of Greenwich; but the Judges' Delegates, at London, having found that Rachel Winterfield, or Harrison, was the wife of his Lordship, she went into Scotland, in 1637, to prosecute him for an aliment, and he was ordered to pay her £2000 sterling for by-past maintenance, and £300 yearly during his non-adherence. He was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 2nd Baron, who, like his father, took up arms in the Royal cause. His Lordship m. Barbara, dau. of Donald Mackay, of Scaury, by whom he had, with two younger sons, Donald, Master of Reay, who predeceased him, leaving by Anne, dau. of Sir George Mouro, of Culcairn, a son, by whom his Lordship was succeeded,

- vi. Augusta Charlotte, m. 1st, in 1798, to Thomas Cresigny, Esq. who d. in 1799; and, 2ndly, 3 Feb., 1837, to Joseph Whatley, Esq.

Mr. Thelusson, after bequeathing large fortunes to each member of his family, devised the residue of his immense possessions, namely, landed estates of the annual value of £4,500, and personal property to the amount of £800,000, to trustees, for the purpose of Accumulation during the lives of his three sons, and of all their sons who should be living at the time of his death, or should be born in due course afterwards, and the lives of the survivors of them; the accumulated fund, then, to be expended in the purchase of estates, and to be conveyed to the eldest male descendant of his three sons, with the benefit of Survivorship. This extraordinary will was mooted before the House of Lords, but finally confirmed by that branch of the Legislature, 25 June, 1806; an act of Parliament, however, subsequently passed, to interdict, in future, any accumulation of property so devised, beyond the term of twenty-one years after the decease of the testator. - ii. Richard-Brooke, b. 26 April, 1825, d. in 1832.

Lineage.

This family traces its pedigree to a remote era in English history.

GALFRIDUS RIDEL, Baron of Blaye, in Guienne, assisted the Normans in the Conquest of Assulia, and accompanied Duke WILLIAM to England, from whom, after his elevation to the Throne, he obtained considerable territorial grants. This Galfridus m. a sister of Roger Bigot, Earl of Norfolk, and was s. by his son,

GALFRIDUS RIDEL, who was Lord-Justiciary of England, A.D. 1098. He m. a dau. of Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, and had a dau., Matilda, m. to Richard Bassot, Lord-Justiciary of England, and an only son, GADFRIDUS RIDEL, who carried on the family, but it would exceed our limits to follow its successive generations. From the well-authenticated pedigree in the Lyon-Office at Edinburgh, it appears that the progenitors of the house of Riddell enjoyed for five centuries the Barony of Blaye, and other territorial possessions in France; and the manors of Weltering, in Northamptonshire, of Salkwes, in Norfolk, and Cranston, in Scotland, for several generations: of which, however, in 1474, the manor of Sallowes alone remained with the representative of the family.

THOMAS RIDDELL, Esq., the 15th in descent from Galfridus, the first settler in England; but which estate was alienated by his grandson,

JOHN RIDDELL, Esq., who removing into Scotland, m. a dau. of Thomas Urquhart, Esq. of Cromarty, and was s., in 1584, by his son,

JAMES RIDDELL, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Adam Alleyne, Esq.; and was s. in 1620, by his son,

JAMES RIDDELL, Esq., who was s. in 1688, by his brother,

GEORGE RIDDELL, Esq., who m. Jane, dau. of Capt. John Failgour; and was s. in 1706, by his son,

GEORGE RIDDELL, Esq. of Kinglass. This gentleman m. Christ'ny, dau. of Andrew Paterson, Esq. of Kirkton, by whom he had nine sons and several daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

I. JAMES RIDDELL, Esq., LL.D., of Ardnamurchan, and Sunart, who was created a Baronet, 2 Sept., 1778. Sir James m. 1st, Mary, dau. and heir of Thomas Milles, Esq. of Bilockly, Co. Norfolk, by whom he had issue,

Lineage.

This family, of English origin, was brought into Ireland towards the close of QUEEN ELIZABETH's reign, by WILLIAM PARSONS, a person then in a humble station of life, who rose to great wealth and power, and was eventually one of the Lords Justices of that Kingdom,—his immediate line being however extinct, we shall briefly detail it, and then proceed with that of the existing family.

WILLIAM PARSONS settled in Ireland about the close of QUEEN ELIZABETH's reign; and, being a Commissioner of Plantations, obtained very considerable territorial grants from the Crown. In 1602, he succeeded Sir Geoffrey Fenton, as Surveyor-General of Ireland: in 1610, he obtained a pension of £30 a year, English, for life: in 1611, he was joined with his brother, Laurence, in the Supervisorship of the Crown Lands, with a fee of £60 a year, for life: in 1620, presenting to the King, in person, surveys of escheated estates, in his capacity of Surveyor-General, he received the honor of Knighthood, and was created a Baronet 10 Nov., in the same year. Sir William Parsons represented the Co. Wicklow in Parliament, in 1639, and was constituted Lord-Deputy, with Lord Dillon, in 1640; but that nobleman being soon removed, he was re-sworn, with Sir John Borlace, Master of the Ordnance. He continued in the Government until 1643, when he was removed, charged with treason, and committed to prison, with Sir Adam Loftus and others. He m. In 1620, Sir Laurence was joined in the Surveyor-Generalship with his brother, and appointed, four years afterwards, 2nd Baron of the Exchequer. He m. i. CHARLES ERSKINE, Esq. of Alva, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 30 April, 1666. Sir Charles m. Christian, dau. of Sir James Dundas, of Arncliffe, by whom he had four sons,

Sir Charles was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES, who inherited the Peerage at the decease of his maternal uncle,

ALEXANDER WEDDERBURN (eldest son of the above-mentioned Peter Wedderburn, Lord Chesterhall). This eminent person was born at Chesterhall, 13 Feb., 1733, and was early distinguished by those powers of reason and eloquence which ultimately raised him to the highest dignity of the state. Well adapted to the legal profession by great natural talents and indefatigable perseverance, he was called to the Scottish Bar when only nineteen years of age, and was coming rapidly into notice, when an illiberal attack from the Bench, disgusting him with his own country, determined his seeking a wider sphere for his professional pursuits. He became a Member of the Inner Temple in 1753, and, under the tuition of Macklyn, endeavoured, with more than doubtful success, to lose his national accent. He was called to the English Bar in 1757, and by his talents soon won the applause of Lord Camden, and the assistance of Lords Bute and Mansfield, pleading in the Douglas and Hamilton cause, and successfully defending Lord Clive. He was appointed Solicitor-General, 26 Jan., 1771; promoted to the Attorney-Generalship in 1778; and elevated to the Bench, as Lord Chief-Justice of the Court of Common-Pleas, in 1780, when he was created Baron Loughborough, of Loughborough, Co. Leicester (14 June, 1780). In 1793, his Lordship was appointed first Commissioner for keeping the Great Seal; and, 27 Jan., 1793, constituted Lord-High-CHANCELLOR OF GREAT BRITAIN. On the 31st of Oct., 1795, the Chancellor obtained a new patent, creating him Baron Loughborough, of Loughborough, Co. Surrey, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his nephew, Sir James St. Clair-Erskine, and after him, to John Erskine, Esq., the brother of Sir James; and, 21 April, 1801, he was advanced to the dignity of EARL ROSSLYN, Co. Mid Lothian, with the same remaindership. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1767, Betty-Anne, dau. and heir of John Dawson, Esq. of Morley, Co. York; and, 2ndly, in 1792, Charlotte, dau. of William, 1st Viscount Courtenay, of Powderham Castle; but, dying without issue, 3 Jan., 1806 (his remains were interred in ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL), the original Barony of Loughborough, of Leicester, expired; while that of Loughborough, of Surrey, and the Earldom of Rosslyn, devolved, according to the limitation of the patent, upon his nephew, SIR JAMES ST. CLAIR-ERSKINE, Bart., the present Earl.

Of this marriage there were three sons and four

SIR HARY, s. his father in the Baronetcy, and marrying Jean, dau. of Duncan Forbes, of Culloden, was s. in 1721, by his eldest surviving son,

Upon the decease of his younger and only surviving son, the Earl of Roxburghe obtained, in 1641, a new charter, entailing his honors and estates upon his grandson, the Hon. Sir William Drummond: and after him, upon the three sons successively of his grandau. Jane, Countess of John, 3rd Earl of Wigtoun, upon the express stipulation that whoever should succeed under the new patent, should marry his deceased son Hary's eldest dau., Jean: accordingly, at his Lordship's demise, 18 Jan., 1650, the dignities and estates devolved upon his aforesaid grandson,

ROBERT, s. as 4th Earl; at whose decease, nam. in 1696, the honors devolved upon his brother,

JOHN, 5th Earl. This nobleman, having filled the office of Secretary of State in 1704, was installed a Knight of the Garter; and created 25 April, 1707, Viscount Broxmouth, Earl of Kelso, Marquess of Cessford and Beaumont, and DUKE OF ROXBURGHE, with remainder to the heirs who should inherit the Earldom of Roxburghe. WILLIAM, 7th Lord Bellenden, as 4th Duke (refer to John, Lord Bellenden, 2nd son of William, 2nd Duke of Roxburghe). This nobleman m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of the Rev. Dr. Burroughs; and, 2ndly, in June, 1780, Mary, dau. of Benjamin Bechenoe, Esq. (who m., after his Grace's decease, the Hon. John Talmash, son of the present Countess of Dysart), but dying without issue, in 1805, the Barony of Bellenden expired, while the other honors and the estates lay dormant for several years; during which period the succession was contested by Major-Gen. Walter Ker, as heir male of the 1st Earl; the Right Hon. William Drummond (see children of Jean, Countess of Perth, dau. of the 1st Earl), as heir male of the 2nd Earl; and

SIR JAMES INNES-NORCLIFFE, Bart. (refer to descendants of Margaret, Lady Innes, 3rd dau. of Hary, Lord Ker, son of the 1st Earl of Roxburghe, by his 2nd wife), in whose favor the House of Lords decided, 11 May, 1812, and he succeeded, accordingly, as 5th Duke. Sir James m. 1st, in 1769, Mary, dau. of Sir John Wrey, of Glentworth, Co. Lineage.

The ancient family of Ruthven derives from THOMAS, a person of Saxon or Danish blood, who settled in Scotland, under DAVID I., and whose son, SWAN, living temp. WILLIAM the Lion, lord of the Manors of Ruthven, Tubernmore, and other lands in the Co. Perth, was progenitor of

SIR WILLIAM DE RUTHVEN, who was created a Lord of Parliament 29 Jan., 1487-8. His Lordship d. in 1528, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM, 2nd Lord Ruthven, an extraordinary Lord of Session, who m. Janet, eldest dau. and co-heir of Patrick, Lord Halyburton, of Dirleton, with whom he obtained that Barony, and had, with other issue,

PATRICK, who s. as 3rd Lord Ruthven and Dirleton. This nobleman was one of the principal actors in the murder of David Rizzio, 9 March, 1566, but being afterwards abandoned by Darnley, he fled into England, and d. there, 13 June, 1566. His Lordship is included in Walpole's catalogue of royal and noble authors, having written a narrative of that sanguinary deed, without one expression of regret or compunction. He was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 4th Lord Ruthven, who participated in the assassination of Rizzio, and fled into England with his father; but eventually making his peace, obtained a pardon after the decease of the late Lord, and was created Earl of Gowrie 23 Aug., 1581: the lands and Barony of Gowrie, which belonged to the monastery of Scope, being erected by royal charter into an Earldom. His Lordship was tried and convicted of treason 28 May, 1584, and executed in the evening of the same day; but his estates and honors were restored to his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Gowrie, at whose decease in 1588, the honors devolved upon his brother, JOHN, 3rd Earl, who fell, with his brother, Alexander Ruthven, in an attempt upon the life of JAMES VI., at Perth, 5 Aug., 1600. The dead bodies of the Ruthvens were afterwards arraigned and convicted of treason at Edinburgh, and the honors and the whole of the estates of the deceased declared forfeited by Parliament.

William, 2nd Lord Ruthven, had a younger son,

THE HON. ALEXANDER RUTHVEN, of Freeland, Co. Perth, who d. in 1609, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM RUTHVEN, of Freeland, who m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir William Moncrieff, of Moncrieff, and dying (of the plague) in 1609, was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

"Though none of this family arrived to the dignity of Peerage, until the reign of HENRY VIII.," says Dugdale, "yet were they persons of great note in Northumberland for many ages before; for, in the 25th of HENRY II., Henry de Maners paid eighty marks for livery of his father's lands in that County." This Henry is not, however, mentioned in the pedigree of the family; in which the first name that occurs is

SIR ROBERT DE MANNERS, Knt., Lord of the manor of Ethale (now Etall), Co. Northumberland, from whom descended

SIR ROBERT DE MANNERS, Knt., who, in the 17th EDWARD II., was returned into Chancery, among the principal persons in the Co. of Northumberland, certified to bear arms by descent from their ancestors. This Sir Robert signalized himself by the defence of Norham Castle, of which he was Governor in the 1st year of EDWARD III. The circumstance is thus stated in Barner's History of that Monarch's reign:—"The Scots, encouraged by former successes, and despising King EDWARD's youth, on the very night of that day whereon King Edward was crowned, intended to take Norham Castle, between the Marches of England and Scotland, by surprise; and so well they managed their design, that about sixteen of them had already mounted the walls; but the Captain, Sir Robert Manners, being warned of the matter beforehand, by one of the garrison, who was a Scotsman, had so well provided to receive them, that, of those who had mounted, he took five or six, and put the rest to the sword; their companions below, upon this disappointment, retiring." In the 14th year of the same King, EDWARD, Sir Robert served in Parliament for the Co. Northumberland. In the next year he obtained royal permission to strengthen and embattle his mansion of Ethale, with a wall made of stone and lime: and in that year was commissioned, with others, to treat with David Bruce and his adherents about a peace. Lineage.

This family flourished for several generations in the Co. of Devon, before it removed into Cornwall; and, in the beginning of the 15th century, we find Walter Eliot returned amongst the gentry of that shire. The Cornwall pedigree made in 1620 commences with

JOHN ELIOT, who m. Jane, dau. of John Bonville, of Shute, Co. Devon; and whose great-grandson,

RICHARD ELIOT, Esq. having purchased the site, &c. of the Priory of St. Germans, and giving it the name of Port Eliot, resided with great hospitality there. This gentleman d. in 1600, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN ELIOT, Knt. of Port Eliot, M.P. for the Co. of Cornwall, in the third of CHARLES I. This gentleman, a strenuous opponent of the Court, was appointed by the House of Commons one of the Managers of the impeachment of the Duke of Buckingham; for which, with Sir Dudley Digges, the other Manager, he was committed to the Tower, but was soon afterwards released. In 1628, Sir John Eliot, with other Members of the House of Commons, was again sent to the Tower, for refusing to answer before the Privy-Council for Parliamentary conduct, and on the 29th of May, in that year, an information was exhibited in the Star-chamber, against Sir John and his companions for their undutiful speeches; upon which charge, being afterwards arraigned before the Court of King's Bench, they were adjudged to be imprisoned during the King's pleasure, and to give security for their good behaviour; and Sir John was also fined £2000. These gentlemen were subsequently offered their freedom, upon the terms of making submission; but they rejected the proposition, and Sir John Eliot died in the Tower, 27 Nov., 1632. He had m. Redigund, dau. and co-heir of Richard Gedy, Esq., and had a numerous family, of which,

JOHN, the eldest son, s. to the estates; and, dying in 1685, left an only son,

DANIEL, who, leaving an only dau., bequeathed his estates to his cousin,

EDWARD ELIOT, Esq. (grandson of Nicholas Eliot, son of Sir John Eliot), and this gentleman, dying in 1722, without issue, the property devolved upon his brother,

RICHARD ELIOT, Esq. of Port Eliot, M.P., Auditor and Receiver-General to the Prince of Wales. This gentleman m. 4 March, 1736, Harriot, dau. of the Right Hon. James Craggs, Secretary-of-State in the reign of GEORGE I., by whom he had three sons and six daus., and was s. at his decease, in 1748, by his eldest son,

EDWARD ELIOT, Esq., M.P. for the Co. of Cornwall, who assumed, by sign manual, the additional surname of Craggs, and was elevated to the Peerage, 30 Jan., 1784, by the title of Baron Eliot, of St. Germans, Co. Cornwall. His Lordship m. 25 Sept., 1766, Catherine, only dau. and heir of Edward Elliston, Esq. of South Weald, Co. Essex, and cousin, maternally, of Gibbon, the historian, by whom he had issue,

ST. HELENS.

ST. HELENS, BARON (Alleyne Fitz-Herbert, P.C.), of St. Helens, in the Isle of Wight, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; and Baron St. Helena, in the Peerage of Ireland; b. in 1753.

This nobleman, having been employed as a diplomatist of the first grade, at different European Courts, obtained his Irish Barony by creation in 1791; and was enrolled amongst the Peers of the United Kingdom, 31 July, 1801.

Lineage.

The two families of FITZHERBERT of Norbury, and FITZHERBERT of Somersall-Herbert and Tissington, in Derbyshire, can be traced in that County as early as the origin of surnames. They are said to have been of the same stock as the ancient baronial House of Fitz-Herbert, of which, HENRY-FITZHERBERT was Lord-Chamberlain to King STEPHEN, and was Lord of the Forest of Dene, in Gloucestershire. On this subject a memorable dispute arose between Brooke the Herald, and Camden, in consequence of an assertion of the latter in his Britannia:

"Herbert (says Camden) married the sister of William, Earl of Hereford, and in her right was Lord of Dene, from whom descended the noble family of Herbert; hence also, if we shall credit the heralds and escutcheons of arms, ANTHONY FITZ-HERBERT, the great Lawyer, and Lord-Chief-Justice of England, took his original. But, I think, he rather descended from the worshipful family of Fitz-Herberts, in Derbyshire."

To this Brooke answered, "Whoever shall derive the said Anthony, or any of that family of Fitz-Herberts, from any other original than that of Herbert, who m. the sister of William, Earl of Hereford, have and shall err from the truth."

SIR WILLIAM FITZHERBERT, 5th Lord of Norbury, to whom HENRY III. granted free warren in Norbury, anno 1252, had three sons,

Henry, (Sir) who s. his father at Norbury, and from him lineally descends the present

- I. JAMES - EMILIUS - WILLIAM - EVELYN, Viscount Cranbourne.
- II. Robert-Arthur-Talbot, b. 13 Feb., 1830.
- III. Euston-Brownlow-William, b. 24 April, 1834.
- IV. Mildred-Arabella-Charlotte.
- V. Blanche-Mary-Harriett.

His Lordship, who is High-Steward of Hertford, and Colonel of the Hertfordshire Militia, inherited the honors, as 2nd Marquess, at the decease of his father, 13 June, 1823.

Lineage.

This family was founded by

The Hon. ROBERT CECIL (youngest son of William Cecil, Lord Burghley, Queen ELIZABETH's celebrated High-Treasurer, by his 2nd wife, Mildred, dau. of Sir Anthony Cooke), who received the honor of Knighthood in 1601, was sworn of the Privy-Council, appointed Secretary of State, and, subsequently, Master of the Court of Wards, in the reign of ELIZABETH, but did not attain the honors of the Peerage until after the accession of JAMES I., when he was created 13 May, 1603, Baron Cecil, of Essendon, Co. Rutland; advanced to the Viscounty of Cranbourne, Co. Dorset, 20 Aug., 1604; and created Earl of Salisbury 4 May, 1605; during which periods he continued Secretary of State, but succeeded, subsequently, at the decease of the Earl of Dorset, to the Lord High-Treasurership. Although Secretary Cecil was remarkable for deformity of person, it appears by the following quaint epistle from William Brown to the Earl of Shrewsbury, dated 18 Sept., 1592, (from Lodge's Illustr. Vol. III.), that he was not deficient in gallantry: "I send your Lordship," says Brown, "here enclosed some verses compounded by Mr. Secretary, who got Hales to frame a ditty unto them. The occasion was, as I hear, that the young Lady Derby," (wife of Earl William, dau. of Lord Oxford), "wearing about her neck, in her bosom, a picture, which was in dainty tablet, the Queen espying it, asked what fine jewel that was. The Lady Derby was curious to excuse the shewing of it; but the Queen would have it, and opening it, and finding it to be Mr. Secretary's, snatched it away."

and tied it upon her shoe, and walked along with it there; then she took it thence, and pinned it on her elbow, and wore it some time there also, which Mr. Secretary being told of, made these verses, and had Hales to sing them in his Chamber. It was told her Majesty, that Mr. Secretary had rare music and songs; she would needs hear them; and so this ditty was sung, which you see first written. More verses there be likewise, whereof some or all were likewise sung. I do boldly send these things to your Lordship, which I would not do to any one else, for I hear they are very secret. Some of these verses argue that he repines not, though her Majesty please to grace others, and contents himself with the favor he hath." The Earl of Salisbury married also Elizabeth, sister of the unhappy Henry Brooke, Lord Cobham, and d. worn out with business, 17 Feb., 1611-12. In his last illness, he was heard to say to Sir Walter Cope, "Ease and pleasure quake to hear of death; but my life, full of cares and miseries, desireth to be dissolved." He had some years previously (1603) addressed a letter to Sir James Harrington, the Poet, in pretty much the same tone. "Good Knight," saith the minister, "rest content, and give heed to one that hath sorrowed in the bright lustre of a Court, and gone heavily on even the best seeming fair ground. 'Tis a great task to prove one's honesty, and yet not mar one's fortune. You have tasted a little hereof in our blessed Queen's time, who was more than a man, and, in truth, sometimes less than a woman. I wish I waited now in your presence chamber, with ease at my food, and rest in my bed. I am pushed from the shore of comfort, and know not where the winds and waves of a Court will bear me. I know it bringeth little comfort on earth; and he is, I reckon, no wise man, that looketh this way to Heaven." His Lordship was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Earl, K.G. This nobleman m. in Dec., 1608, Catherine, youngest dau. of Thomas Howard, Earl of Suffolk, and was s. at his decease by his grandson,

This family is descended from a common ancestor with the ducal house of Manchester, with the extinct Earls of Halifax, and with the late Duke of Montague. Its immediate progenitor was

SIR SIDNEY MONYAGUE, Knt., Master of the Court of Requests to CHARLES I., who represented the Co. Huntingdon in Parliament, in 1640, but was expelled, and committed to the Tower, in 1642, for declining to subscribe an oath, framed by the house, "That they would live and die with their General, Lord Essex." Sir Sidney m. Paulina, 3rd dau. of John Pepys, Esq. of Cottenham, Co. Cambridge, and, dying 23 Sept., 1644, was s. by his only surviving son,

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., M.P. for the Co. Huntingdon, a very distinguished Military Commander under the Parliamentary banner, during the Civil War, and subsequently Joint High-Admiral of England, in which capacity, having had sufficient influence to induce the whole Fleet to acknowledge the restored Monarchy, he was elevated to the Peerage, by CHARLES II., 12 July, 1660, by the titles of Baron Montagu, Viscount Hinchinbroke, and EARL OF SANDWICH; his Majesty conferring also upon his Lordship the Noble Order of the Garter, and appointing him Master of the Great Wardrobe, Admiral of the Narrow Seas, and Lieut.-Admiral to his Royal Highness the Duke of York, Lord-High-Admiral of England. At the subsequent coronation of the King, his Lordship carried St. Edward's staff. He m. Jemima, dau. of John, Lord Crew, of Stene, by whom he had six sons and four daughters; of which,

EDWARD, the eldest, was his successor.

Sidney, the second, m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Francis Wortley, of Wortley, Co. York, Bart., and assumed the surname of WORTLEY. This gentleman was a Member of Parliament, and amongst those who invited over the PRINCE OF ORANGE. He d. in 1727, and was s. by his son,

EDWARD WORTLEY-MONTAGU, Esq., whom Lady Mary Pierrepont, dau. of Evelyn, 1st Duke of Kingston. This celebrated woman so well known as Lady MARY WORTLEY-MONTAGU,* accompa-

* Lady MARY WORTLEY-MONTAGU was born at Thoresby, in Nottinghamshire, the seat of her father the Duke of Kingston, about 1690; and lost her mother, Mary, dau. of William, Earl of Denbigh, in 1694. She was educated under the superintendence of Bishop Burnet, and obtained a high degree of mental cultivation. Amongst her other talents was an extraordinary facility in learning languages; and in the assemblage of ten embassies from different countries, of which the society at Pera and Belgrade, was composed, she had daily opportunities of extending her knowledge and practice of them. She even attempted the Turkish language, under the tuition of one nied her husband in his embassy to the Turkish Court, and her letters thence attained the highest degree of popularity. By this lady Mr. Montagu left a son EDWARD, who d. unm. and a dau. Mary, m. to John, Earl of Bute, and her grandson, JAMES, Lord Wharfedale, has inherited the WORTLEY estates.

His Lordship, who, after the Restoration, attained the highest renown as a Naval Officer, fell in the great sea-fight with the Dutch, off Southwold Bay, 28 May, 1672, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 2nd Earl, who m. Anne, 4th dau. of Richard Boyle, Earl of Burlington, and dying in Feb., 1698-9, was s. by his son,

EDWARD, 3rd Earl, Lord-Lieutenant and Custos-Rotulorum of the Co. Huntingdon. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, and sister and co-heir of Charles, 3rd Earl, and was s. at his decease, 20 Oct., 1729, by his grandson,

JOHN, 4th Earl (son of Edward-Richard, Viscount Hinchinbroke, who d. in 1772, by Elizabeth, only dau. of Alexander Popham, Esq., of Littlecote, Co. Wilts. (see BURKE'S Commoners). This nobleman, an eminent diplomatist and statesman, assisted at the celebrated congress of Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748. His Lordship was subsequently Secretary of State, and First Lord of the Admiralty. He m. in March, 1740-1, Judith, dau. of Charles, Viscount Fane, of the Kingdom of Ireland, and was s. at his demise, in 1792, by his only surviving son,

JOHN, 5th Earl, who m. 1st, in 1766, Elizabeth, only surviving dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Halifax, by whom he had a son, George, Viscount Hinchinbroke, who m. Miss Beckingham, but d. s. p. in 1790, and a dau. Caroline. His Lordship m. 2ndly, in 1772, Lady Mary Paulet, dau. of Harry, sixth and last Duke of Bolton, by whom he had two sons and two daughters. The Earl d. in 1814, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE-JOHN, 6th Earl; b. 5 March, 1773; m. 9 July, 1804, Louisa, dau. of Armar, 1st Earl of Belmore, and sister of the present Earl, by whom he left issue,

JOHN-WILLIAM, present Peer.

Harriet-Mary, m. 12 April, 1823, to the Hon. William Bingham Baring, Esq., M.P.

His Lordship died in May, 1818.

of Mr. Wortley's interpreters. For several years after her return, and before the death of her husband, she resided upon the Continent, but came back to England in 1761, the year in which Mr. Montagu died. At that period she is thus described by Mrs. Montagu, in a letter to her sister, Mrs. William Robinson. "You have lately returned us from Italy a very extraordinary personage, Lady Mary Wortley. When nature is at the trouble of making a very singular person, time does right in respecting it. Medals are preserved, when common coin is worn out; and as great geniuses are rather matters of curiosity than use, this lady seems to be reserved for a wonder to more than one generation. She does not look older than when she went abroad; has more than the vivacity of fifteen; and a memory which perhaps is unique. Several people visited her out of curiosity, which she did not like. I visit her because her husband and mine were cousins-germans; and though she has not any foolish partiality for her husband and his relations, I was very graciously received, and you may imagine entertained by one who neither thinks, speaks, acts, or dresses, like any body else. Her domestic is made up of all nations; and when you get into her drawing-room, you imagine that you are in the first story of the Tower of Babel. An Hungarian servant takes your name at the door; he gives it to an Italian, who delivers it to a Frenchman; the Frenchman to a Swiss; and the Swiss to a Poland; so that by the time you get to her Ladyship's presence, you have changed your name five times without the expense of an Act of Parliament." Lady Mary Wortley-Montagu d. 21 Aug., 1702.

sumed, by royal permission, 26 Feb., 1825, that surname and the armorial ensigns of the family in addition to and after those of Twistleton; and, 16 March following, by royal licence also, he assumed, on behalf of himself and his issue, in compliance with a proviso in an indenture of settlement made by his father-in-law, the late Lord Eardley, the surname and arms of EARDLEY, in addition to and before those which his Lordship then used.

Lineage.

This family derives its honors from females, through the very ancient houses of Say and of Fienes. The founder of the former family in England,

WILLIAM DE SAY, one of the companions of the CONQUEROR in 1066, m. Agnes, dau. of the famous Hugh de Grentesmaison, and grandau. (maternally) of Ivo, Count de Ballemonte, and was grandfather of

WILLIAM DE SAY, Baron Say, whose grandson,

GEOFFREY DE SAY, was one of the Barons who took up arms against King JOHN, and dying in 1230, was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SAY, Lord of Berling, Seale, &c., in Kent, and Governor of the Castle of Rochester in 1260, who was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SAY, summoned to Parliament in 1294, and, dying in the following year, was s. by his son,

GEOFFREY DE SAY, who was summoned to Parliament from 1313 to 1321. He d. in 1322, and was s. by his only son,

SIR GEOFFREY DE SAY, summoned to Parliament from 1342 to 1353. This Baron was Admiral of the fleet, and Knight-Banneret. He m. Maud, dau. of Guy de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, by whom he had issue,

William de Say, who was summoned to Parliament, but whose male line ceased with his son, JOHN, who was also summoned to Parliament, and, at whose decease, the Barony of Say devolved upon his (John's) sister, ELIZABETH DE SAY, at whose decease, s. p. in 1399, it fell into ABBYANCE, as it still continues, between the descendants of her Ladyship's aunts, IDONEA, Lady Clinton, and JOANE, Lady Fienes (refer to BURKE'S Extinct Peerage).

Idonia, m. to John, 3rd Lord Clinton.

Elizabeth, who d. issueless.

Joan, who m. Sir William Fienes, and whose son,

SIR WILLIAM FIENES, was Sheriff of Surrey and Sussex in 1297, and again in 1300. This Sir William m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of William Battisford, and had two sons,

Roger, (Sir) whose son,

Richard, marrying Joan, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Dacre, was declared Lord Dacre in the 37th year of HENRY IV.

SIR JAMES FIENES, who was summoned to Parliament 3 March, 1447, as Lord Saye and Sele, and created, on the 6th of the same month, in open Parliament, the Lords spiritual and temporal acquiescing, a Baron of the realm, by the same title. His Lordship had previously obtained a grant of the Office of Constable of Dover, and Warden of the Cinque-Ports, to himself and his heirs male for ever, and was constituted Lord-Treasurer of England in 1440. The ultimate fate, however, of this powerful noble marks the instability of greatness at the period in which he lived. Being a prisoner in the Tower when Jack Cade's mob entered the City of London, he was dragged by the riotous multitude from thence to the Standard at Cheapside, and there beheaded, 4 July, 1451. The Baron was s. by his son (by his wife, Emmeline, dau. of Cromer, of Willingham, and, maternally, one of the co-heirs of Trillow),

WILLIAM, 2nd Lord Saye and Sele. This nobleman obtained, in 1461, a grant of the Office of Constable of Porchester Castle, and of Pevensey Castle, for life; and being one of the Lords who attended the King into the north, was made Vice-Admiral to Richard Nevil, the great Earl of Warwick, then High Admiral of England. In the 10th year of EDWARD IV., he was one of the Lords that fled with the King into Flanders, and, upon his Majesty's return landed with him at Ravenspur, in Holderness, but was soon afterwards slain at the battle of Barnet, 14 April, 1471. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. and heir of William Wickham,* by whom he acquired the Lordship of Broughton, in Oxfordshire. He was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY FIENES, who assumed the title of Lord Saye, but was never summoned to parliament. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir Richard Harcourt, Knt., and, dying in 1476, was s. by his son,

RICHARD FIENES, who likewise bore the title, but had no summons to parliament. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Crofts, Esq. of Chipping Norton, Co. Oxford, and was s. by his son,

EDWARD FIENES, who refused to take up the title, because his mother, who had married Richard West, Esq., held the capital seat and the greater part of the estates. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Danvers, of Dantsey, Co. Wilts, K.B., and was s. by his son,

RICHARD FIENES, who m. Ursula, dau. of Richard Fermour, of Easton Neston, and, dying in 1579, was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD FIENES, Knt., who obtained a recognition of his claim to the Barony of Saye and Sele, by letters patent from JAMES I., dated 9 Aug., 1603, wherein the said Barony was confirmed to himself and to his heirs general; but as he took his place in Parliament as a junior Baron, these letters appear to have been considered a new creation. His Lordship m. 1st, Constance, dau. of Sir William Kingsmill, of Sidmanton, Hants; and, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Henry Coddington, Esq. He d. in 1613, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Baron, under the new patent, who was created VISCOUNT SAYE AND SELE 7 July, 1624. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Temple, Esq. of Stow, Co. Buckingham, by whom he had (with five daughters)

JAMES, his successor.

John, a Col. in the Parliament's Army, and one of CROMWELL's Lords. His son, LAURENCE, became 5th Viscount.

Richard, m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heir of Andrew Burrell, Esq., by whom he had two sons, who predeceased him; and, 2ndly, Susanna, dau. of Sir William Cobb, of Adderbury, Co. Oxford, and left

RICHARD FIENES, Esq., as 6th Viscount (refer to Richard, 4th son of the 1st Viscount), at whose demise in 1781, without issue, the Viscounty expired; but the ancient Barony, which had remained in abeyance, since 1674, was claimed in the same year (1781) by

THOMAS TWISLETON, Esq. of Broughton Castle, Co. Oxford, as heir-general of James, 9th Baron and 2nd Viscount (refer to the Hon. Elizabeth Fienes, elder dau. and co-heir of the 2nd Viscount, and her descendants), which claim (the line of the other daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Ellis, having failed) being allowed, he was summoned to Parliament, 29 June, 1781, as BARON SAYE AND SELE. Lineage.

The surname of this family was assumed from LUMLEY on the Wear, in the Bishoprick of Durham, and the family deduces its lineage from

LIULPH (son of Osbert de Lumley), who m. Algetha, dau. of Aldred, Earl of Northumberland, by Edgina, dau. of ETHELRED II. This Liulph, who was a nobleman of great popularity in the time of the CONFESSOR, was murdered by means of Leofric, Chaplain to Walcher, Bishop of Durham; a crime soon after avenged by the populace of Durham, who sacrificed both the Chaplain and the Prelate to their just resentment. The eldest son of Liulph, assuming the surname of Lumley, s. as

UCHTRD DE LUMLEY, and from him lineally descended

ROGER DE LUMLEY, who m. Sybil, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the great Northumberland feudal Baron, HUGH DE MOREWIC, and was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT DE LUMLEY, who m. Lucia, one of the three sisters and co-heirs of William, Robert, and Thomas de Thweng, Barons Thweng, and was by his son,

SIR MARMADUKE DE LUMLEY, Knt., who first assumed the arms of the ancient House of Thweng, which arms the family have ever since borne. This Sir Marmaduke was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT DE LUMLEY, who d. unm., 48 EDWARD III., and a minor, was s. by his brother,

SIR RALPH DE LUMLEY, Knt., who was summoned to Parliament among the Barons of the Realm, from 1384 to 1399. This nobleman was a Deputy-Governor of Berwick-upon-Tweed, under Henry de Percy, Earl of Northumberland, in the 15th of RICHARD II., and obtained royal permission, in the 16th of the same month, to convert his manor-house of Lumley into a castle. His Lordship joining, subsequently, however, in the rebellion of Thomas de Holland, Earl of Kent, was attainted, and died in the field of battle. He had m. Eleanor, dau. of John, Lord Nevil, of Raby, and sister of Ralph, Earl of Westmorland, and left, with three daus., four sons; of whom the youngest, Marmaduke, was successively Master of Trinity-Hall, Cambridge, and Chancellor of that University, Bishop of Carlisle (1430), Treasurer of England (1446), and Bishop of Lincoln (1451). Thomas, the eldest son, d. in 1404, and was s. by his brother,

SIR JOHN DE LUMLEY, Lord Lumley, who, doing homage in the 6th of HENRY IV., had livery of all castles, manors, and lands, whereof Sir Ralph Lumley, his father, was seized at the time of his attainder, and was restored in blood by Parliament in 1411. This nobleman was actively engaged in the French wars of HENRY IV., and in those of HENRY V.: in the 10th year of whose reign he lost his life with Thomas, Duke of Clarence, at the battle of Baugy, in Anjou (13 April, 1421), and was s. by his only son,

THOMAS DE LUMLEY, who obtained from Parliament, in 1461, a reversal of the attainder of his grandfather, and was summoned, as a Baron, from 1461 to 1497, in which latter year he is supposed to have died. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir James Harrington, and was s. by his only son,

SIR GEORGE, Lord Lumley, who does not appear to have been summoned at any time to Parliament. This nobleman was Sheriff of Northumberland, a powerful office in those days, in the 2nd year of EDWARD IV. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Roger Thornton, Esq., an opulent Merchant of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, with whose bastard son, Giles Thornton, he had, subsequently, procrasted litigation, until, at length, he slew the said Giles at Windsor. His Lordship's eldest son, Thomas Lumley, pre-deceasing him, left four sons and three daus., by his wife, Elizabeth-Plantagenet, natural dau. of EDWARD IV., by Lady Elizabeth Lucy. Lord Lumley d. in the 23rd year of HENRY VII., and was s. by his grandson,

RICHARD, Lord Lumley, who had summons to Parliament in 1509. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Sir John Conyers, K.G., of Hornby Castle, Co. York, by whom he left two sons,

JOHN, his successor.

Anthony, who m. a dau. of Richard Gray, Esq., Co. Northumberland, and left

Richard, who m. Anne, dau. of — Kartwich, Esq., and had, with other issue,

Richard, (Sir) of whom hereafter, as 1st Viscount LUMLEY.

His Lordship d. in 1510, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, Lord Lumley, summoned to Parliament in 1514. This nobleman was one of the Barons who signed, in the 22nd year of HENRY VIII., the memorable letter to Pope CLEMENT VII., intimating, that unless his holiness complied with the King's wishes regarding his divorce from Queen CATHERINE, that the papal supremacy would be much endangered in England. But, in the 28th of the same Monarch, he was one of the chief of those Northern Lords who appeared in the insurrection, called the Pilgrimage of Grace; he shared, however, the royal clemency. His Lordship m. Joan, dau. of Henry, Lord Scroop, of Bolton, by whom he had an only son,

GEORGE, who being implicated in the Treason of Lord Darcy, Sir Thomas Percy, and others, was committed to the Tower, and convicted and executed. He m. Jane, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Knightley, by whom he had two daus. and a son,

JOHN, who was created Lord Lumley, by Parliament.

Jane, m. to Geoffrey Markham, Esq., and d. s. p.

Barbara, m. to Humphrey Lloyd, Esq. of Denbigh, and her descendant, the Rev. Doctor LLOYD, claimed, unsuccessfully, the Barony of Lumley, in 1723. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage).

His Lordship was s. by his grandson,

JOHN, who was restored in blood by an Act of Parliament passed in 1547, whereby it was enacted that the said John and his heirs male should enjoy the dignity of a Baron. This nobleman was one of the Peers who sat in judgment upon MARY, Queen of Scots, and Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex. His Lordship m. twice, but dying issueless, 11 April, 1609, the ancient Barony of Lumley expired (the Act of Parliament, which restored his Lordship to the dignity of Lord Lumley, not having repealed the attainder of his father), as did the Barony of the new creation, it being limited to heirs male only, while the estates devolved by his Lordship's will and by deed of settlement, upon his kinsman,

SIR RICHARD LUMLEY, Knt. (refer to the Hon. Anthony Lumley, 2nd son of Richard, Lord Lumley), who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, as Viscount

Lumley, of Waterford, 12 July, 1690. This nobleman, adhering faithfully to the King during the Civil Wars, made Lumley Castle a garrison, and being a Principal Commander under Prince Rupert, marched with that general into the West of England, and was at the siege of Bristol, where he remained until its surrender, in 1645. His Lordship m. Frances, dau. of Henry Shelly, Esq. of Wirminghurst Park, in Sussex, and was s. on his decease by his grandson,

RICHARD, 2nd Viscount (son of the Hon. John Lumley, by Mary, dau. and eventually one of the heirs of Sir Henry Compton, K.B. of Bramble Teigh, in Sussex), who was enrolled amongst the Peers of England, 31 May, 1681, as Baron Lumley, of Lumley Castle, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his brother, Henry. His Lordship was created, 10 April, 1689, Viscount Lumley, and 15 April, 1690, EARL OF SCARBOROUGH. This nobleman was a military Officer, and had a chief command at the battle of Sedgemoor, in 1685, wherein the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth was defeated. His Lordship m. Frances, only dau. and heir of Sir Henry Jones, of Aston, Co. Oxford, and dying in 1721, was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS, 3rd Earl, K.B., who had assumed the surname of "Saunderson," by Act of Parliament, upon inheriting the estates of James Saunderson, Earl of Castleton, in Ireland, at that nobleman's decease, in 1723. i. A SON AND HEIR, b. in 1829.

ii. A son, b. in 1830.

Lineage.

The founder of the ancient and far-spreading family of Scot in North Britain,

UCHTREDUS FILIUS SCOTI, was witness to the foundation charters of the Abbeys of Holyrood House and Selkirk, by DAVID II., in the years 1128 and 1130. It does not appear, however, that this person had assumed the name of Scot as a surname, but that he was designated "filius Scotti," as the son of a Scotsman, to distinguish him from other persons called Uchtred, which was then a common Christian name beyond the Tweed. This Uchtred was father of

RICHARD, who did assume the surname of Scot, and was living in the reigns of MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM the Lion. This Richard Scot founded the Priory of St. Andrews, and d. in 1158, leaving two sons,

Richard, ancestor of the Dukes of Buccleugh;

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, a person of great power in the Co. Fife, about the middle of the twelfth century. This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Duncan Syras, of that ilk, by whom he had one son, DUNCAN, with whose consent, and that of his lady, Sir Michael made a donation to the Monastery of Dunfermline, "pro salute animæ suæ," &c. &c., of the lands of Gascumenfen, in Fifeshire. The great-grandson of this Sir Michael,

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, 2nd Baron of Balweary, was a person of very extraordinary abilities, and made a remarkable figure at the time in which he lived. After pursuing, with unusual success, the study of languages, belles lettres, and mathematics at home, Sir Michael travelled into France, where he remained several years, and thence passed into Germany, where he spent some time at the Court of FREDERICK II. The extraordinary discoveries of Sir Michael, in the science of chemistry, obtained him the character of a magician, and to this day there are marvellous tales told in Scotland of his communings with the evil one. In the year 1290, Sir Michael Scott and Sir Michael de Wemyss were, by the States of the nation, deputed Ambassadors Extraordinary to the Court of Norway, to bring home Queen MARGARET, then the undoubted heir to the Crown of Scotland, and who was to have espoused Prince Edward of England; but, unfortunately, her Majesty died at Orkney, in her way to Scotland, in 1291. Sir Michael d. about the year 1294, and from him lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT, of Balweary, who, in the life-time of his father, was put in possession of the lands and Barony of Innertiel, and was long designated by that title. This gentleman had two sons,

WILLIAM, who succeeded him;

ANDREW SCOTT, Esq., who obtained from his father the lands and Barony of Glendoick, Co. Perth, with the express provision that, after his death, those lands should return to the family of Balweary. This Andrew lived temp. Queen Mary, and obtained the lands of Kirkstyle, Co. Perth, which subsequently became the title of his family. The great-grandson of this Andrew,

I. JOHN SCOTT, Esq. of Kirkstyle, obtaining a charter under the Great Seal, in 1670, of the lands and Barony of Ancrum, assumed that designation, and was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 27 Oct., 1671, with remainder to his heirs male generally. Sir John m. thrice: 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Francis Scott, Esq. of Mangerton, by whom he had five sons and five daughters; 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Bennet, of Grubbet, by whom he had two daughters; and, 3rdly, Barbara, dau. of — Ker, Esq. of Littledeanby, by whom he had no issue. He d. in 1712, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR PATRICK, a Lawyer of eminence, who was summoned, by the Prince of Orange, to the Scottish convention, in 1688, for the Co. Selkirk. This gentleman m. 1st, Anne, dau. of William Wallace, Esq. of Helington, by whom he obtained a considerable fortune, but had no surviving issue. Sir Patrick m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scot, of Harden, by whom he had two sons and four daughters. He d. in 1734, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR JOHN. This gentleman m. Christian, dau. of William Nisbet, Esq. of Dirleton, by whom he had four sons and a daughter. Sir John d. 21 Feb., 1746, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR WILLIAM, who d. 16 June, 1700, and was s. by his nephew,

This Walter of Raeburn was forcibly deprived of the education of his children, had part of his estates wrested from him, and was himself thrown into the prison of Edinburgh, while his wife was incarcerated in that of Jedburgh, for presuming to embrace the tenets of Quakerism. I. WALTER SCOTT, the illustrious "Author of Waverley," was born in the College Wynd of Edinburgh, 15 Aug., 1771. He received his education at Mr. Leechman's Seminary, at the High School, and finally at the University of Edinburgh: he was called to the Bar as an advocate, 10 July, 1792. His love of literature, however, prevented his entering with energy into his profession, and he very soon relinquished the labours of the law for those of an author, more congenial to his taste. After attaining the highest reputation as a poet, he commenced his brilliant career as a novelist, by the anonymous publication of Waverley, in 1814. On the 22 April, 1820, Mr. Scott was created a Baronet, his Baronetcy being the first conferred in the last reign, and the only one during that year. Though generally ascribed to Scott, the authorship of the Waverley Novels remained an inviolate secret, until the failure of the publishers, Messrs. Constable and Co., in 1826. By this unfortunate event, Sir Walter Scott's affairs were brought to the verge of ruin, but he met the calamity with inflexible courage and honour. "Gentlemen," said he to his creditors, "time and I, against any two: let me take this good ally into company, and I believe I shall be able to pay you every farthing." This, had he lived, he would have accomplished, for during the last years of his life, the revenue of his intellect may be fixed at £10,000 a year. In the winter of 1830, his health first declined, and in the autumn of the ensuing year he went upon the continent, but finding his strength rapidly decay, he returned, and died in Scotland, 21 Sept., 1832, leaving behind him a name which already receives honor in every civilized nation of the globe, and which will go down to posterity, coupled with those of Shakespeare, Milton, Burns, and Byron. Sir Walter, who was one of the principal Clerks of the Session of Scotland, and Sheriff Depute of the Shire of Selkirk, m. 24 Dec., 1797, Margaret-Charlotte, dau. of John Carpenter, Esq. of Lyons, a gentleman who fell a victim to the excesses of the French Revolution, by whom (who d. 14 May, 1826) he had issue,

SETON.

SETON, SIR HENRY JOHN, Bart., of Abercorn, Co. Linlithgow.

Lineage.

This very ancient and eminent family deduces its descent from

DOUGAL DE SETON, who lived in the reign of King EDGAR, son of MALCOLM III., and was father of

SECKER DE SETON, who is found a witness in the charters of King DAVID I., and from whom lineally descended

SIR CHRISTOPHER SETON, one of the great Scottish Barons who supported Robert the Bruce, and at the battle of Methven, in 1306, had the honor of being of the party which rescued that monarch from the hands of the English. Soon afterwards, however, Sir Christopher had the misfortune to be taken prisoner himself, in the castle of Lochdown, and with his brother, John, and other Scottish patriots, was ordered to be put to death by King EDWARD. This gallant supporter of his country's cause m. Christian Bruce, sister of King ROBERT, and was s. by his only son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, who was restored by his uncle, King ROBERT BRUCE, to all the lands possessed by his progenitors in Scotland, and obtained several other important grants and privileges from the same monarch. Sir Alexander was Governor of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and heading an army to oppose Edward Balliol, who landed in Fifeshire, he fell in the conflict, near Kinghorn, in 1332, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, in his estates and the Governorship of Berwick. This gallant person has been justly celebrated for his defence of the town of Berwick against King EDWARD III., and the whole English army. The English monarch having called upon the garrison to surrender, threatened, in case of refusal, to put the governor's two sons, then in his hands as hostages, to death: but nothing could induce Sir Alexander to give up the town, so long as he had the power of defending it; and the King is accused of having put his menace into execution, by causing William and Thomas Seton to be hung upon a gibbet, within view of their gallant father. Berwick subsequently fell, after the battle of Halidon Hill, in 1333. Sir Alexander d. in 1337, and was s. by his son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, of Seton, who was s. by his son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON. This gentleman m. Catherine, dau. of Sir William Sinclair, of Herdmanstown, by whom he had two sons,

Sir John, afterwards Lord Seton, progenitor of the Earls of Winton; and

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heiress of Sir Adam Gordon, by which marriage he obtained the estates of Gordon, Huntly, &c. This Sir Alexander, who was deputed one of the ambassadors to the court of England, to negotiate for King JAMES's liberty, had been created by that monarch a Lord of Parliament. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son, ALEXANDER SETON, Lord Gordon. This nobleman m. thrice: 1st, Jean, dau. of Robert, Lord Keith, by whom he had no issue; 2ndly, Egidia, dau. and sole heiress of John Hay, Esq. of Tillybody, by whom he acquired the lands of Touch, and other great estates; and had an only son, ALEXANDER. He m. 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Crichton, Lord Chancellor of Scotland, by whom he had several children. His Lordship was created Earl of Huntly in 1445, and by a second patent, in 1449, he had the succession altered from heirs male generally to the heirs male of his third marriage; in consequence of which, his eldest son by that marriage, George Seton, s. at his decease, to the Peerage, while his eldest son, by his second marriage,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, inherited the lands of Touch, Tillybody, &c. This Sir Alexander being a person of great influence, was appointed heritable armour-bearer and squire of the body to King JAMES III. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas, 2nd Earl of Mar, and was s. by his only son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, of Touch; from whom lineally descended,

I. SIR WILLIAM SETON, who obtained a charter under the great seal, in 1602, of the lands and barony of Abercorn, Co. Linlithgow, and was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1603, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever. Sir William m. Christian, dau. of George Dundas, of Dundas, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WALTER, an Advocate before the Court of Session, and Commissary Clerk of Edinburgh. This gentleman m. Euphania, dau. of Sir Robert Murray, of Priestfield, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR HENRY, who m. Barbara, dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Bogie, Bart., by whom he had four sons and a dau. Upon the demise of the last, James Seton, Esq. of Touch, without issue, Sir Henry became undoubted male heir of Sir Alexander Seton, eldest son of Alexander, Lord Gordon, 1st Earl of Huntly. He d. in 1751, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR HENRY, of Culbeg, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Alexander Hay, Esq. of Drumelzier, and had SET SETON.

SETON, SIR WILLIAM COOTE, Bart., of Pitmedden, Co. Aberdeen, b. 19 Dec., 1808, m. 26 Nov., 1834, Eliza-Henrietta, 2nd dau. of the late Henry Lumsden, Esq., and relict of Captain Wilson, of the Hon. E.I.C. service, and has issue. Sir William s. to the title, as 7th Baronet, upon the decease of his grandfather, in 1819.

Lineage.

From a curious MS. entitled "The Geneologie and History of the illustrious House and Sirname of Seton, collected and sett forth by Sir Richard Maitland, of Leithington, a sister's son of the said house," (father of the famous secretary so memorable in the days of the unhappy Mary, and ancestor of the noble house of Lauderdale), we extract the following particulars regarding the origin of this family:—"There were few surnames in Scotland (says Sir Richard) before the time of King MALCOLM CANMORE, except that after the manner yet used in the Highlands, they used their father's names subjoined to their own, in form of a patronimic. The said King MALCOLM gave to his nobles and gentlemen particular surnames; some by reason of their offices, and some after the names of the lands which they possessed, and some for other causes. Amongst whom the predecessor of this family got the name of Seton, as the Chronicles testify, by occasion of the possession of the lands of that name, which was given to the lands by reason that the town thereof is situate hard upon the sea.

"I cannot find the proper name of him who first received the surname; the first whose proper name I find, is called Dougal Seton; he was son, or else nephew, to him who first received this surname, and lived in the time of King ALEXANDER I."

From this Dougal, the Maitland manuscript traces the line to CHRISTALL SETON (and then continues), "who in the days of William Wallace, was made Knt. by King ROBERT BRUCE, and styled (for his many valiant acts against the Englishmen) Good Christall Seton. At the field of Methven, King ROBERT BRUCE being taken captive, his taker crying in derision, 'who will help the new made King?' the said Christall rescued the King, and beat down them who had him in hands. He m. the sister of the said King ROBERT, who gave him the double treasure about his coat of arms, in like manner it is borne by the King himself. At length he was taken and carried to London, where he was most cruelly put to death; which, when King ROBERT heard, as he was walking upon a little hill beside the town of Dumfries, after much sorrow and regret for the unworthy death of so noble a Knight, in the same place where he was walking, founded a chapel in honor of the Virgin Mary; and, in remembrance of the said Sir Christall, founded a priest to do service therein perpetually, and to pray for the said Sir Christall, mortifying five pounds yearly out of the barony of Caerlaverock, for sustentation of the said priest. The chapel was commonly called Christall's chapel, and was standing undecayed in 1552." From this gallant and unfortunate Knight, we pass to

WILLIAM SETON, who was created a Lord of Parliament. This nobleman (we are informed) bought the marriage of the lady, heretrix of Gordon and Strabogie, intending to bestow her on his eldest son, John; but he being in affection of a daughter of the Earl of March, did marry her without his father's knowledge; whereof the said Lord William bestowed her on his second son,

ALEXANDER SETON, of whom are descended the Earls of Huntly, and the Setons, of Meldrum, of Touch, and Tillybodie; for she bore to him two sons; the eldest, Alexander, was 1st Earl of Huntly, having adopted the name of Gordon; and the second,

WILLIAM SETON, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William de Meldrum, by whom he got that barony and several other estates. From this William lineally descended

WILLIAM SETON, of Meldrum, who s. in 1533, and m. 1st, Janet, dau. of James Gordon, Esq. of Lesmoir, by whom he had three sons; and, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Innes, of Leuchars, by whom he had George, Chancellor of Aberdeen, and

JAMES SETON, who having acquired the lands of Pitmedden, in Aberdeenshire, adopted that designation. The great grandson of this gentleman,

I. SIR ALEXANDER SETON, Knt., of Pitmedden, having obtained great eminence as a lawyer, was appointed one of the Senators of the College of Justice and a Lord of Justiciary, in 1677. He was also elected Knight of the Shire for Aberdeen, and created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 15 Jan., 1684. After the Revolution, he was offered the station of Lord of Session, by King WILLIAM, but declined the office, deeming it inconsistent with the oaths he had already taken: he retired, therefore, into private life. Sir Alexander m. Margaret, dau. of William Lauder, Esq., and had issue,

Jane, dau. of Sir John Kingmill, of Sydmonton, Co. Southampton, and dying 8 May, 1566, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN COOPER, M.P., in 1586, for Whitechurch, Hants, who m. Martha, dau. of Anthony Skutt, Esq. of Stanton Drew, in Somersetshire, and dying in 1610, was s. by his only son.

I. JOHN COOPER, Esq. of Rockbourne, Co. Southampton, who was created a Baronet 4 July, 1622. Sir John m. 1st, Anne, dau. and sole heiress of Sir Anthony Ashley, Knt. of Wimbourne St. Giles, Co. Dorset, Secretary-at-War in the reign of Queen ELIZABETH, by whom he had two sons and a dau. He espoused, 2ndly, Mary, relict of Sir Charles Morrison, and dau. and co-heiress of Baptist Hicks, Viscount Campden, but had no other issue. He d. 23 March, 1631, and was s. by his elder son,

II. SIR ANTHONY-ASHLEY COOPER, b. 22 July, 1621, who became one of the most prominent statesmen of the troubled times in which he lived. Actively engaged in public affairs during the civil wars, Sir Anthony is to be found at the commencement espousing the cause of royalty; subsequently, a parliamentarian; and, finally, contributing to the restoration of the monarchy; after the accomplishment of which desirable event, he was elevated to the Peerage, by the title of Baron Ashley, of Winborne St. Giles, Co. Dorset (20 April, 1661), and, under that title became a member of the celebrated cabinet of CHARLES II., so well known as the "Cabal." His Lordship was constituted Lord-Lieutenant of the Co. Dorset, in Jan., 1671-2, and advanced to an Earldom, by the titles of Baron Cooper, of Paulett, Co. Somerset, and EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, 23 April, 1672, and declared, in the Nov. following, Lord High Chancellor of England. To the Earl of Shaftesbury this country owes her second great charter of freedom, the HABEAS CORPUS ACT. His Lordship was not only the originator of that measure; but in its doubtful course through both houses he preserved it, and ensured its ultimate success. Lord Shaftesbury was also the first that introduced a bill to render the judges independent of the crown. The Earl m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Thomas, Lord Coventry, by whom he had no issue; he espoused, 2ndly, Frances, dau. of David (Cecil), Earl of Exeter, by which lady he had one surviving son, ANTHONY; and, 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of William, Lord Spencer, of Wormlighton, but had no other issue. His Lordship becoming a strong opponent of the measures of the court, was obliged to retire to Holland, where he died of the gout in his stomach, 22 Jan., 1683. Of this wily politician Horace Walpole gives the following character:—"As Lord Rochester was immersed only in the vices of that reign, he was an innocent character compared to those who were plunged in its crimes; a great weight of the latter fell to the share of the Lord in question, who had canted tyranny under Cromwell, practised it under CHARLES II., and who disgraced the cause of liberty, by being the busiest instrument for it, when every other party had rejected it. It was the weakest vanity in him to brag that Cromwell would have made him King; the best he could hope for was not to be believed; if true, it only proved that Cromwell took him for a fool. That he should have acted in the trial of the regicides was but agreeable to his character, or to his want of it. Let us hasten to his works: he was rather a copious writer for faction than an author, for in no light can one imagine that he wished to be remembered." He is elsewhere, however, described as a great encourager of learning and learned men; a master of several languages; a critic in the Latin, which he spoke with the utmost elegance and fluency; as also well versed in Greek and French, and a complete master of the English, his speeches being equalled by few of his contemporaries—surpassed by none. He is said to have made the laws his chief study, and that having such a capacious memory, and so true a judgment, every thing he read he made his own. Deeply read, too, in ancient and modern history; knowing the interests of the several princes and states in christendom, with the characters of the ministers and persons of note at every court; the names of whom, with some account of each, he had by him, written in an alphabetical tablet. As Chancellor, Lord Shaftesbury's merits were admitted by all—in his judicial capacity he had no enemy. His Lordship was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

The surname of this family was adopted from the town of Dutton, in Cheshire.

ODARD, one of the companions in arms of the Conqueror, having seated himself in that county, acquired large possessions, according to Domesday-book, from Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester. From this Odard lineally descended

SIR THOMAS DUTTON, of Dutton, High Sheriff of Cheshire in 1268, whose great-grandson,

SIR THOMAS DUTTON, was Seneschal, Governor, and Receiver of the Castle and Honor of Halton, in Cheshire, and Sheriff of that County in the 30th and 33rd of Edward III. He d. in 1381, and from him descended

SIR PIERRE DUTTON, who built, in 1530, the New Hall at Dutton, still in part remaining. His great-great-grandson,

THOMAS DUTTON, Esq., purchased the manor of Sherborne, in Gloucestershire, and dying 4 Oct., 1581, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DUTTON, Esq. of Sherborne, who served the office of Sheriff for the County of Gloucester in 1590 and in 1601. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Knt., Lord Mayor of London, by whom he had seven sons and four daughters, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

JOHN DUTTON, Esq., of Sherborne, M.P. for, and Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Gloucester. Of this gentleman, Wood, in his Athenæ Oxonienses, speaks thus:—"John Dutton, Esq., of Sherbourne, in Gloucestershire. He was one of the knights for that County, to sit in the said Parliament, 1640, but being frightened thence by the tumults that came up to the Parliament doors, as other royalists were, he conveyed himself privately to Oxford, and sat there. He was a learned and prudent man, and as one of the richest, so one of the meekest men in England. He was active in making the defence, and drawing up the articles of Oxon, when the garrison was to be surrendered to the Parliament; for which, and his steady loyalty, he was afterwards forced to pay a round sum in Goldsmiths' Hall, London." The youngest brother of this gentleman,

SIR RALPH DUTTON, Knt., Gentleman of the Privy Chamber extraordinary, and High Sheriff of Gloucester, m. Mary, daughter of Sir William Duncombe, Knt., of London, by whom he had two sons, the elder of whom,

WILLIAM DUTTON, Esq., inheriting the property of his uncle, became "of Sherborne," but dying without issue, it devolved upon his brother,

SIR RALPH DUTTON, of Sherborne, M.P. for the County of Gloucester, who was created a Baronet 22 June, 1678, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN DUTTON, 2nd Bart., M.P. for the County of Gloucester; at whose decease, without surviving issue, in 1743, the Baronetcy expired, while the estates passed, by his testamentary disposition, to his nephew,

Mary-Alatheia-Beatrix. This lady has been raised to the rank of a Princess, by the King of Bavaria, Gwendoline Catherine, m. 11 May, 1835, the Prince of Sulmona, eldest son of the Italian Prince Borghese.

His Lordship s. as 17th Earl, at the decease of his uncle, 6 Apr., 1827.

Lord Shrewsbury is premier Earl of England, and hereditary Lord High Steward of Ireland (see Waterford and Wexford, Earl of).

Lineage.

This family deduces its descent from a period antecedent to the Conquest; but the first person of note upon record is

RICHARD DE TALBOT, who is mentioned in Domesday Book, as holding nine hides of land from Walter Giffard, Earl of Buckingham. This Richard m. the dau. of Gerard de Gournay, by whom he had two sons,

Getrey, progenitor of the Talbots, of Thornhill and Bashall, in Yorkshire;

And

HUGH DE TALBOT, ancestor of the house of Shrewsbury, who was made Governor of the Castle of Plessey, in Essex, by his uncle, Hugh de Gournay, in 1118, (then in rebellion against Henry I.) after he had caused the king's governor to be put to death. Hugh de Talbot, subsequently, assumed the habit of a monk, and retired into the monastery of Beaubeck, in Normandy, leaving three sons, Richard, William, and Hugh, by his wife, Beatrix, dau. of William de Maudeville. The eldest son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, obtained from King HENRY II. a grant of the lordship of Eccleswall and Linton, Co. Hereford, which grant King RICHARD I. confirmed for two hundred marks. This Richard de Talbot m. a dau. of Stephen Bulmer, of Appletreewick, Co. York, and was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT DE TALBOT, who was present at the coronation

tion of King RICHARD I.; in the 5th of whose reign he had lands given to him in Linton, for the custody of the Castle of Ludlow. In 1199, this Gilbert paid a fine of forty shillings, that he might not go beyond sea, and that he might have the scutage of his own demesnes. He was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, who m. Aliva, dau. of Alan Bassett, Baron of Wickombe, Co. Bucks, sister of Gilbert Bassett, Justice of England, and widow of Dru de Montacute, by whom he had issue,

Richard, who was elected Bishop of London in the 40th of HENRY III., but died before consecration;

And an elder son,

GILBERT DE TALBOT, his successor, who was made Governor of the Castles of Grosmond, Stenfrith, and Blacminster, by King HENRY III., and constituted Justice Itinerant for the County of Hereford, by the same monarch. He m. Gwendaline, dau. of Rhese ap Griffith, Prince of South Wales, and relinquished in consequence his paternal arms, viz. bendy of ten pieces, or. and gu.; to assume, a lion rampant, or, in a field gules, with a bordure engrailed of the first, the armorial ensigns of the princes of Wales, which his descendants have ever since borne. He d. in 1274, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, feudal Baron of Eccleswall, Sheriff of Gloucester in the 28th of EDWARD I., who m. Sarah, dau. of William Beauchamp, Baron of Elmley, and Earl of Warwick, and dying in 1306, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GILBERT TALBOT, who, being involved, with Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, in the murder of Piers de Gaveston, Earl of Cornwall, had his pardon for the same. This Sir Gilbert, who was Lord Chamberlain to the King in the 2nd EDWARD III., had summons to Parliament as a Baron in 1331, and dying in 1346, was s. by his son, (by Anne his wife, dau. of William, Lord Boteler, of Wem,)

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, 2nd Baron, summoned to Parliament from 1341 to 1355. This nobleman was an eminent warrior in the reign of EDWARD III., and was made a Knight Banneret. He d. in 1356, possessed of immense estates, (amongst which was Goderich Castle, Co. Hereford, where he chiefly resided,) and was s. by his only son,

GILBERT, 3rd Baron, summoned to Parliament from 1362 to 1366. This nobleman m. 1st, Patronil, dau. of James Bottiller, Earl of Ormonde, by whom he had an only son; and, 2ndly, Joan, dau. of Ralph, Earl of Stafford, and was s. at his decease, in 1367, by his son,

SIR RICHARD, 4th Baron, who, having m. Ankaret, sister, and eventually sole heiress, of John, Baron Strange, of Blackmere, was summoned to Parliament (A.D. 1387,) in the lifetime of his father, as "Ricardo Talbot de Blackmere," and "Ricardo Talbot de Godericke Castell." This nobleman d. in 1396, leaving five sons and four daughters, of whom,

Richard, the 3rd son, was Archbishop of Dublin for thirty two years; during which period, he was successively Lord Chancellor, Lord Justice, and Lord Deputy of Ireland.

Lord Talbot was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GILBERT, 5th Baron, who m. 1st, Joan, 2nd dau. of Thomas, (of Woodstock,) Duke of Gloucester, youngest son of King EDWARD III., by whom he had no issue; and, 2ndly, Beatrix, illegitimate dau. of JOHN I., King of Portugal, and widow of Thomas, Earl of Arundel, by whom he left at his decease, in 1419, a daughter, his successor,

ANKARET TALBOT, at whose decease, in minority, 13 Dec., 1431, the original Barony of Talbot, and that of Talbot, of Blackmere, devolved upon her Ladyship's uncle,

SIR JOHN TALBOT, 6th Baron, who, having m. Maud, eldest dau. and co-heir of Thomas Nevil, Lord Furnival, had been summoned to Parliament, in 1409, as 'Johanni Talbot de Furnyvall.' His Lordship was appointed, in 1412, Lord Justice of Ireland, and, in two years afterwards, Lord Lieutenant of the same Kingdom, in which important government he continued for seven years. He subsequently distinguished himself in the French wars of the fifth HENRY, but his highest renown was attained upon the same field, in the reign of HENRY VI., under the REGENT, JOHN PLANTAGENET, DUKE OF BEDFORD, when his name alone became terrible, in consequence of the various successful expeditions he had conducted. His Lordship was attacked, however, by the MAID OF ORLEANS, at Patay, in 1429, and his army being entirely routed, he became captive to the enterprising and enthusiastic heroine. He was exchanged soon after for Ambrose de Lore, a celebrated French captain, and continuing to distinguish himself in arms, he was created, 20 May, 1441, EARL OF SHREWSBURY. His Lordship was, subsequently, re-constituted Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and elevated to the Peerage of that Kingdom 17 July, 1443, as Earl of Waterford, having been appointed at the same time Lord High Steward of Ireland. This celebrated general, being again engaged in foreign warfare, advanced to the relief of Chastillon, and giving the besieging French army battle, 20 July, 1453, in the eightieth year of his age, received a wound in the thigh, which proved immediately mortal. His Lordship was said to have been victorious in forty different battles and dangerous skirmishes. The Earl had two surviving sons by his first wife,

JOHN, his successor.

Christopher (Sir).

And by his second, Margaret, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick,

JOHN, who was created, in 1443, Lord Lisle, of Kingston Lisle, in Berkshire; and in 1452, Viscount Lisle. His Lordship fell with his gallant father at Chastillon. He m. Joan, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Thomas Chedder, of Chedder, in Somersetshire, and left, (with two daughters,)

THOMAS, 2nd Viscount. This nobleman having a dispute with William, Lord Berkeley, regarding some land, lost his life in a skirmish at Wotton-under-Edge, 20 Mar., 1460, when his honors expired.

Humphrey (Sir), Marshal of Calais, d. s. p. in 1492.

Lewis (Sir), of Penyard, Herts.

Joan, m. to James, 1st Lord Berkeley.

His Lordship was s. by his son,

JOHN, 2nd Earl, K.G., Lord Treasurer of Ireland during the administration of his father, and, subsequently, Lord Treasurer of England. His Lordship fell at the battle of Northampton, 10 July, 1460, fighting under the red rose. The Earl m. 1st, Catherine, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Edward Burnel, but had no issue. He espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of James Butler, Earl of Ormonde and Wiltshire, and left, (with other issue),

Gilbert (Sir), of Grafton, Co. Worcester, who was High Sheriff of Shropshire temp. RICHARD III., but a staunch adherent of the Earl of Richmond's at Bosworth, the right wing of whose army Sir Gilbert commanded in that memorable field, and received the honor of knighthood, with a grant of the manor of Grafton, and other lands for his valiant conduct, from the victorious prince. In two years afterwards, Sir Gilbert had a command at the battle of Stoke, when the Earl of Lincoln and Lambert Simnel were defeated, and he was then made a Knight Banneret. Sir Gilbert m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Henry, Lord Scrope, of Bolton, by whom he had two sons, Gilbert and Humphry, who both died issueless. He espoused, 2ndly, Audrey, dau. of Sir John Cotton, Kat., and relict of Thomas Barton, Esq. and of Sir Richard Gardiner, Lord Mayor of London, by whom he left, at his decease, in 1516, an only son,

SIR JOHN TALBOT, of Albrighton, Co. Salop, who eventually inherited the manor of Grafton, and dying in 1549, was s. by his son,

JOHN (Sir), whose son,

JOHN (Sir), m. Catherine, dau. of Sir William Petre, Knt., Secretary of State to Queen MARY, and left at his decease, GEORGE, of whom hereafter, as 9th EARL of Shrewsbury.

John, of Longford, whose son,

JOHN, s. his uncle, as 10th Earl.

John, 2nd Earl of Shrewsbury, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 3rd Earl, who m. Catherine, dau. of Humphrey Stafford, Duke of Buckingham; and, dying in 1473, was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE, 4th Earl, who was installed a Knight of the Garter in 1488, for his valiant conduct at the battle of Stoke, 16 June, 1487. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of William, Lord Hastings, by whom he had six sons and five daughters. He espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Walden, Knt. of Erith, in Kent, by whom he had one surviving dau., Anne, m. 1st, to Peter Compton, son and heir of Sir William Compton, Knt.; and, 2ndly, to William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke. Lord Shrewsbury d. 26 July, 1538, and was s. by his second and eldest surviving son,

FRANCIS, 5th Earl, K.G., who had been summoned to Parliament as a Baron in the lifetime of his father, (7 Feb., 1532-3). "This nobleman," says Lodge, "although of no ordinary abilities, appears to have been confined almost entirely to a military life. The bravery, prudence, and fidelity, which had distinguished him in his important public situations during the reign of Queen MARY, induced ELIZABETH to retain him amongst those few servants of the late reign, whom she admitted to her Privy Council when she mounted the throne; but his steady adherence to the religion of his ancestors probably obstructed his further promotion. Of the whole body of the temporal peers who had so lately, and so unanimously, subscribed to the recognition of the temporal authority (of the Papal see), only this nobleman, and one more (Viscount Montague), could now be found to oppose the revocation of that concession. He survived this uncourtly act of sincerity but a few months, and dying 25 Sept., 1560," was s. by his only son (by his first wife, Mary, dau. of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland),

GEORGE, 6th Earl, K.G. This nobleman had the custody of MARY, Queen of Scots, committed to his charge, in the 11th of ELIZABETH, and was appointed, 16 Jan., 1571-2, at the arraignment of the Duke of Norfolk, Lord High Steward of England; and, after the execution of that nobleman, Earl Marshal. His Lordship m. 1st, Gertrude, dau. of Thomas Manners, Earl of Rutland, by whom he had four sons and three daughters; and, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heiress of John Hardwick, of Hardwick, by whom he had no issue. Of this Lady, Lodge says, "she had been already thrice married; to Robert Barley, Esq., of Barley, Co. Derby; to Sir William Cavendish; and to Sir William St. Loo, Captain of the Guard to Queen ELIZABETH. She prevailed upon the first of these gentlemen, who died without issue, to settle his estate on her and her heirs, who were abundantly produced from her second marriage. Her third husband, who was very rich, was led, by her persuasions, to make a similar disposition of his fortune, to the utter prejudice of his daughters by a former wife; and now, unsated with the wealth and caresses of three husbands, she finished her conquests by marrying the Earl of Shrewsbury, the richest and most powerful Peer of his time. To sum up her character, she was a woman of a masculine understanding and conduct; proud, furious, selfish, and unfeeling. She was a builder, a buyer and seller of estates, a money-lender, a farmer, and a merchant of lead, coals, and timber. She lived to a great old age, and d. in 1607, immensely rich." The Earl of Shrewsbury was s. in 1590, by his eldest surviving son,

GILBERT, 7th Earl, K.G., who m. Mary, dau. of his step-mother, by Sir William Cavendish, and left three daughters, viz.

Mary, m. to William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, and d. s. p.

Alathea, m. to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel.

Upon these Ladies the greater part of the Earl's estates devolved, and the Baronies of Talbot, Furnival, and Strange, of Blackmere, fell into abeyance, until the decease of the two elder without issue, when those dignities are presumed to have vested in Alathea, the third daughter (see BURKE's Extinct and Dormant Peerage). The Earldom passed to the deceased Lord's brother,

EDWARD, 8th Earl; at whose decease, without surviving issue, 6 February, 1617, the Earldom reverted to his kinsman,

GEORGE TALBOT, Esq., of Grafton, as 9th Earl (refer to descendants of Sir Gilbert Talbot,* of Grafton, son of James, 2nd Earl). His Lordship dying, however, unmarried, the Peerage devolved upon his nephew,

JOHN, 10th Earl (son of John Talbot, Esq. by Eleanor, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Baskerville, Knt., of Brinsop, in Herefordshire (see BURKE's Commoners, vol. i. p. 89, for an account of the ancient family of BASKERVILLE). His Lordship m. 2ndly, Anna-Maria, dau. of Robert, 2nd Earl of Cardigan, by whom he had two sons; and dying 16 Mar., 1667, of a wound received in a duel with George Villiers, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, was s. by his elder son,

Warwick, and has borne that surname since the beginning of the 12th century.

wife, dau. of Adam Napton, Esq., of Napton, Co. War-

CHARLES I. marched to Edgcott, in Oct., 1642, he observed this gentleman hunting in his fields, and ordering him to be called, gave him so gracious a reception, that Mr. Shuckburgh went immediately home, armed all his tenantry, and the next day attended his Majesty to the field where he was knighted. Sir Richard was present at the battle of Edge Hill, and afterwards, retiring to his seat, fortified himself on the top of Shuckburgh Hill, where he fell, apparently dead, after a gallant resistance, surrounded by most of his tenants; but, being taken up with symptoms of life, he was carried away a prisoner, first to Northampton, and subsequently to Kenilworth, from whence he eventually purchased his freedom at a very high price.

SIR JOHN SHELLEY-SIDNEY, heir and representative, by maternal descent, of the Beaumonts and Beauchamps, ancient Earls of Warwick; the Dudleys and Sidneys, Earls of Leicester; and claimant of the Baronies of De L'Isle and Iles. William de Warren, 1st Earl of Warren and Surrey, and the granddaughter of that marriage, Gundred, espoused Roger de Beaumont, 2nd Earl of Warwick, the Baronet's direct ancestor. Sir William Sidney, to whom Penshurst-place was granted by King EDWARD VI., was Chamberlain and Steward of the Household to King HENRY VIII., and was one of the commanders at the battle of Flodden, in 1513. His son, Sir Henry Sidney, was honored with the confidence and friendship of EDWARD VI., and was Lord-President of Wales, and Lord-Deputy of Ireland in the reign of ELIZABETH.

SIM

"A more exalted character than that of Sir Henry Sidney," observes Dr. Zouch, "is scarcely to be found in the volume of history. It deserves to be better known. In him we behold the brave soldier, the consummate general, the able counsellor, the wise legislator, while in the recesses of private life he was no less estimable as a husband, a father, and a friend; firmly attached to the church of England, and adorning his Christian profession by his temperance and exemplary piety." He was father of the all-accomplished Sir Philip Sidney, whom Camden describes as "the great glory of his family, the great hope of mankind, the most lively pattern of virtue, and the glory of the world." ROBERT SIDNEY, was created successively, by JAMES I., Baron Sidney, of Penshurst, Viscount Lisle, and Earl of Leicester, and was s. by his son,

SLINGSBY.

SLINGSBY, SIR CHARLES, of Scriven Park, Co. York, b. 22 Aug. 1824, s. his uncle as 9th Bart., in Feb., 1835.

Lineage.

The Baronetcy of Slingsby, of Scriven, represents the two ancient families of Slingsby and Scriven, and several others of antiquity equal to their own, which are merged in them.

GAMEL DE SCRIVEN, surnamed Ancess, had a confirmation of his lands in Scriven from HENRY I., and was the first of his house who enjoyed the feudal honor of Capital, or Chief Forester, of the Forest and Parks of Knarborough. He had issue,

BALDWIN DE SCRIVEN, whose son,

HENRY DE SCRIVEN, m. temp. HENRY III, Emma, sister and heir of Henry de Markington, and by her had issue, Baldwin, who d. s. p. and

THOMAS DE SCRIVEN, heir to his brother, who m. temp. EDWARD I., Agnes, dau. of John de Walkingham, and heir of her brother, "Alanus de Walkingham, Cheualier," and by her had issue,

HENRY DE SCRIVEN, who m. temp. EDWARD II., Alice, dau. and co-heiress of Richard de Caperton, of Scotton, and by her had issue, two daughters, co-heirs, of whom the younger, Agnes, m. 1st, William de Newton; 2ndly, Richard Furneux, from whom she was divorced, and 3rdly, William de Merkesale. The elder,

JOHANNA DE SCRIVEN, carried the manor of Scriven with several others, and also the dignity of Capital Forester, of the Forest and Parks of Knarborough into the house of Slingsby, by intermarrying in 1357 with William de Slingsby, of Studley, which

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, of Studley, in whose issue the families of Slingsby and Scriven were thus united, was son of John de Slingsby (great grandson of William de Selingsbye, of Slingsby, in the North Riding of Yorkshire) by his wife, Agnes, dau. of William de Stodleigh (Studley), and heir to her brother William. He d. 23 EDWARD III., 1349-50, having by his said wife, Johanna, had a daughter, the wife of Robert de Winkesley, by whom she had issue, and two sons, Gilbert, who m. Margaret, dau. of Henry Querton, and d. 18 EDWARD III., 1344-5. s. p. and

RICHARD DE SLINGSBY, heir of his brother Gilbert, Capital Forester in the right of his mother, who bore Scriven in the first quarter, quarterly with Slingsby, as has been the custom of most of the family since, though not invariably. He m. Johanna, dau. and co-heir of William Nesfield, of Scotton, and d. 27 EDWARD III., having by her had issue,

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, who m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Winkesley, and d. 15 RICHARD II., 1391-2, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, who m. Janet, dau. of Radulph Melton, of Melton Hall, Co. Derby, and heir of her brother John, and by her had issue, (beside a dau., Anne or Agnes, m. to Thomas de Knarisbury, which Thomas d. 1450) John, Robert, and William, of whom the two last d. s. p. The eldest,

JOHN DE SLINGSBY, m. Johanna, dau. of Walter Calverley, of Calverley, Co. York, and d. 39 HENRY VI., 1459-60, having had three daughters, Marjory, m. to Thomas Coughyll, of Knarborough, Johanna, Lady Prioress of Nun-Monkton, Co. York, Anne, m. to Hugh Tancred, of Boroughbridge, and one son,

JOHN DE SLINGSBY, who m. Marjory, dau. of Simon Pooley, of Badley, Co. Suffolk, and d. 16 Sept., 5 HENRY VIII., 1513, having had issue, THOMAS, of whom presently.

John,

Marmaduke, } who both d. s. p.

Peter, m. and had issue, one dau., Anne, m. 1st to William Goldenborough, 2ndly to Henry Brakenbury.

Simon, m. and had issue, Christopher, Robert, and Peter, (which Peter was father of Anthony Slingsby, created a Baronet of England by letters patent, bearing date 23 Oct., 1629, which date has been usually given for the Nova Scotia creation. Sir Anthony was Governor of Zutphen in the Low Countries, and d. 1630, when the Baronetcy became extinct. Kinber's conjecture as to the limitation of this patent to Sir Henry, the 1st Nova Scotia Baronet, is wrong, for no mention is made in Sir Henry's patent of his being above the rank of a Gentleman, nor is it to be supposed he would have had a second patent of Baronetcy, had he been already a Baronet;) and four daughters, Anne, m. to John Swayle, of Saxeley, Marjory, m. to Walter Pulleyn, of Scotton, Isabella, m. to Thomas Lambton, of Harrogate, and Elizabeth.

The eldest son,

THOMAS DE SLINGSBY, m. Johanna, dau. of Sir John Mallory, and had issue,

FRANCIS, of whom presently.

Marmaduke, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Mallory, of Studley, widow of Sir Robert Stapleton.

Elizabeth, m. to Christopher Coniers, of Holtbye, Co. York.

Dorothy, m. to Francis Tancred, of Panuall.

Anne, m. to Christopher Meinell, of Holdenby.

Johanna, m. to Thomas Norton, of Seacroft.

He d. in 1561, was buried in Knaresborough church 26 Sept. in that year, and s. by his eldest son,

FRANCIS DE SLINGSBY, who m. Mary Percy, only sister of Thomas and Henry Percy, successively Earls of Northumberland. This lady d. in 1566, aged 66, and he d. in 1600, being buried by his wife, 4 Aug., in that year, in the Slingsby-chapel, in Knaresborough-church. They both lie under a fair altar tomb, on which are their effigies recumbent of the size of life. On one of the folds of her dress appear the quarterings of Percy and Lucy. It should be noticed that this Francis is commonly called Sir Francis: even Mr. Pennant has fallen into the mistake; but he is not called even on his tomb, "Miles," and the family evidences abundantly prove that he never was knighted. The mistake has doubtlessly arisen from the knighthood of his son, Sir Francis. He had issue by his lady four daughters, who all d. s. p. and,

He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Stephen Board, Knt., of Board-Hill, Co. Sussex, and d. Aug., 1624. There is a monument in the Slingsby Chapel, containing in a niche a statue of him as large as life. Pennant in his "Tour from Alston Moor to Harrowgate," says of this figure, after having minutely described it, "The whole is one of the best sculptures I have seen in our churches." Mr. Pennant is inaccurate in saying that Sir William d. in 1634, aged 74; his elder brother, Sir Henry, d. in that year and at that age; Sir William d. in 1624, as appears from his monument, and aged 62. He had issue by his wife,

1 Henry, aged 7 in 1627, Master of the Mint to King CHARLES II., and, as such, author of the motto on our coin, "Deus et Tutamen."

2 William, christened 9 Dec., 1618, in Knaresborough church, d. 1622.

ix. Francis - Constable (Sir), of Haulboulne Castle, and of the Royal Council of the Province of Munster, aged 48 in 1617, m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Hugh Cusse, of Cusse Hall, Co. Somerset, and by her had issue,

SIR HENRY DE SLINGSBY was knighted by Queen ELIZABETH, and held sundry offices under the Duchy of Lancaster, of which he was deprived, in 1611, by an unjust decree of Sir Thomas Parry, then Chancellor of the Duchy, who, by a second decree in 1615, deprived him of certain crown leases, and committed him to the Fleet for his (Sir Thomas Parry's life) which was two years. Sir Henry was High Sheriff of Yorkshire in 1611-12, and being absent from the summer assizes in 1612, on account of his suit in London for restitution of his offices, was fined £200 by the Judges of Assize, Barons Altham and Bromley of the Exchequer. SMITH-CUSACK, SIR MICHAEL, of Newtown, King's Co., b. 21 Dec., 1793, m. in 1820, Miss Eliza Moore, and has issue, Mary.

Hester.

Sir Michael s. as 3rd Baronet, at the decease of his father, the late Hon. Sir William Cusack-Smith, 2nd Baron of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland, 21 May, 1836.

Lineage.

This family, which is a branch of a Yorkshire house, of the same name, and of knightly degree, was founded in Ireland by a

COLONEL SMITH, in the 17th century, who, according to domestic tradition, had two sons killed in action, fighting by his side. From this Colonel Smith descended three brothers, viz.

MICHAEL SMITH, Esq., who possessed considerable estates in the Queen's Co., and Counties of Carlow and Kildare, and acquired others by intermarriage with Miss Wilkinson, an heiress: which estates descended to his eldest son, Captain William-Wilkinson Smith, of the 1st Dragoon Guards; but this great property has since passed from the family of Smith into other hands.

JOSEPH SMITH, Esq., of Pitchfordstown, Co. Kildare, the second brother, left two sons only; the elder of whom, Sarah, m. Daniel Graham, Esq., of Coolquille, Co. Tipperary; and the younger, Elizabeth, m. Matthew Bathurst, Esq., of Nicholstown, Co. Kildare.

WILLIAM SMITH, Esq., of Newtown, King's Co. (3rd brother), m. Hester Lynch, of the Galway tribe of Lynch, by whom he had one son, MICHAEL, and a dau., Elizabeth, who m. 1st, Michael Donovan, Esq., Co. Cork; and, 2ndly, Shawe Cartland, of Ballykillin, King's Co. Mr. Smith d. in 1747, and the following monumental lines, written by his son, were inscribed to his memory:

"For ever doubly sacred be the earth
That wraps his dear remains, who gave me birth:
No rude disturbance may it ever know,
Nor near it let one bitter thistle grow,
But may the sweetest flowers that deck the ground
In lovely wildness ever bloom around!
And when, at length, life's trifling drama o'er,
He, now who writes and weeps shall be no more,
O be his spirit, with his father's blest!
While, mingled here, their kindred ashes rest!"

By which son,

I. MICHAEL SMITH, Esq., he was succeeded. This gentleman was b. 7 Sept., 1740; and having made a very distinguished figure in the college of Dublin, where he entered as a pensioner, at an early age, was called to the Irish bar in 1760, and having, shortly after taken the degree of LL.D., was admitted an advocate, and practised in the Ecclesiastical Courts. In 1783, Mr. Smith was returned to the Irish Parliament, and continued a member until 1793, when he was elevated to the bench as one of the Barons of the Exchequer. (He had previously, in 1784, declined the Recordership of Dublin.) In 1790, 28 Aug., Mr. Baron Smith was created a BARONET OF IRELAND; and, in 1801, his Lordship was transferred to the Rolls bench, and sworn of the Privy Council in Ireland. From this high judicial situation Sir Michael retired in 1806, when he received a very elegant and well-merited address from the Irish bar. Sir Michael Smith m. 1st, Mary-Anne, dau. of James Cusack, Esq., of Coolmines, Co. Dublin, and of Ballyronan, Co. Wicklow; descended lineally from Sir Thomas Cusack, Knt., Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and one of the Lords Justices in the reigns of HENRY VIII. and EDWARD VI.; which Sir Thomas sprang originally from Sir Lucas Cusack, or de Cusacque, who, in the reign of HENRY II., was Lord of Killeen, Dunsany, and Gerrardstown; the two former of which dignities, or at least the latter of them, passed with his dau. Joan, or Janet, into the family of Plunkett, upon her marriage with Sir Christopher Plunkett, while the title of Gerardstown became extinct. To the dignity of Killeen (being a barony in fee), James Cusack, Esq., of Coolmines, grandfather of the present Baronet, conceived himself, and was considered by his family, to have a claim. Sir Michael Smith had issue by his marriage,

WILLIAM, his successor, who, in 1784, was entered as a gentleman commoner, at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took a bachelor's degree. He was afterwards called to the Irish bar; and having, subsequently, taken the degree of LL.D., he was admitted an advocate in the Spiritual Courts. In 1795, he obtained the rank of King's Counsel, and was returned, in the same year, to the Irish Parliament, of which he continued a member so long as his country retained an independent legislature. In 1800 he was appointed Solicitor General for Ireland, and, in the following year, an occurrence took place, which, for its singularity, attracted attention,—that of the Solicitor General accompanying his father, Mr. Baron Smith, upon the same circuit, as second judge. In Jan., 1802, Mr. Solicitor General succeeded to the vacant place in the Court of Exchequer, upon the promotion of Sir Michael Smith to the Rolls bench.

Angelina, m. 1st, to Smith Steele, Esq., 2nd son of Sir Richard Steele, Bart.; and, 2ndly, to William Borrowes, Esq., son of Sir Kildare Borrowes, Bart., but d. in 1806, without issue.

Sir William, who, as above stated, was 2nd Baron of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland, was b. 23 Jan., 1766; m. 13 Aug., 1787, Hester, eldest dau. of Thomas Berry, Esq., of English Castle, King's Co., and had issue, Henrietta-Jane.

His Grace m. 2ndly, 28 July, 1836, Margaret, eldest dau. of the late Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart.

Lineage.

This family deduces its descent from a distinguished house of Normandy, and derives its surname from St.

892

Maur, the place of its abode in that principality. Camden, in his Britannia, says, "Not far from Caldecot, are Woundy and Penhow, the seats, formerly, of the illustrious family of St. Maur, now corruptly called Seymour. For we find, that about the year 1240 (in order to wrest Woundy out of the hands of the Welsh), Gilbert Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, was obliged to assist William St. Maur; from whom was descended Roger of St. Maur, Knt., who m. one of the heiresses of the illustrious John Beauchamp, the noble Baron of Hache," &c.

SIR RICHARD ST. MAUR, Knt., becoming possessed of Woundy, Penhow, &c. Co., Monmouth, fixed his residence at the last of those places, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROGER DE ST. MAURO, who d. in the 26th year of King EDWARD I., and was s. by his son,

SIR ROGER DE ST. MAURO, living in the 8th year of King EDWARD II., who m. Joan, dau. and heiress of — Damarel, Esq., of Devonshire, and had two sons,

John, who d. in the 32nd EDWARD III., leaving a son and heir,

ROGER, whose dau. and heiress conveyed the inheritance to the family of BOWLAIS, of Penhow, in Monmouthshire, who bore the Seymour arms, and terminated in a dau. and heiress, who was m. to Sir George Somerset, 3rd son of Charles, 1st Earl of Worcester.

Roger.

The younger son,

SIR ROGER DE ST. MAURO, "who," in the words of Camden, "married one of the heiresses of the illustrious John Beauchamp, the noble Baron of Hache, who was descended from Sibyl, one of the co-heiresses of that most puissant William Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, and from William Ferrars, Earl of Derby, Hugh de Vivon, and William Mulet, men of eminent worth in their times." This lady survived her husband, and dying in 1303, was s. by (the son of Sir William Seymour, by Margaret, dau. and heir of Simon de Brockburn, of Brockburn, Co. Hertford), her grandson,

ROGER SEYMOUR, who m. Maud, dau. and co-heiress of Sir William Esturmi, of Chadham, Co. Wilts, Lord of Wolf Hall, in the same county, and was s. by his son,

JOHN SEYMOUR, High Sheriff Co. Southampton, in the 9th year of HENRY VI., and of Wilts, in the following year. In the 12th of the same reign, when the title of the house of York was set on foot, and all persons of note in the counties were summoned to take the oaths, this John Seymour appeared in Wiltshire, and is the first mentioned in the list, after the knights, in that county. He m. Isabel, dau. and heir of William Mac-Williams, Esq., Co. Gloucester, and was s. by (the son of John Seymour, by Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Coker, Knt., of Lawrence Lydiard, Somersetshire), his grandson,

JOHN SEYMOUR, who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir George Darell, of Littlecote, Co. Wilts, by whom he had four sons and four daus. He espoused 2ndly, — dau. of Robert Hardon, and had another son, Roger. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN SEYMOUR, Knt., one of the Commanders of the Forces which suppressed the insurrection of Lord Audley and the Cornish rebels, in 1497; who subsequently, participating in the French wars of King HENRY VIII., was made a Knight Banneret by that monarch in 1513. He was afterwards Sheriff, successively, of the counties of Dorset, Somerset, and Wilts. Sir John was in the train of King HENRY, in his interview with the French monarch, FRANCIS I., in 1520; and, when the Emperor CHARLES V., came into England in 1522, he was appointed to attend his royal master at Canterbury, for the purpose of receiving the Prince. Sir John Seymour m. Margery, 2nd dau. of

Sir Henry Wentworth, K.B., of Nettlested, in Suffolk, by whom he had six sons and four daus., of whom lived to maturity,

EDWARD,

Henry (Sir), K.B., from whom claim to be descended the SEYMOURS, of Castletown, in the Queen's Co., now represented by AARON CROSSLEY SEYMOUR, Esq. of Castletown (see BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iii. p. 201).

Thomas, created Lord Seymour, of Sudley, who m. Queen Catharine (Parr), widow of King HENRY VIII., and was constituted Lord Admiral of England. Convicted of high treason, he was beheaded 18 March, 1548-9. (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

JANE, m. to King HENRY VIII., by whom she was mother of King EDWARD VI.

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Sir Anthony Oughtred, Knt., and afterwards to Lord Cromwell.

Dorothy, m. to Sir Clement Smith, and afterwards to Thomas Lavenhorpe, Esq.

Sir John d. 21 Dec., 1536, in seven months after his daughter's elevation to the throne, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD SEYMOUR, K.B., who had been elevated to the Peerage as Viscount Beauchamp, 5 June, 1536; and was created, 18 Oct., 1537, Earl of Hertford. In the 32nd year of HENRY VIII., his Lordship was sent over to France to ascertain the limits of the English borders, and, upon his return, was honored with the Garter. In two years afterwards, he was appointed Lord Great Chamberlain of England for life, and constituted one of the council to the Queen Regent (Catherine), upon the King's expedition into France, in 1544. After the decease of King HENRY VIII., who bequeathed him £300, and nominated him one of his executors, and one of the council to his son, the Earl was constituted Lord Treasurer of England, and, not being previously a Baron, he was created, 15 Feb., 1546-7, Baron Seymour, of Hache, and advanced, on the next day, to the DUKEDOM OF SOMERSET, with remainder of both honors to his issue by his second wife, and, after those, to his male descendants by his first wife. On the 17 Feb., in the same year, he had a grant of the office of Earl Marshal for life; and, on the 12 March following, was appointed, by patent, PROTECTOR and Governor of the King and his realms, with an income of 8,000 marks, so long as he should exercise that high office. His Grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. and co-heiress of Sir William Pilloi, of Pilloi Hall, Co. Essex, by whom he had two sons, of whom,

Edward (Sir), was seated at Berry Pomeroy, Co. Devon, where he was s. by his son,

EDWARD, who was created a Baronet 20 June, 1611, and, dying in two years afterwards, was s. by his son,

SIR EDWARD, 2nd Baronet, who was s. by his son,

SIR EDWARD, 3rd Baronet, to whom s. his son,

SIR EDWARD, 4th Baronet, who m. Margaret, dau. and co-heiress of Alderman Sir William Wake, of London, by whom he had two sons; and, 2ndly, Lettice, dau. of Francis Popham, Esq., and had,

Francis, created Lord Conway, from whom the noble house of Hertford derives.

Sir Edward Seymour, who filled the Speaker's chair in 1672, d. in 1707, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD, 5th Baronet. This gentleman m. Letitia, only dau. and heiress of Sir Francis Popham, of Littlecote, and was s. in 1740, by his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD, 6th Baronet, of whom hereafter, as 8th Duke of Somerset.

The Protector Somerset m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir Edward Stanhope, Knt., of Sudbury, Co. Suffolk, and heiress of her mother, Elizabeth, sister of John Bouchier, Earl of Bath, by whom he had three sons and six daus. The ultimate fate of this nobleman was such as too generally awaited the aspirants to power at the period in which he lived. After reaching the summit of his ambition, and grasping the sceptre of unlimited authority, which he swayed during the two first years of his nephew's minority, with all the attributes of royalty, and with all its exterior symbols, he was buried from his invidious pre-eminence by the arm of one of his most confidential counsellors, Dudley (Earl of Warwick), Duke of Northumberland, and brought to the block, 23 Jan., 1552, generally lamented by the people. (For a more detailed account of this eminent person, refer to BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) His Grace being attainted, his honors, of course, became forfeited, but his eldest son, by the 2nd marriage,

EDWARD SEYMOUR, was created, by Queen ELIZABETH, in the 1st year of her reign, Baron Beauchamp and Earl of Hertford. His Lordship m. Lady Catherine Grey, dau. and heiress of Henry, Duke of Suffolk (and granddaughter, maternally, of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, by Mary, Queen-Dowager of France, and sister of King HENRY VIII.) This Lady, who was sister of the amiable, interesting, and unfortunate Lady Jane Grey, was herself not less unhappy. Upon her pregnancy being discovered, in 1563, she was committed prisoner to the Tower, as well as the Earl, her husband, where he was detained for nine years, and fined by the star-chamber, £15,000, for having vitiated a maid of the royal blood. The unhappy Countess died in confinement in 1567, after giving birth to two sons, viz.

i. Edward, who d. young.

ii. Edward, Lord Beauchamp, who, in the 6th of JAMES I. (notwithstanding the Duke of Somerset's descendants by his 1st wife, had lodged a petition against the claims of those of the second to the family honors), obtained letters patent that himself and the heirs male of his body immediately after the death of his father, should be Barons of Parliament, and have place and voice therein; as also other letters patent, the same year, for the enjoyment of the title of Earl of Hertford. He m. Honora, dau. of Sir Richard Rogers, Knt., of Brianston, Co. Dorset, and d. before his father. He had issue, EDWARD (Sir), K.B., who m. Anne, dau. of Richard Sackville, Earl of Dorset, and d. in 1618, before his father and grandfather, without surviving issue.

WILLIAM (Sir), who s. his grandfather.

FRANCIS (Sir), who was created BARON SEYMOUR, of Troubridge, 19 Feb., 1641. This nobleman, m. 1st, Frances, dau. and co-heir of Sir Gilbert Priue, Knt., of Ailington, Co. Wilts, by whom he had

CHARLES, his successor.

FRANCES, m. to Sir William Ducle, Knt., of Tortworth, Gloucestershire.

His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Robert Lee, of Billesley, but had no other issue. He d. 12 July, 1664, and was s. by his son,

CHARLES, 2nd Lord Troubridge, who m. 1st, Mary, dau. and sole heir of Thomas Smith, Esq., of Soley, Co. Wilts, and had a son and two daughters, of whom Frances, the younger dau. m. Sir George Hungerford, Knt., of Cadengham, Wilts. His Lordship espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Allington, (who was m. 2ndly, to Sir John Ernio Knt., of Whetham, Chancellor of the Exchequer, temp. CHARLES II. and JAMES II.), and had surviving issue,

FRANCIS, } successively Dukes of Somers-
CHARLES, } set.

Honora, m. to Sir Charles Gerard, Bart.

The validity of the marriage (between the Earl and Lady Catherine Grey), was, however, subsequently tried and established at common law. His Lordship espoused two other wives, namely, Frances, dau. of William, Lord Howard, of Effingham; and Frances, dau. of Thomas, Viscount Howard, of Bindon, and widow of Henry Parnell, Esq., of London; but had no other issue. His Lordship lived to an advanced age, and dying in 1621, was s. by his grandson,

SIR WILLIAM SKYMOUR, as Earl of Hertford and Baron Beauchamp, who was created 3 June, 1640, Marquis of Hertford. During the reign of JAMES I., this nobleman attempted, without having gained the consent of that monarch, to marry Lady Arabella Stuart, first cousin to the King, and was, in consequence, obliged to fly the kingdom, while the unfortunate lady was committed prisoner to the Tower, where she closed her unhappy life, 27 Sept., 1615. His Lordship subsequently returning, and taking a most distinguished and gallant part in favor of royalty, during the civil wars, was restored to the Barony of Seymour, of Hache, and Dukedom of Somerset, by the reversal of the attainder of his eminent ancestor, 13 Sept., 1660. His Grace m. 2ndly (if his connexion with Lady Arabella be deemed a marriage), Lady Frances Devereux, eldest dau. of the accomplished and ill-fated Earl of Essex, by whom he had (with three daus.), HENRY, Lord Beauchamp, who predeceased the Duke, leaving.

WILLIAM, 3rd Duke.

Elizabeth, m. to Thomas Bruce, Earl of Aylesbury.

JOHN, who s. as 4th Duke.

The Duke d. within little more than a month after his restoration to the honors of his great-grandfather, 24 Oct., 1660, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM, 3rd Duke; at whose demise, unmarried, in 1671, the estates of Tottenham Park and Savernake Forest, Co. Wilts, with other considerable landed property, devolved upon his sister, the Countess of Aylesbury; while the Peerage reverted to his uncle,

LORD JOHN SKYMOUR, as 4th Duke, who m. Sarah, dau. and heir of Sir Edward Alston, Knt., M.D., President of the College of Physicians, and widow of George Grimstone, Esq., but d. without issue in 1675, when the MARQUISATE OF HERTFORD expired, but the other honors devolved upon his cousin,

FRANCIS SKYMOUR, 3rd Baron Seymour, of Troubridge, as 5th Duke (refer to EDWARD, Lord Beauchamp, son of Edward, 1st Earl of Hertford). This nobleman, during his travels in Italy, having, in company with some French gentlemen, visited the church of the Augustinians, at Lerice, and there offered rudeness to ladies of the family of Botti, of that place, was shot to death by Horatio Botti, the husband of one of those ladies, at the door of his inn, in April, 1678. His Grace dying unm., the Dukedom, &c. devolved upon his brother,

CHARLES, 6th Duke, K.G., commonly called "the proud Duke of Somerset." His Grace m. 1st, Lady Elizabeth Percy, only dau. of Jocelyn, Earl of Northumberland, and sole heiress of the Percys (her Ladyship had been m. twice previously; 1st, to Lord Ogle; and, 2ndly, to Thomas Thynne, Esq., but had no issue), by whom he had issue, ALGERNON, his successor.

Percy, M.P. for Cockermouth, d. unm. in 1721.

Charles, d. unm. in 1710.

Elizabeth, m. to Henry, Earl of Thomond, and d. s. p.

Catherine, m. to Sir William Wyndham, Bart., of Orchard Wyndham, and dying in 1713, left

CHARLES, who s. his uncle, the Duke of Somerset, in the Earldom of Egremont, &c.

Thomas, who m. Isabel, dau. of Edward Onley, Esq., of Catesby.

Anne, m. to Peregrine, 3rd Duke of Leeds, and d. in 1722.

The Duke espoused, 2ndly, Lady Charlotte Finch, dau. of Daniel, Earl of Winchelsea, by whom he left Frances, m. to John, Marquis of Granby.

Charlotte, m. Heneage, Earl of Aylesford.

This nobleman, so well known as the proud Duke of Somerset, is thus described by Grainger: "His Grace was of a middle stature, finely formed, and of dark complexion, he loved music and poetry, had judgment, but an hesitation in speech made him appear wanting in expression. He was noble in sentiments, magnificent in living, a generous enemy, and a firm friend. His foible was an unbounded pride, which carried him to very indecent lengths. The first peer of the realm being a Roman Catholic, he took precedence on all great occasions. He had attended the funerals of CHARLES II., Queen MARY, and WILLIAM III., and at the coronation of JAMES II., WILLIAM and MARY, ANNE, GEORGE I., and GEORGE II. He seemed little less in his conduct than if vested with regal honors. His servants obeyed by signs. The country roads were cleared that he might pass without obstruction or observation. He had two wives, the 1st was Eliza, sole dau. and heir of Jocelyn, the virgin widow of Henry Cavendish, Earl of Ogle, the relict of Thomas Thynne, Esq., who was shot in his coach by Count Coningsmark, in hopes of obtaining the heiress of the Percys. His 2nd Duchess was Charlotte, 2nd dau. of Daniel, Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham. He made a vast distinction between a Percy and a Finch. The Duchess once familiarly tapped him on the shoulder with her fan, he turned round, and with an indignant sour countenance, said, my first Duchess was a Percy, and she never took such a liberty." His children obeyed his mandates with profound respect: the two youngest daughters had used to stand alternately whilst he slept of an afternoon. Lady Charlotte being tired, sat down, the Duke waked, and displeased, declared he would make her remember her want of decorum. By his will he left her £20,000 less than her sister. The pleasant Sir James Deleval laid a wager of £1,000 that he would make the Duke give him precedence; but that was judged impossible, for his Grace was all eyes and ears upon such occasions. Deleval, however, having one day obtained information of the precise time when the Duke was to pass a narrow part of the road on his way to town, stationed himself there, in a coach, emblazoned for the day with the arms, and surrounded by many servants, in the livery of the head of the house of Howard, who called out when Somerset appeared, "The Duke of Norfolk." The former, fearful of committing a breach of etiquette, hurried his postilion under a hedge, where he was no sooner safely fixed, when Deleval passed, who, leaning out of the carriage, bowed with a familiar air, and wished his Grace a good morning. He indignantly exclaimed, "Is it you, Sir James? I thought it had been the Duke of Norfolk." The wager thus fairly won, was paid, and the town made merry with the stratagem to gain it. His Grace d. in 1749, at the advanced age of eighty-seven, having filled high offices in the courts of CHARLES II., WILLIAM III., and Queen ANNE, and was s. by his only surviving son,

ALGERNON, 7th Duke, who had been summoned to Parliament, at the demise of his mother, as Baron Percy. His Grace was created Baron Warkworth, of Warkworth Castle, Co. Northumberland, and Earl of Northumberland, 2 Oct., 1749, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his son-in-law, Sir Hugh Smithson, and his heirs male, by Lady Elizabeth Seymour; and, on the day following (3 Oct.), Baron Cockermouth, of Cockermouth Castle, and Earl of Egremont, both in the Co. Cumberland, with remainder to his nephew, Sir Charles Wyndham, Bart., (uncle and predecessor of the present Earl of Egremont; see that dignity). His Grace m. Frances, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Henry Thynne, Esq., by whom he had issue,

GEORGE, who d. in his 10th year, in 1744.

Elizabeth, who m. Sir Hugh Smithson, Bart., of Stanwick, Co. York (see Duke of Northumberland).

The Duke d. in 1750, when the Earldom of Hertford, the Viscounty of Beauchamp, and the Barony of Seymour, of Troubridge, expired. The honors obtained by his Grace passed according to their respective limitations; and the Dukedom of Somerset, with the Barony of Seymour of Hache, the male line of Edward, 1st Duke, by his 2nd wife, to whom the patent was in the first instance limited, having failed, reverted to

SIR EDWARD SEYMOUR, Bart., as 8th Duke (refer to descendants of Sir Edward Seymour, son of Edward, 1st Duke, by his 1st wife). This nobleman claimed the dukedom upon the demise of his kinsman, and the Attorney-General, Sir Dudley Ryder, reporting in his favor to the crown, he was summoned to Parliament 23 Nov., 1750, and took his seat accordingly. His Grace m. in 1716, Mary, only dau. and heir of Daniel Webb, Esq., of Monckton-Farley, Co. Wilts, and heir of her uncle, Edward Somner, Esq., of Beand, in the same county, by whom he had issue, SOMERVILLE, BARON (Mark Somerville), in the Peerage of Scotland; b. 26 Oct., 1784; inherited as 16th Baron, at the demise of his half-brother, 5 Oct., 1819.

Lineage.

The remotest ancestor of this family upon record is SIR GUALTER DE SOMERVILLE, one of the companions of the Norman Conqueror, who became Lord of Whichnour, Co. Stafford, and his descendants possessed considerable property, about the close of the 12th century, in Co. Lanark, and in other parts of Scotland; of whom

WILLIAM DE SOMERVILLE, was one of the Barons appointed at the marriage of ALEXANDER II. (whose reign commenced in 1214), to exercise in a tournament at the castle of Roxburgh. This William's great grandson,

SIR WALTER DE SOMERVILLE, m. Giles, dau. and heiress of Sir John Herring, with whom he got the lands of Gilmerton Drum, and Goodtrees. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

HUGH, 5th Lord, who m. Janet, dau. of William Maitland, of Leithington, and dying in 1640, was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 6th Lord. This nobleman was a strenuous opposer of the Reformation, saying, with the Earl of Atholl and Lord Bothwick, "that he would believe as his fathers had done before him." His Lordship joined Lord Stafford inherited, as 7th Baronet, at the demise of his father, 14th Aug., 1809, and succeeded to the ancient Barony of Stafford, after the reversal of the iniquitous attainder of Sir William Howard, Viscount Stafford, in 1824: the House of Lords resolving, 6 July, 1825, that "Sir George Jerningham had made out his claim to the title, dignity, and honor of Baron Stafford, under certain letters patent, bearing date 12 Sept., in the 16th year of the reign of King CHARLES I." His Lordship assumed, by sign manual, in 1826, the additional surname and arms of STAFFORD.

Lineage.

The paternal line of the present house of Stafford is stated to have been originally Danish, and the name "Jernegan." Weever, in his work on "Ancient Funeral Monuments," has these observations:—"This name hath been of exemplarie note, before the Conquest; if you will believe thus much that followeth, taken out of the pedigree of the Jerninghams, by a judicious gentleman anno MXXX. Canute, King of Denmarke, and of England, after his return from Rome, brought divers captains and souldiers from Denmarke, whereof the greatest part were christened here, in England, and began to settle themselves here; of whom Jernegan or Jernengham, and Jernihingho, now Jennings, were of the most esteeme with Canute, who gave unto the said Jerningham certaine manors in Norfolk; and to Jennings, certaine manors lying upon the sea-side, near Harwich, in Suffolke, in regard of their former services done to his father, Swenus, King of Denmarke."

Bloomfield's History of Norfolk commences the pedigree of the Jerninghams with

JERNEGAN, or JERNINGHAM, who was settled at Horham-Jernegan, Co. Suffolk, in the reigns of King STEPHEN and King HENRY II.; and dying in 1182, was s. by his son,

SIR HUBERT FITZGERNEGAN, Knt., of Horham-Jernegan, who d. in 1203, and was s. by his son,

SIR HUBERT JERNEGAN, Knt., who had been involved in the insurrection of the Barons against King JOHN; but, on the accession of HENRY III. in 1216, he submitted and obtained his pardon. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR WILLIAM JERNEGAN, who was s. by his brother, SIR HUGH JERNEGAN. This gentleman having, in 1243, made an exchange with his mother, transferred to that lady the messuage of Horham-Jernegan, and removed the residence of his own family to Stonham-Jernegan. He was s. by his son,

SIR WALTER JERNEGAN, of Stonham-Jernegan, who m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Peter Fitzosbert, of Somerley Town, in Suffolk, and sister and co-heiress of her brother, Sir Roger, (who was summoned, with about sixty other persons, 8 June, 1294, '22 EDWARD I.' to attend the King wherever he might be, to advise on the affairs of the realm; but it is doubtful whether that summons can be deemed a regular writ of summons to parliament, constituting a Barony.) This lady was the widow of Sir Henry de Walpole, of Walpole and Houghton, Co. Norfolk. Sir Walter d. about the 31st year of EDWARD I. and was s. by his son,

SIR PETER JERNEGAN, of Somerley Town, who, at the decease of his mother, succeeded as co-heir to her portion of the extensive possessions of the Fitzosbert family. From this Sir Peter, we pass over a long line of gallant and distinguished personages, to his descendant,

SIR HENRY JERNINGHAM, of Huntingfield and Wingfield, in Suffolk, and of Costessey, in Norfolk, who was the first among the Suffolk and Norfolk Knights that declared openly for Queen MARY, on the demise of EDWARD VI. in the year 1553; for which important service, he was constituted by her Majesty immediately after her accession, Vice-Chamberlain, Captain of the Guard, Master of the Horse and of the Household, and one of the Privy-Council. Sir Henry also obtained grants from the Queen of several large manors in Norfolk, Suffolk, Herefordshire, and Gloucestershire; particularly those of Costessey, in Norfolk, and Wingfield Castle, in Suffolk. The former he made the chief place of residence of the family, having rebuilt the mansion; and it has so continued down to the present time. Sir Henry entertained Queen ELIZABETH there, in her progress to Norfolk; but his adhesion to the ancient faith seems to have been a bar to any favour at court during that Queen's reign. He m. Frances, dau. of Sir George Baynham, of Clowerwall, Co. Gloucester, and heiress to her maternal uncle, Sir Anthony Kingston; and dying in 1572, was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY JERNINGHAM, Esq., of Costessey Hall, who m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of William, Lord Dacre, of Gileland, and grandaun., maternally, of George, 4th Earl of Shrewsbury, by whom he had five sons and a dau. He m. 2ndly, Frances, dau. and co-heiress of his cousin, Sir John Jernegan, of Somerley Town, and widow of Sir Thomas Bedingfeld, by whom he had one son and a dau. He d. in 1619, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. HENRY JERNINGHAM, Esq., of Costessey, who was created a Baronet 16 Oct., 1621. Sir Henry m. Eleanor, dau. of Thomas Throckmorton, Esq., of Throckmorton, Co. Worcester,* and had issue, STAIR.

This latter marriage was, however, annulled in June, 1820.

Lineage.

The surname of this family is derived from the Barony of Dalrympill, Co. Ayr.

WILLIAM DE DALRYMPLE, acquired, in 1450, the lands of Stair-Montgomery, in Ayrshire, with his wife, Agnes Kennedy, an heiress, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DALRYMPLE, of Stair, who m. Marjion, dau. of Sir John Chalmers, of Gadgirth, in the same shire. This lady was one of the Lollards, of Kyle, summoned in 1494, before the King's council, on account of their heretical doctrines; but JAMES IV., treating the charge with contempt, the accused were dismissed. The great-grandson of this William and Marjion,

JOHN DALRYMPLE, of Stair, was one of the first that openly professed the reformed doctrines, and joined the Earls of Lennox and Glencairn, in 1544, against the Earl of Arran. He was s. by his son,

JAMES DALRYMPLE, of Stair, whose great-grandson,

JAMES DALRYMPLE, of Stair, b. in 1619, having been bred to the bar, was appointed, in 1657, by Cromwell, at the recommendation of General Monk, a Lord of Session, and was confirmed therein by King Charles II., who created him a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 2 June, 1664. In 1671 Sir James became President of the Court of Session, from which he was removed in 1691, and obliged the next year to retire into Holland. Returning with the Prince of Orange, in 1688, he was restored to the Presidency after the Revolution, and elevated to the Peerage, 21 April, 1690, as Baron Glenluce and Stranraer and Viscount Stair. His Lordship m. Margaret, eldest dau. of James Ross, of Balniet, and had issue,

JOHN, his successor.

James, of Borthwick, one of the principal Clerks of the Court of Session, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 28 April, 1698, and whose descendant, Sir John-Hamilton Dalrymple, 5th and present Baronet, is HEIR-PRESUMPTIVE to the VISCOUNTY OF STAIR. (See Dalrymple, of Cranstown, Bart.)

Hew, a Member of the Faculty of Advocates, who was created a Baronet 20 April, 1698, and promoted the June following to the Presidency of the Court of Session, which office had continued vacant since the death of his father. Sir Hew served in Parliament for the Borough of North Berwick. He d. in 1737, leaving several children by his wife, Marion Hamilton.

Thomas, M.D., Physician in Ordinary to the King in Scotland.

David (Sir), of Hales, Co. Haddington, a Member of the Faculty of Advocates, created a Baronet 8 May, 1700. He was M.P. for Culross, Solicitor-General to Queen ANNE, and a Commissioner for the treaty of Union. He d. in 1721, leaving issue.

The Viscount d. 25 Nov., 1695, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 2nd Viscount, who was created, 8 April, 1703, Baron Newliston, Glenluce, Stranraer, Viscount Dalrymple, and EARL OF STAIR, with remainder, failing his own male issue, to the heirs male of his father. His Lordship, who was Lord-Justice-Clerk, and afterwards Lord Advocate and Secretary of State, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir John Dundas, of Newliston, Co. Linlithgow, and had three sons, viz.

I. JOHN, his successor.

II. William, of Glenmure, a Colonel in the army, and Member for the county of Ayr in the last Parliament of Scotland; m. in 1698, Penelope, Countess of Dumfries, and had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, who inherited the Earldoms of Dumfries and Stair.

JAMES, who succeeded as 3rd Earl.

III. GEORGE, of Dalmahoy, one of the Barons of the Exchequer in Scotland; m. Ephame, eldest dau. of Sir Andrew Myrton, of Gogar, Co. Edinburgh, Bart. and had

JOHN, who s. as 5th EARL OF STAIR.

William, a General Officer in the army, and Lieutenant-Governor of Chelsea Hospital; m. Marianne-Dorothy, 2nd dau. of Sir Robert Harland, and left at his decease, in 1807, JOHN-WILLIAM HENRY, who s. as 7th (and present) EARL OF STAIR.

The part which this nobleman (John, 2nd Viscount Stair,) had in the horrible massacre of Glencoe cannot be passed over in silence. "King William," says Hume, "whose chief virtue was not humanity, signed a warrant for the destruction of those unhappy people, (the clan of Macdonald of Glencoe,) and an order for this barbarous execution, signed and counter-signed by his Majesty's own hand, being transmitted to the Master of Stair, Secretary for Scotland, this minister sent particular directions to Livingstone, who commanded the troops in that kingdom, to put the inhabitants of Glencoe to the sword, charging him to take no prisoners, that the scene might be more terrible." (Hume, vol. 4th.) His Lordship was obliged to resign the Secretaryship in 1695, parliament having voted that his letters exceeded the King's instructions, and declared the affair of Glencoe a barbarous murder. He d. suddenly, 8 Jan., 1707, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 2nd Earl, K. T. a military officer of high rank and renown, and a participator in the victories of the Duke of Marlborough. His Lordship served as Brigadier at the battle of Oudenarde in 1708, and was bearer of the despatches announcing that victory to England. He subsequently attained the rank of Field-Marshal, and was appointed Commander of the Forces in North Britain. In 1715, Lord Stair went to France in a diplomatic capacity, and after the death of Louis XIV., was constituted Ambassador Extraordinary to that court. The object of his embassy was of the utmost importance, and his manner of executing it the most brilliant and spirited. The former was to discover and watch over the intrigues of the Jacobites, when the Brunswick family could hardly be said to have a firm establishment on the throne, and to cement a friendship with the REGENT, Duke of Orleans, whose steadiness could not always be depended upon. No ambassador ever exceeded, and few have equalled, the splendid and magnificent table, equipage, and train of domestics, by which the Earl's embassy was distinguished. His Lordship m. Eleanor, widow of James, Viscount Primrose, and dau. of James, 2nd Earl of Loudoun, but had no issue. In consequence of the marriage of his next brother, and heir presumptive, with a peeress, the Earl surrendered, in 1707, all the honors to the crown, and obtained a new charter, containing, in default of male issue, a reversionary clause in favor of any one of the male descendants of the 1st Viscount, whom his Lordship should name; in conformity with which, his Lordship executed a deed, immediately prior to his decease, in 1747, appointing his nephew, John, the son of his 2nd brother, George, his successor. But that nomination was contested by the Hon. James Dalrymple, 2nd son of the Hon. William Dalrymple and the Countess of Dumfries; and the lords deciding in his favor 2 May, 1748, he succeeded as

JAMES 3rd Earl; but, dying without issue, in 1760, the honors reverted to his elder brother,

WILLIAM, as 4th Earl, who had inherited the Earldom of Dumfries, at the decease of his mother, Penelope, Countess of Dumfries. This nobleman dying, however, in 1768, without issue, the Earldom of Dumfries passed into the right line, and the honors of the house of Stair reverted to his cousin,

JOHN, 5th Earl, the personage who had already been defeated under his uncle's nomination, but had then succeeded to his uncle's fortune, without dispute (Refer to George, of Dalmahoy, youngest son of 1st Earl.) His Lordship m. Miss Middleton, dau. of George Middleton, Esq. a Banker in London; and dying in 1790, was s. by his only son,

JOHN, 6th Earl, one of the representative Lords. This nobleman d. without issue, 1 June, 1821, when the

His Lordship inherited the honors of his family, as 6th Earl, at the demise of his father, 23 May, 1819. The Earl of Stamford is Lord-Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum Co. Chester.

Lineage.

This is one of the most ancient and illustrious families in the Peerage. It deduces an uninterrupted line from the Conquest, and has allied with the Plantagenets and Tudors.

HENRY DE GREY, obtained from KING RICHARD I, the Manor of Turroc, in Essex, and had the same confirmed by KING JOHN, with the privilege of hunting the fox and hare, in any lands belonging to the crown, except the King's own demesnes. In the reign of Henry III., he had a grant of the Manor of Grimston, Co. Nottingham, from Robert Bardolph, whose niece and co-heiress, Isolda, he married, and, eventually, shared in the inheritance of all the said Robert's lands. From his 2nd son, by this lady,

JOHN DE GREY, descended the extinct Earls and Dukes of Kent, the extinct Dukes of Suffolk, the Earls of Wilton, and the house of which we are now treating. This John de Grey was Justice of Chester, temp. Henry III., and d. in the fiftieth year of that reign, leaving a son and heir.

REGINALD DE GREY, who was Justice of Chester in the reign of EDWARD I., and obtained from that monarch the castle of Ruthyn, and other territorial possessions. He m. Maud, dau. and heiress of Henry de Longchamp, a powerful feudal baron, whose principal residence was Wilton Castle, Co. Hereford, and dying in the 1st year of EDWARD II., left a son and heir,

JOHN DE GREY; of whose sons,

HENRY DE GREY, the eldest, was s. by his eldest son, Reginald, Lord Grey of Wilton, which dignity expired under the attainder of Thomas, Lord Grey of Wilton, who d. 6 July, 1614, in the Tower of London, where he had been imprisoned for participating in Raleigh's Plot. His Lordship's sister and heir, Bridget, m. Sir Rowland Egerton, Bart., the direct maternal ancestor of the extant Earls of Wilton.

ROGER DE GREY, the youngest son, obtained from his father the castle of Ruthyn, with other extensive possessions; and marrying Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord Hastings, by Isabel, dau. and co-heiress of William Valence, Earl of Pembroke, left a son,

Reginald, whose son,

Reginald, Lord Grey de Ruthyn, upon the demise of John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, was found to be that nobleman's next heir. From the eldest son of this Reginald, Lord Grey, Sir John Grey (who predeceased him), descended the Earls of Kent, (the third successor to which honor having impaired his fortune by gaming, his brother and heir, Sir Henry Grey, of Wrest, declined assuming the dignity, but that gentleman's grandson and heir, Reginald, having, by frugality, recovered his fortune, became 6th Earl); which Earldom merged in the Dukedom of Kent, in 1716, and expired in 1740. (See BURKE's Extinct Peerage).

The second son of Reginald, Lord de Grey Ruthyn,

SIR EDWARD DE GREY, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Henry, son and heir apparent of William, Lord Ferrars, of Groby, and in consequence, assumed that title. His Lordship d. in the 36th year of HENRY VI., and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN GREY, who m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Richard Widvile, Earl of Rivers, by whom he had two sons. Sir John fell at the battle of St. Albans, fighting under the banner of HENRY VI., in the 39th year of that Prince's reign, and his widow became, subsequently, Queen Consort of EDWARD IV. Sir John Grey's eldest son and heir,

SIR THOMAS GREY, through the influence of his mother, was created, in the 11th year of EDWARD IV., Earl of Huntingdon, and in four years afterwards, advanced to the MARQUISATE OF DORSET. After King EDWARD's death, however, his Lordship was attainted of high treason, but restored upon the elevation of HENRY VII. to the throne. He d. 10 April, 1501, and was s. by his eldest surviving son (by his 2nd wife, Cicely, dau. and heiress of William Bonville, Lord Bonville and Harrington),

THOMAS, 2nd Marquess of Dorset, K.G. This nobleman carried the sword of state, at the celebrated meeting between HENRY VIII. and FRANCIS I. at Ardres, in 1520. His Lordship d. 10 Oct., 1530, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 3rd Marquess, who espoused, for his 2nd wife, Frances, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, by Mary, Queen Dowager of France, and sister of King HENRY VIII., and was, in consequence, advanced, 11 Oct., 1551, to the DUKEDOM OF SUFFOLK, and installed a Knight of the Garter. The issue of this marriage were three daughters; the eldest, the amiable and unfortunate Lady Jane Grey, having, for a few days enjoyed the empty trappings of royalty, was brought, with her husband, Lord Guilford Dudley, to the block, 12 Feb., 1554-5. Lady Catherine Grey, the 2nd dau., marrying Edward Seymour, Earl of Hertford, without the permission of Queen ELIZABETH, was committed to the Tower, by her Majesty, where she died 26 Jan., 1567; while the 3rd, Lady Mary Grey, m. Martin Keys, Esq., of the county of Kent, Sergeant-Porter to Queen Elizabeth, and d. without issue in 1578. The unhappy father suffered soon after his eldest dau., 23 Feb., 1554-5, and his brother, Thomas, 27 April, following. From that period the honors of the family were eclipsed, until revived by King JAMES I., who created

SIR HENRY GREY, Knt. (son of Lord John Grey, of Pirgo, Co. Essex, and only nephew of the attainted Duke), 21 July, 1603. Lord Grey, of Groby, Co. Leicester. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of William, Lord Windsor, of Bradenham, and dying in 1614, was s. by his grandson, HENRY, 2nd Lord Grey, of Groby (son of the Hon. Sir John Grey, by Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Nevil, Lord Abergavenny), who was created EARL OF STAMFORD, Co. Lincoln, 26 March, 1628. His Lordship m. Lady Anne Cecil, youngest dau. and co-heiress of William, Earl of Exeter, in whose right he became possessed of the castle, borough, and manor of Stamford. The Earl was a parliamentary military commander during the civil wars; as was his son, Lord Grey, who predeceased him. (The latter was one of the Judges upon the trial of the unfortunate CHARLES, and his signature appears to the warrant for execution). The Earl d. in 1673, and was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 2nd Earl. This nobleman was imprisoned for the part he had taken in Monmouth's rebellion, but was admitted to bail, and he finally secured his safety, under the amnesty granted 10 March, 1685-6. His Lordship married twice, but leaving no issue at his decease, 31 Jan., 1719-20, the honors reverted to his cousin,

HARRY GREY, Esq., as 3rd Earl (grandson of the 1st Earl, through his 3rd son, the Hon. John Grey, of Enville Hall, Co. Salop, by his 2nd wife, Catherine, eldest dau. of Edward, Lord Ward). His Lordship m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir Nathan Wrighte, Knt., of Caldecote Hall, Co. Warwick, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, in the reigns of King WILLIAM and Queen ANNA, (see BURKE's Commoners, vol. ii. p. 236); and, dying in 1739, was s. by his eldest son,

HARRY, 4th Earl. This nobleman m. in 1736, Lady Mary Booth, only dau. and heiress of George, last Earl of Warrington and 3rd Baron Delamere,* of that family, by whom he had issue,

Sir Francis succeeded to the title, as 7th Baronet, at the decease of his father, Sir Thomas Stapleton, Lord Le Despencer, 3 Oct. 1831.

Lineage.

The family of STAPLETON, which derived its surname from a town in the county of York, is no less famous for the gallant warriors it produced in different eras, than by the dignities and honors conferred upon them by the sovereigns under whose rule they had the good fortune to flourish. Amongst even the Knights of the Garter,* upon the institution of that noble order, we find a person of the name and family.

They subsequently transplanted themselves into Ireland, and enjoyed a considerable estate in Tipperary, until the reign of CHARLES I., when John-Edmund Stapleton, Esq. of Thorlesbegg, being completely ruined by his adhesion to the royal cause, the family sought new fortune, in the different foreign lands of Europe. Some went into Spain, where they attained high military rank; others into France, and there also, adopting the soldier's profession, became eminent in arms. Of the latter, a branch acquired a large estate at Dervaliers, near Nantes in Bretagne, and bore the title of Counts of Trèves.

SIR JOHN STAPLETON, Knt. settled in Ireland, temp. HENRY II. and from him we pass to his lineal descendant,

RICHARD STAPLETON, who obtained, in 1566, from QUEEN ELIZABETH, an exemplification of a grant from KING JOHN, to the said Sir John Stapleton, Knt. of

Sir James, who is a General in the army, and Colonel of the 2nd regiment of Dragoons, s. to the title, upon the decease of his father, in 1780. Sir James Steuart represented the county of Lanark in three successive parliaments.

Lineage.

JAMES STEUART, of Allanton, the fifth of that designation, died in 1607, leaving two sons, SIR WALTER, his successor; and

JAMES STEUART, a posthumous child, b. in 1606. This gentleman was bred to the business of a Merchant and Banker at Edinburgh, and was eminently successful, through the interest of his uncle, Lord Carmichael, who was Lord Treasurer Depute of Scotland. He m. in 1630, Anne, dau. of Henry Hope, and niece of Sir Thomas Hope, of Craighall, Co. Fife, Lord Advocate, by whom he had six sons and one daughter. Mr. Steuart was elected to parliament for the city of Edinburgh, in 1639; and, soon afterwards, received the honor of knighthood. Sir James purchased, about the year 1644, the lands of Westbarns, or Kirkfield; and, subsequently, the barony of Coltness. In 1649, he was elected Lord Provost of Edinburgh; and a second time in 1659: but he was dismissed at the Restoration, as a covenantor, being at the same time committed to Edinburgh Castle, and fined £500; but he obtained his release, and a remission of the penalty, through the influence of Sir Archibald Primrose, Lord Register. He was again, however, sent to prison, where he remained for some years, and was liberated, eventually, through the same interest. Sir James lost his first lady in 1646, and m. 2ndly, in 1648, Marion, widow of Sir John Elliot, and only dau. of David McCulloch, Esq., of Goodtrees, Co. Mid Lothian, by whom he acquired that estate, and had four daughters. He d. 31 March, 1661, and was s. at Coltness by his eldest son, Sir Thomas Steuart, while the estates of Goodtrees passed by bequest to his fourth son,

Henry Trail, of Blebo, by whom he had one son and three daughters; and, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Alexander Air, Esq., by whom he had two sons and four daughters. Mr. Steuart having taken an active part in bringing about the Revolution, was appointed Lord Advocate of Scotland in 1692, and created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1695. Sir James attained the reputation of being one of the most able, ingenious, and acute lawyers of his time; and his "Answer to Dirlton's Doubts" fully establishes that character. He purchased from his nephew, Sir David Steuart, in 1712, the estate of Coltness; and dying in 1713, was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR JAMES, of Goodtrees and Coltness, b. in 1681; m. in 1705, Anne, dau. of Sir Hugh Dalrymple, of North Berwick, Lord President of the Court of Session, by whom he had one surviving son and several daughters. Sir James, who was a distinguished advocate, was appointed in 1709, Solicitor General for Scotland; and, after the Union, in 1713, he was returned to Parliament by the county of Mid Lothian. He d. in 1727, and was s. by his only son,

III. SIR JAMES, who m. in 1743, Frances, eldest dau. of David, Earl of Wemyss, by whom he had an only surviving child, JAMES, the present Baronet. Sir James was an advocate, and, like his grandfather, early distinguished himself by the most splendid abilities and a knowledge of his profession, which probably would have raised him to the highest offices of the state, had he not unfortunately been concerned, although not in a public manner, in the rising of 1745. Informations were, in consequence, lodged against him, and he retired with his family into France. During his residence abroad, he wrote, in French, a defence of Sir Isaac Newton's chronology; and also composed his great and well known work, "The Political Economy." In 1773, by the death of Sir Archibald Steuart Denham, the Baronetcy of Coltness, (which had been conferred, in 1698, upon Sir Thomas Steuart, the first of Coltness), was united in the person of Sir James, with that of Goodtrees. His Lordship inherited, as 16th Earl of Suffolk, and 9th Earl of Berkshire, at the decease of his father, 23 Feb., 1820. The Earl of Suffolk is Colonel of the Wiltshire Militia.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the house of Howard, Dukes of Norfolk, springing from Thomas the 4th Duke, and his 2nd wife, Margaret, only dau. and heiress of Thomas, Lord Audley, of Walden, K.G. through their only son,

LORD THOMAS HOWARD, the heir of his mother's estates, and a distinguished naval officer in the reign of Queen ELIZABETH. His Lordship was restored in blood, (his father, the Duke, having been attainted and beheaded in 1572,) by act of Parliament, in the 27th year of her majesty; and in twelve years afterwards, 24 Oct., 1597, summoned to Parliament, as Lord Howard, of Walden. His Lordship was created EARL OF SUFFOLK 21 July, 1603, and installed a knight of the Garter. The plate of the Earl's installation, which remains yet in the chapel of St. George, at Windsor, in the ninth stall, denominates him "Thomas, Earl of Suffolk, Baron of Walden, and Grand Treasurer of England;" but he was not appointed to the latter high and important office until the 11th of July, 1614. The plate must, therefore, have been set up subsequently to that period. This nobleman, in 1605, being then Lord Chamberlain of his Majesty's household, was employed, with Lord Mounteagle, who had given the alarm, to institute a strict search about the Parliament-house; and, through his Lordship's vigilance, the subsequent discovery of the gunpowder treason, the detection of the conspirators, and the preservation of the King and Parliament, are mainly attributable. His Lordship was elected Chancellor of the University of Cambridge in 1613, and constituted Lord High Treasurer of England in the following year; of which high office he was deprived in 1618, after an investigation of the conduct of himself, his Countess, and Sir John Bingley, Treasurer's Remembrancer, when the two former were fined £30,000, and committed to the Tower, during pleasure; and Bingley £2000, and sent to the Fleet. The Earl was, however, in public opinion, generally deemed guiltless; but the Countess had incurred much odium, by extorting money from all persons who had any matters to dispatch at the Treasury. His Lordship m. 1st, Mary, sister and co-heiress of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland, but had no issue. He espoused, 2ndly, Catherine, (the lady who incurred the censure of the Star Chamber,) eldest dau. and co-heiress of Sir Henry Knevet, Knt. of Charlton, Co. Wilts, and widow of the Hon. Richard

Rich, eldest son of Lord Rich, by whom he had, (with other issue,)

i. THEOPHILUS, his successor.

ii. Thomas, who succeeded to the inheritance of his mother at Charlton, Co. Wilts, and being Master of the Horse to CHARLES, Prince of Wales, was elevated to the peerage, as Lord Howard, of Charlton, and Viscount Andover, 23 January, 1621-2; installed a Knight of the Garter 16 December, 1625, and created EARL OF BERKSHIRE 6 February, 1625-6. This nobleman, during the civil wars, espoused with great zeal the royal cause, and, subsequently, lived in retirement until the restoration of the monarchy, when, in consideration of his fidelity, he obtained a grant, heritable by his son, Sir Robert Howard, of the farm of the revenue of post-fines, for forty-eight years, from 1630, for the yearly rent of 2276*l*. His Grace was summoned to parliament in the lifetime of his father, as Baron Gower (the late Duke's Barony). He is Lord Lieutenant of the county of Sutherland.

Lineage.

All our antiquaries coincide in attaching a long and distinguished line of ancestors to this family, and in giving it an Anglo-Saxon origin; but they differ as to the identity of its founder; some tracing that honor to Sir Allan Gower, Lord of Sittenham, in Yorkshire, and High Sheriff of the County at the time of the Conquest; while others name William Fitz-Guyer, of Sittenham, who was charged with a mark for his lands, in the Sheriff's accounts, anno 1167. In more than a hundred years afterwards (towards the close of the thirteenth century), we find

SIR JOHN GOWER one of the persons of note summoned to be at Carlisle, with horse and arms, on the feast of the nativity of St. John the Baptist, to march against the Scots; and again in the following year, the same personage is summoned, for a like purpose, to proceed to Berwick. After Sir John comes

LAWRENCE GOWER, who obtained the king's pardon, in the 7th EDWARD II., for having been concerned with the Earl of Lancaster, in the murder of Piers Gaveston, at Blacklow Hill, 19 June, 1312. This Lawrence was s. by

SIR NICHOLAS GOWER, who was returned one of the Knights of the Shire, Co. York, in the 12th EDWARD III. to a great council summoned by Edward, the Black Prince, then guardian of the realm, and held at Northampton: for which service, being in attendance fourteen days, he received the sum of £5. 12s. In the 24th of the same monarch, we find Sir Nicholas obtaining the King's permission to go to Rome, with six valets and seven horses, in his retinue: and in 1351, he was commissioned to investigate some outrage committed upon Hugh, Archbishop of Damascus, at Newstead, near Boland. From Sir Nicholas we pass to his grandson,

SIR JOHN GOWER, who was standard bearer to Prince Edward, son of King HENRY VI., and having been made prisoner at the battle of Tewkesbury, 4 May, 1471, was there beheaded. This gallant but unfortunate soldier had married Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Goldsborough, one of the Barons of the Exchequer in the reign of HENRY VII. and left, with other children, his successor, SUTHERLAND (EARLDOM).

SUTHERLAND, COUNTESS OF, (Elizabeth Sutherland-Leveson-Gower,) and Baroness of Strathnaver, Co. Sutherland, in the Peerage of Scotland; inherited the honors, as eighteenth in succession, at the demise of her father, 16 June, 1766, and obtained a confirmation of her rights from the House of Lords in 1771; m. in 1785, George, 1st Duke of Sutherland, who d. 19 July, 1833 (see that dignity).

Lineage.

This Peerage, according to the traditionary details of some of the Scottish writers, is the most ancient in North Britain, and gives way to few, if to any, in all Europe beside. Those writers state, that in the reign of CORBRED II., A.D. 76, a colony, called Catti, coming from Germany into Scotland, separated into two divisions; one of which establishing themselves in the north, called their new quarters Caithness; while that which went southward, denominated the country Sutherland.

ALLAN, Thane of Sutherland, who gave a very signal descent to the Danes, and was murdered by Macbeth, for his fidelity to MALCOLM Cean-mohr, was father of

WILLIAM, who, according to tradition, was created Earl of Sutherland by King MALCOLM, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT, who built Dunrobin Castle, which still continues the principal seat of the family. This Robert was s. by his son,

HUGH, who was s. in 1204, by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, under the title of "Willielmus Dominus de Sutherlandia." From an indenture dated in 1275, it appears that there was a William, Earl of Sutherland, between the years 1222 and 1235, and it has been conjectured that ALEXANDER II. created this William Baron Strathnaver, and EARL OF SUTHERLAND, for assisting to crush the rebellion of Gillespock, in the North, in 1228. This nobleman d. in 1248, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Earl, who was one of the Scottish nobles attending the parliament of ALEXANDER III. at Scone, in 1283-4, when the succession to the throne was settled. He swore fealty to EDWARD I., in 1296, signalized himself, although advanced in years, at the battle of BANNOCKBURN, on the side of BRUCE, in 1314, and subscribed the letter to the Pope, asserting the independence of Scotland, at Aberbrothwick, 6 April, 1320. His Lordship d. in 1325, after enjoying the dignity for seventy-seven years, and was s. by his son,

KENNETH, 3rd Earl, who fell at Halidon-Hill, 19 July, 1333, valiantly supporting the cause of King DAVID II. He m. a dau. of the Earl of Marr, and was s. by his elder son,

WILLIAM, 4th Earl. This nobleman m. Lady Margaret Bruce, eldest dau. of King ROBERT I. and sister of King DAVID II. which latter monarch erected the Earldom of Sutherland into a regality in favor of the existing Earl and Countess, by charter, dated 10 Nov.,

1345. His Lordship d. in 1370, and was s. by his only surviving son,

WILLIAM, 5th Earl, who was s. by his elder son,

His Lordship d. in 1509, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, 9th Earl; at whose decease, without issue, in 1514, the honors devolved upon his only sister, ELIZABETH, as Countess of Sutherland. Her Ladyship had previously espoused Adam Gordon, of Aboyne, second son of George, Earl of Huntly, who assumed, in consequence, the title of Earl of Sutherland. The Countess, upon a resignation, obtained a new charter from KING JAMES V. (1 Dec., 1527), of the Earldom (after the decease of herself and husband), in favor of Alexander, their son, and his heirs. TAAFFE.

TAAFFE, VISCOUNT, (Francis Taaffe,) of Corren; and Baron of Ballymote, Co. Sligo, in the Peerage of Ireland; inherited as 8th Viscount, at the decease of his father, 7 June, 1830; m. 11 April, 1811, the Countess Antonia Amadeé de Varkony, and has two sons. Lord Taaffe is a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, and Chamberlain to the Emperor of Austria.

Lineage.

The members of this noble family have resided, for a series of years, in the Austrian dominions, and have filled the highest offices, civil and military, under the imperial government, doubtless from having heretofore, as Catholics, been debarred the prouder gratification of serving their own. The Taaffes are of great antiquity in the counties of Louth and Sligo, and have produced, in ancient times, many distinguished and eminent persons; amongst whom was Sir Richard Taaffe, who flourished temp. King EDWARD I. and d. in 1297; contemporary with Sir Richard, was the

LORD NICHOLAS TAAFFE, who died in 1286, leaving two sons; John Taaffe, Archbishop of Armagh, who d. in 1306, and

RICHARD-FITZ-NICHOLAS-TAAFFE; whose eldest son,

RICHARD TAAFFE, Esq. was seated at Ballybraggan and Castlelumpagh. This gentleman served the office of Sheriff for the Co. Louth in 1315, and to his custody was committed the person of Hugh de Lacie, the younger, Earl of Ulster, after his condemnation for high treason, in inciting the invasion of Ireland, by

Edward Bruce, until the execution of that unfortunate nobleman at Drogheda. From this Richard lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM TAAFFE, Knt. of Harleston, who distinguished himself by his services to the crown, during Tyrone's rebellion, in 1597; and subsequently, maintained his reputation against the Spanish force, which landed at Kinsale in 1601. Sir William d. in 1630, and was s. by his only son, (by his 2nd wife, Ismay, dau. of Sir Christopher Bellew.)

SIR JOHN TAAFFE, Knt. who was advanced to the Peerage of Ireland, 1 Aug., 1628, in the dignities of Baron of Ballymote, and VISCOUNT TAAFFE, of Corren, both in Co. Sligo. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Theobald, 1st Viscount Dillon, by whom he had (with other issue,)

THEOBALD (SIR), who succeeded to the honors.

LUCAS, a Major-General in the Army, was appointed Governor of Ross, in 1649, to defend that place against Cromwell. He was subsequently obliged to expatriate himself, and served as a Col. in Italy and Spain. He returned, however, and died in Ireland.

Francis, a Colonel in the Rebellion of 1641, m. an Italian lady, and left a son CHARLES.

Edward, d. unmarried.

Peter, a Canon of the Order of St. Augustine, killed at Drogheda, 1649.

Jasper, slain in battle, and d. s. p.

WILLIAM, m. Margaret, dau. of Connor O'Kennedy Roe, by whom he had, with three daughters,

FRANCIS, who m. Anne, dau. of John Crean, Esq. of O'Brien's Castle, in Sligo, and had issue, NICHOLAS, who inherited as SIXTH VISCOUNT. Anne, m. to John Brett, Esq. of Rathdoony, Co. Sligo.

Mary, m. to Theodore Verdon, Esq. of Clunigashell, and d. s. p.

His Lordship d. in 1642, and was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD, 2nd Viscount, who was advanced to the Earldom of Carlingford 26 June, 1602. This nobleman espoused zealously the royal cause during the civil wars, and had his estate sequestered by the Usurper. After the Restoration, he obtained, however, a pension of £800 a year; and, upon being advanced in the Peerage, received a grant of £4000 a year, of the rents payable to the crown, out of the retrenched lands of adventurers and soldiers, during such time as the same remained in the common stock of reprisals, and out of forfeited jointures, mortgages, &c. The Earl was s. at his decease by his eldest surviving son, by his 1st wife, Mary, dau. of Sir Nicholas White, of Leixlip,

NICHOLAS, 2nd Earl and 3rd Viscount. This nobleman fell at the battle of the Boyne, in the command of a regiment of foot, under the banner of King JAMES, and leaving no issue, the honors devolved upon his brother,

FRANCIS, 3rd Earl, the celebrated Count Taaffe, of the Germanic Empire. This nobleman, who was sent in his youth to the city of Olmutz, to prosecute his studies, became, first, one of the pages of honor to the Emperor Ferdinand, and, soon after, obtained a captain's commission from CHARLES, the 5th Duke of Lorraine, in his own regiment. He was, subsequently, Chamberlain to the Emperor, a Marshal of the Empire, and Counsellor of the State and Cabinet. His Lordship was so highly esteemed by most of the crowned heads of Europe, that, when he succeeded to his hereditary honors, he was exempted from forfeiture, by a special clause in the English act of Parliament, 1st WILLIAM and MARY; and in the acts passed in Ireland, 9th of the same reign, to hinder the reversion of divers outlawries and attainders, it was provided, that nothing therein contained should extend to attain, or convict of high treason, Nicholas, Earl of Carlingford, or his brother, &c. &c. The Earl d. in Aug., 1704, and leaving no issue, the honors devolved upon his nephew,

* She was first cousin to Arthur Wolfe, Viscount Killwarden, Chief Justice of the King's Bench in Ireland.

NICHOLAS, Count Taaffe, of the Germanic Empire, as 6th Viscount. (Refer to WILLIAM, son of the 1st Viscount.) This nobleman obtained the golden key, as Chamberlain, from the Emperor CHARLES VI., as he did from his Imperial Majesty's successor, which mark of distinction both his sons enjoyed. TALBOT DE MALAHIDE.

TALBOT AND MALAHIDE, BARON, (Richard-Wogan Talbot), of Malahide, Co. Dublin, in the Peerage of Ireland, hereditary Lord Admiral of Malahide and the seas adjoining; m. in Nov., 1789, Catherine, dau. and heiress of John Malpas, Esq., of Rocestown, Co. Dublin, by whom he had a son and daughter, viz.

John-Malpas, who d. unm. in 1828.

Catherine-Frances, m. 9 May, 1800, to Major Gen.

Sir William-Cornwallis Eustace, and d. 10 Dec., 1816, leaving two daughters, and a son, Alexander Eustace, who assumed the additional surname of Malpas.

His Lordship m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Andrew Sayers, Esq., but has no other issue. Lord Talbot is a Colonel in the Army, and represented the County of Dublin many years in Parliament. He inherited the honors of his family on the decease of his mother, 27 Sept., 1834.

Lineage.

The castle and lordship of Malahide, on the sea-coast, near Dublin, have been possessed by the family of Talbot, from a period contemporary with the first introduction of English government into Ireland, and, at this moment, they furnish an instance unusually rare of a baronial estate having continued for upwards of 650 years in the male heirs and name of him on whom it had been originally conferred, by HENRY II. It is remarkable too that of the ancient seigniorial estates in Ireland, whose lords were vested with the dignity of Parliamentary Barons, not one can be traced to have been held directly and immediately, or under the crown, but the lordship of MALAHIDE. HOWTH, the peninsula so called, which so lately as the 14th century is admeasured at merely twenty-seven acres, was held certainly in capite by grant from the King of England, but the adjoining manors, which formed the strength and substance of the baronial estate, were held of subjects by rent, suit, and service, viz. Ratheny, Killester, &c., manors were held of the monks of Christchurch at a chiefry of 3s. 4d. yearly. Kilbarrock at a service paid for or under the family of De Tuyte of a pair of furred gloves. DUBLIN, which has been time immemorial inherited by the Nugent family exclusively, whether styling themselves De Nogent, De Capella, or Fitz-John, was but a subinfeudation made to his kinsman by Hugh de Lacy, as an ancient copy of his charter for that purpose still extant fully evinces. LUXNAW was held as a subinfeudation under the Lords of the Liberty of Desmond. ATHENRY was feudatory to the Lords (and Lady-Dowagers occasionally) of the Lordship of Connaught for the time being as a manor.* SLANE, another of the ancient baronies, was held of the heirs of De Verdon as of their manor of Dulak, to whom the Lords Le Fleming yearly rendered rent and service. Of the other remaining dignities, viz. De Courcy, or Kingsale, Offaley, (the first title obtained by the ancestors of the Duke of Leinster in the country), Gormanstown, Killeen, and Dunsany, though they may have existed in Ireland long before the practice of creating peers by patent commenced, and in that supposition only are here named, yet they are of such recent or modern acquirement in the families which now possess them, that they are excluded from any consideration in the discussion of a fact solely relating to seignioral territories acquired in the reign of HENRY II., and now possessed by the descendants of the blood and name of the original founders. In this respect Malahide seems to have been unique in Ireland, and its lords, pursuant to the nature of their original tenure and the terms of their royal charters, never rendered homage, suit, or service, to any but the Crown, nor acknowledged any superior but the King of England alone. Richard de Talbott, who is mentioned in Domesday Book, was the common ancestor of the Lords of Malahide, and of the Earls of Shrewsbury, and in consequence of the well known affinity of those two branches, the family in Ireland, by ancient entails and settlements, made the members of the house of Shrewsbury next heirs in remainder to their Irish estates.

RICHARD TALBOT, "Chevalier," was Lord of Malahide in the reign of HENRY II. and after that monarch conferred the dominion of Ireland on his son, Prince (subsequently King) JOHN, Sir Richard obtained a confirmatory grant of the lordship, with Sack and Seck, Tol and Them, infangthef, and the judgment of Water, and of Iron, the Duel, the Pit, the Gallows, and all other the appendages of civil and criminal jurisdictions as possessed by the baronage of that day, to hold to him and his heirs by rendering to the king the service of one archer with a horse and coat of mail for ever. Sir Richard had also confirmed to him the advowson of the church of Malahide, and having, about the year 1193, presented his brother Walter Talbot to that benefice, he died, leaving two sons, Reginald and Adam. The elder

REGINALD TALBOT, being a minor at his father's decease, the wardship of the estates devolved to the crown, and during his nonage, Walter, his uncle, having died, the church became vacant, whereupon Henry de Londres, Archbishop of Dublin, then acting as Justiciary or Chief Governor of Ireland, appointed a clerk to the benefice in right of the King, as is set forth in an ancient inquisition. Reginald soon after died without issue, and was succeeded by his brother and heir,

ADAM TALBOT, Lord of Malahide, whose descent is specifically set forth in some proceedings taken by the crown to protect the estates of the family against certain encroachments of the Archbishop of Dublin. His son and heir was

RICHARD TALBOT, who is entered on the exchequer roll, of 1278, as Lord Richard Talbot, and who, by the name of Richard-Fitz-Adam Talbot, Knt. granted to King EDWARD I. in the year 1280, all wardships, reliefs, marriages, escheats, &c. happening within his lordship of Malahide, and it further appeared, by the same deed, which is enrolled on the Antiquissimæ Rolls of Ireland, that he settled Malahide on his son,

SIR MILO TALBOT, who was succeeded by his son,

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, who was commanded, in 1316, to appear at the exchequer, with one horse caparisoned, to hear and perform what the judges there, by advice of the king's privy council, should order, as part of the service by which he held the family estates. On the Remembrancer's Roll of the 9th of EDWARD II. he is entered as being abroad in the public service, or "in servitio domini regis," and afterwards while at home was entrusted with high power by the crown.

He was the associate in arms of Sir John Birmingham, who with several noblemen and gentlemen having defeated Bruce when he invaded Ireland, was created Earl of Louth, by EDWARD II. in 1319, with £20 yearly fee out of the profits, and rents of the county, and this creation, which vested in the seigniority of Louth in Sir John, was so resented by the more ancient families of De Verdon, Gernon, Savage, &c. that in the year 1329, the Earl and about one hundred and sixty noblemen and gentlemen were slain by those families at Ballibragan. Historians have all agreed in noticing this event, and amongst the few names which they have left us of those who were killed, are those of the Earl, some of his kinsmen, and Talbot, Lord of Malahide. By his lady, Margaret (de Ashebourne), he had a son and heir,

THOMAS TALBOT, who at his father's death, being a minor, was taken into the crown's guardianship, and King EDWARD, by patent, tested at Guildford, 7 July, 1329, made a grant of the wardship of all his estates during minority. On coming of age the king sent orders to the exchequer that those estates should be discharged of the royal services due when certain scutages and hostings were proclaimed, as he the heir was then a minor. By a patent, dated at Westminster, 20 May, 1352, the king granted that he Lord Thomas for life should be exempt from juries and assizes, and should not be made sheriff, escheator, or other minister against his will; the importance of this exemption or privilege may be estimated, when it is known that in the reign of EDWARD III. and for nearly a century afterwards, peers were obliged to discharge the offices of sheriff, &c. in common with all other persons, and in the sheriff's rolls we find Thomas, Duke of Surrey (whose sister, Elizabeth, married Thomas, 1st Duke of Norfolk) personally acting within that period as Sheriff of the County Louth, where he had estates; but in the reign of HENRY VI. it being found that such offices interfered with their parliamentary affairs, an act was passed in Ireland exempting peers from discharging such duties. On 15 Feb., in the 46th year of EDWARD III. a parliament or great council was convoked in Ireland, and the writs of summons* to the prelates, peers, &c. are still remaining on the close roll of that year; amongst the peers is "Thomam Talbot, militem;" and it is a circumstance worth noticing that he and all the other peers of Ireland (two only excepted) are upon this occasion directed to be forewarned by the county sheriff. He was afterwards summoned in the year 1374, a parliament being called, but particularly a special parliamentary writ, tested at Naas, 20 Nov., was issued to the same Sir Thomas, and of the forty-four lay peers then summoned, his name stands in the consimilar writ, as the fourth after the Earls of Ormond, Kildare, and Desmond; and by the foregoing, and other ancient lists still existing, it is proved this family had place and rank amongst the most ancient parliamentary Peers of Ireland. By his Lady, Agnes, he had issue two sons, Richard and Thomas.

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, the elder son, was Sheriff of the Co. Dublin, and by his wife Cecilia (who afterwards married Robert Gallane, and had dower in Clonagbless) left issue a son,

THOMAS TALBOT, a minor at his father's death, who died, leaving a son and heir,

CHRISTOPHER TALBOT, whose guardianship and estates in the Counties of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, were granted to Sir Thomas Fleming, Baron of Slane, by patent, dated at Westminster, March 1, in the 1st year of King HENRY IV. and in this patent it is provided

* These writs, and the several others now remaining on the public rolls, may be found in the late Mr. Lynch's able view of the "Legal Institutions, Honorary Hereditary Offices, and Feudal Baronies."

that Lord Slane should have his marriage "absque disparagatione," and that he should find him sufficient maintenance, and sustain the mansion houses, and woods, and all other burthens and services incumbent on the estates he should discharge, rendering an account to the Exchequer of the surplus. Christopher died a minor, and without issue, whereupon the lordship devolved on

THOMAS TALBOT, son of Lord Thomas (who was summoned to the great councils and parliament in the reign of EDWARD III., as above mentioned). For him, as "Thomas, filius Thomae Talbot, militis," homage of two-thirds of Malahide, was respited, 12 Nov., 1430, but he died soon after, as it appears that on the 8 Nov., 1432, the King granted to Thomas Cusacke and others the custody of all estates in the several counties of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, of which he had lately died seised, and which were now vested in the crown by the minority of his son and heir,

RICHARD TALBOT, Lord of Malahide, who m. the Lady Matilda Plunkett, dau. of Christopher, Baron of Killeen. Of this lady a word en passant. There is among the ancient paintings in the castle at Malahide, a whole length, in which the horned cap of the 15th century is very conspicuous, and this painting, family tradition points out as the Hon. Maud Plunkett, dau. of Christopher, 1st Baron of Killeen, the widow of Hussey, Baron of Galtrim, and wife of Sir Richard Talbot. There is also in the ruined church attached to the castle, an altar-tomb, with a representation in bold relief of the same lady, and the escutcheons at the base are charged with the arms of Plunkett, Cusack, and Talbot. Of this Lady Maud, the legend of the country pathetically tells us that she was maid, wife, and widow, in one day, her husband having been killed immediately after marriage: and it must be here observed, as a proof of the accuracy of such traditions and family reputation, that on examining the public records, it is found that the Lady Matilda Plunkett was daughter of Lord Killeen, and was married to Thomas Hussey, Baron of Galtrim, who was murdered as already mentioned, and that she obtained a patent wherein the King recognizes her as wife of Sir Richard Talbot, and granted her possession of her late husband's (Thomas, Baron of Galtrim) estates in the county of Meath. Her ladyship, on the death of Sir Richard, married John Cornewalsh, who was Chief Baron in the reign of HENRY VI., on the Wednesday after the feast of the blessed Virgin Mary, 1444, and enjoyed with her husband, dower out of the lordships of Galtrim and of Malahide, in right of her two former lords. There are numerous other records as to this lady, in the Exchequer, where it can be traced that she died on the 17 July, in the year 1482, having survived her 3rd husband several years. Sir Richard Talbot, by Lady Maud, left a son and heir,

THOMAS TALBOT, who on the 15 Nov., in the year 1460, had a patent of privileges conferred on him by the crown, as "Thomas Talbot Armiger Dominus de Malahide," and in the evidence chamber are several deeds, whereby the Lordships of Louth, Ashe, Castlefrank, &c., were conveyed to him by Sir James Strangeways, Knt., Richard Strangeways, his son and heir, John Conyers, Knt.; Margery, his wife; and John Conyers, their son, who were co-heirs of the Barons Darcy, of Knaith, and the latter of whom was ancestor to the Earls of Holderness. On the 15 Nov., 1460, the King granted him a patent, as "Thomas Talbot Armiger Dominus de Malahide," exempting him from attendance at assizes, and on the 21 Sept., 1475, he had license as Lord of Malahide to absent himself out of Ireland for three years. Soon after this, his Majesty King EDWARD IV., by a patent now under the great seal, and still preserved amongst the family deeds at the castle, 8 March, 1476, granted him all the customs of merchandise coming to the port of Malahide, and that he and his heirs should be Admirals of that port, with power of holding Courts of Admiralty, and appointing officers, gaugers, searches, water bailiffs, &c., and further, that he should have respite of his homage due to the crown for that manor for fifty years; that he should not be obliged to take on him the order of knighthood; that he should for ever have outfangthes and free warren within the manor; that neither he nor his tenants should be compelled to attend the county courts; but should have view of frank pledge by his seneschal and leet and law days, with the return and execution of all writs; that none of his heirs should serve the office of coroner or escheator; that he and his heirs should hold their court, and hear and determine all pleas to any amount by his seneschal or other officers, with power to arrest, attach, &c. within said lordship to hold a court baron, with all amercements, ransoms for escapes of felons, fugitives, or murderers, with license of absence for him and his heirs out of Ireland, and many other valuable privileges. In the 16th of EDWARD IV., when required in the Exchequer to do homage for his lordship of Malahide and other estates, he pleaded his exemption by the above patent, and was accordingly exonerated from homage, as he and his descendants afterwards were from several other duties and restrictions pursuant to the same grant. He d. 23 July, 1487, when all his estates in the counties of Dublin, Meath, Louth, and Kildare, were taken into the King's hands. By a settlement which was executed 14 Sept., previous to his death, his estates were conveyed to him by trustees as "Dominus de Malahide," and to Elizabeth, his wife, for life, and remainders were created therein, for John, Richard, and Thomas, his younger sons. By said Lady Elizabeth, who survived him, he left as his son and heir,

SIR PETER TALBOT, who did homage in the Exchequer for the family lordships, and is stiled "Dominus de Malahide" in the records of that court. He m. the Lady Catherine Fitz Gerald, daughter of Gerald, Earl of Kildare; and, afterwards, Lady Elizabeth Preston, who d. 20 July, 1529; and having vested his estates in trustees, by his last will, 12 Sept., 1519, he desired to be buried in the church of Malahide, by Dame Jonett Eustace; and after leaving several considerable bequests for the repair and maintenance of the chancel, he devised all his lordships of Malahide, Garristown, Louth, and Castlering, to his son and heir, Thomas, and next to his sons, John and Walter, with remainder to his brothers, John and William: all his estates in the county of Waterford and Kilkenny he leaves to his son William. By inquisition, he was found to have died 10 July, 20th of HENRY VIII., leaving, as his son and heir,

SIR THOMAS TALBOT, who, on the 16 Dec., in the year 1520, had a grant of livery of all his father's estates in several counties in Ireland. Sir Thomas, 16 Oct., 1532, being sued in the Exchequer for not executing the office of sheriff of the county of Dublin, to which he had been elected and appointed, was called to the bar there and informed by the court that it was the pleasure of the Lord Deputy, Sir William Skeffington, that he should act as Sheriff, and was required to say whether he was willing to exercise that office. Sir Thomas, however, pleaded the patent granted to his grandfather by King EDWARD IV., already mentioned, exonerating him and his heirs from such offices, and declared that he would not act as sheriff; whereupon the proceedings were discontinued. By Katherine, his wife, he had three sons; one of whom, Robert, was father of William Talbot, who acquired the estate of Carton, Co. Kildare, and who, being created a Baronet, 4 Feb., 1692, was grandfather of Colonel Richard Talbot, who, by patent, dated 20 June, 1685, was created Baron of Talbot's town, Viscount of Baltinglass, and Earl of Tyrconnell,* with remainder in tail-male to his nephews; and was subsequently, 20 March, 1680, advanced to the dignity of Marquess and Duke of Tyrconnell, by King JAMES II., in whose service, as Chief Governor of Ireland, he died. The Duke, by Frances, Countess Hamilton, left two daughters, of whom, Charlotte, was m. to the Prince de Vintimiglia, and had issue two daughters; the one m. to M. Verac, and the other to the Prince Belmonte; but both dying without issue, Richard Wogan Talbot, now Baron of Malahide, became heir general to the Duke of Tyrconnell, as descendant and sole heir of Frances, the Duke's sister. In the castle there is a half-length painting, by Sir Peter Lely, and notwithstanding all that was written by his successful, yet unforgiving enemies at the revolution, this portrait goes far to support what we find said of the Duke in Count Grammont's Memoirs, that he was "one of the tallest men in England, and possessed of a fine and brilliant exterior; his manners were noble and brilliant;" and that he was "one of the most genteel men in the court of CHARLES II." There is also a painting of the Duchess, who was eldest dau. and co-heiress of Richard Jennings,† of Sandridge, in Hertfordshire, and sister to Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough; and her beauty and character are thus depicted by a cotemporary; "She had the fairest and brightest complexion that ever was seen; her hair a most beautiful flaxen, her countenance extremely animated, though, generally, persons so exquisitely fair have an insipidity; her whole person was fine, particularly her neck and bosom. The charms of her person, and the unaffected sprightliness of her wit,

* Of RICHARD TALBOT, Duke of Tirconnel, much ill has been written, and more believed; but his history, like that of his unfortunate country, has only been written by the pen of party steeped in gall, and copied servilely from the pages of prejudice, by the lame historians of modern times, more anxious for authority than for authenticity. Two qualities he possessed in an eminent degree—wit and valour; and if to gifts so brilliant and so Irish be joined devotion to his country, and fidelity to the unfortunate and fated family with whose exile he began life, and with whose ruin he finished it, it cannot be denied that in his character the element of evil were mixed with much great and striking good. Under happier circumstances the good might have predominated; and he, whose deeds are held even by his own family in such right estimation, might have shed a lustre on his race by those talents and heroism which gave force to his passions, and celebrity to his errors.

While King JAMES was arming (for the BATTLE OF THE BURN) in Slane Castle, another scene, equally striking, was acted in the hall of Malahide. Before the dawn of day, the Talbots, with their kinsmen, to the number of 14, assembled, armed to the teeth, round a breakfast table, at which the sister of the King's Lieutenant-General (Tyrconnell), the Lady Frances, widow of the head of this loyal party (Richard Talbot, of Malahide, who d. in 1703), presided. They set forth with a light to join their kinsman the Duke, the King's camp lying on the near shore of the Boyne, and found Tyrconnell, with the Duke of Berwick, reconnoitering the position of King WILLIAM on the opposite side of the river. While WILLIAM was mounting his horse, it happened that a man and two horses standing near him, were killed by a cannon ball. A second bullet rebounding, glanced over the right shoulder of the gallant WILLIAM, and inflicted a flesh wound: his officers crowded round him, and it was thought by the enemy that he was killed. A shout of joy rose from the Irish camp; and Tyrconnell, prompt to avail himself of the great event, sent forth a squadron of cavalry to profit by the consternation. In this petulant attack perished the party of the Talbots, one only returning to the castle to tell the story of the eventful day. This one was a stripling youth, Richard, son, heir, and successor of the then Talbot of Malahide.—LADY MORGAN'S IRISH SKETCHES IN THE METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE.

gained her the general admiration of the whole court in these fascinating qualities she had there (CHARLES's court) other competitors; but scarcely one, except Miss Jennings, maintained throughout the character of unblemished chastity." After the death of the Duke, whose sincere attachment to his unfortunate sovereign has never been disputed, the Duchess was permitted to erect a house (still standing) in King-street, Dublin, as a nunnery for poor Clares, and in this obscure retirement, burying all the attractions and graces which once so adorned the court of England, she died at the age of 92, and was interred in Patrick's Cathedral, 9 March, 1730. But to return to Sir Thomas Talbot; he was s. by his son and heir,

WILLIAM TALBOT, who became possessed of the lordships of Malahide, Garristown, Louth, Aske, and Castlering, with all the courts and royalties attached thereto, and to his estates in the counties of Waterford and Kilkenny, and having settled all the family estates in the counties of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, on his grandson, Richard, and the heirs male of his own body, he left a remainder over to the use "of the right heirs of John Talbot, of Grafton, within the realm of Englande," ancestor to the Earls of Shrewsbury, and his heirs for ever. To his 2nd son, John, he left his Louth estates; and this Sir John afterwards m. Bridget, dau. of Sir John Talbot, of Grafton, and d. 7 Nov., 1613. Sir William Talbot, d. 4 Feb., 1593, leaving his grandson,

RICHARD TALBOT, his heir, then aged eleven years and three months; after succeeding to his estates, he, in common with the other ancient and dignified families of the country, incurred the tyrannous jealousy of Lord Strafford, then Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, who sought to wrest from him the admiralty of the port of Malahide, and other his valuable rights; but, on pleading the ancient charters under which his family had so long inherited, the court gave judgment against the crown, and thus Strafford's designs were defeated. Sir Richard d. 29 July, 1640, having previously executed a settlement of his lordships, of Malahide, Garristown, and the Louth estates, (which had lately reverted to him,) leaving by his wife, Eliza, dau. of Sir German Kempe, of Sussex, a son and heir,

JOHN TALBOT, who, during the Commonwealth government, had the mortification to see his castle occupied by the celebrated Myles Corbet and other regicides; and though, on the restoration of CHARLES II., he re-obtained possession of the chief portion of his paternal estates, yet a valuable property was then usurped from the family by the crown, and still so continues, notwithstanding that three several monarchs subsequently admitted the fact, that spoliation had been committed. By his wife, the Lady Catherine Plunket, dau. of Luke, Earl of Fingall, he left a son and heir,

RICHARD TALBOT, who was appointed Auditor-General of Ireland immediately before the revolution. He m. Frances, sister of Richard, Duke of Tyrconnell, a lady of strong and masculine spirit, by whom (who d. in 1718) he left issue, at his decease in 1703, Algar-Bowdoin, b. at Malta, 26 May, 1833.

Lineage.

This ancient family derives its surname from the manor of Temple, Co. Leicester, and it deduces its descent from Leofric, Earl of Chester (erroneously styled Earl of Leicester), who lived in the reign of Edward the Confessor. This Leofric married the celebrated Godiva, of Coventry notoriety, who is said to have appeased the wrath of her offended lord, and to have obtained a restitution of privileges for the good citizens of Coventry, by exhibiting on horseback in the simple habiliments of Eve, to the confusion of an unlucky knight of the needle, whom tradition hath stricken blind for presuming to peep. Certain it is, that pictures of the earl and his countess were set up in the south window of Trinity church, in that ancient city, about the reign of RICHARD II., more than three centuries after the occurrence of the supposed event; his lordship holding a charter in his right hand with the words,

I, Lurick, for love of thee,
Do set Coventry toll free.

And there is still a yearly procession of a naked figure observed by the grateful citizens, on Friday after Trinity Sunday. From this Earl of Chester lineally descended

PETER TEMPLE, Esq. who, in the latter years of King EDWARD VI. obtained a grant of the manor of Marston Boteler, Co. Warwick, and became lord of the manor of Stowe, Co. Buckingham. This gentleman m. Millicent, dau. of William Jekyl, Esq. of Newington, Co. Middlesex, and had two sons,

Lineage.

The original surname of this family, Musard, was first changed for Rubra Spatha, and that to Rospear, Rouspee, Rooper, Ropere, and, finally, Roper.

HASCULPHUS MUSARD, Lord of Stavely, Co. Derby, was grandfather of

WILLIAM MUSARD, of Miserden, Co. Gloucester, who assumed the surname of Rospear, or De Rubra-Spatha, and with his wife, Elnith, dau. and heiress of Thomas Appledore, of Dean Court, in Appledore, Kent, was a great benefactor to the priory of St. Martin's, in Dover, temp. HENRY III. His son,

ADAM ROPER, was seated at Swacliff, in Kent; from him we pass to

EDWIN ROPER, with whom Philipot, in his Heraldic Visitation of Kent, in 1610, commences the pedigree, and from whom lineally descended

JOHN ROPER, Esq. of Wellhall, and St. Dunstan's, in Kent, high-sheriff of that shire in the twelfth of HENRY VIII., Prothonotary of the King's Bench, and Attorney-General in the same reign. This gentleman m. Jane, dau. of Sir John Pineux, knt., of Swingfield, in the same County, Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, and co-heiress of her mother, Eliza-

SIR WILLIAM ROPER, Knt., of Eltham and St. Dunstan's, who m. Catherine, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Anthony Browne, Knt., of Ridley Hall, Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, and was s. by his eldest son,

ANTHONY ROPER, Esq.; with whose only son,

EDWARD ROPER, Esq., the male line of this branch of the family terminated, while the estates of Eltham and St. Dunstan's passed with his only surviving dau. and heiress, ELIZABETH, to her husband, Edward Henshaw, Esq. of Hampshire, and, subsequently, by co-heiresses, to the families of Sir Edward Dering, Bart. of Surrenden, and of Sir Rowland Wynne, Bart. of Nostell.

The male line now centered in the descendants of the younger son of John Roper, by Jane Pineux, namely,

Lineage.

The surname of this family was originally written TOKYON, and derived from a place of that name in Kent, of which its remote ancestors were feudal lords.

His lordship claimed the baronies of Clifford, Westmorland, and Vesey, in right of inheritance from his grandmother, and that of CLIFFORD was conferred to him by the House of Lords, 12th Dec., 1601, when he assumed the additional title of Baron Clifford, which barony at his decease, in 1729, fell into abeyance between his daughters and co-heirs, and so continued, until the crown, in 1734, interposed in favor of Margaret, Countess of Leicester, his Lordship's 3rd dau.; but, at her Ladyship's decease, without issue, in 1775, it relapsed into abeyance between her sisters, which abeyance the crown again terminated in 1776, in favor of Edward Southwell, as stated above. The Earl of Thanet's other honors reverted to his nephew,

Sir Patrick s. to the estates of his family, upon the decease of his father, 2 Feb., 1805; and petitioning GEORGE IV. when his Majesty was in Scotland in 1822, for a restoration of the honors of his house, which had been forfeited, on account of his grandfather's accession to the rebellion in 1715, the King was graciously pleased to signify his assent, 25 April, 1826, to the introduction of a bill into parliament, whereby the attainder of Sir David Threipland was reversed, and his grandson, the present proprietor, reinstated in all the dignities and titles of his ancestors, as 4th Bart. of Fingask.

Lineage.

I. PATRICK THREIPLAND, Esq., of Fingask Castle, Co. Perth, was made a Knight-Bachelor by King CHARLES II. in the year 1674, and afterwards a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by King JAMES II. 10 Nov., 1687, with remainder to his heirs male. Sir Patrick was a staunch supporter of the family then on the throne. He took an active lead in the politics of his country during the usurpation of CROMWELL; and, for many years, successively, discharged, with infinite credit, several important public duties, which were committed to his care. He m. 13 March, 1665, Euphemia, dau. of John Conqueror, Esq., of Frierton, by whom he had one son and six daughters; and dying in 1689, was s. by his son,

Sir David Threipland having imbibed all the Tory principles of his father, held a secret correspondence with the son of JAMES II. and his adherents: and, in 1715, he was among the first, with his sons and a party of followers, to aid the Earl of Mar, in setting up the standard of the Chevalier de St. George, and in proclaiming that Prince King, under the title of JAMES VIII. of Scotland, and Third of England; in consequence of which, Sir David's title was attainted, by act of parliament, in the 1st year of King GEORGE I., and his estates and effects were annexed to the crown. He d. in 1746, and was s. by his youngest and only surviving son,

(III. SIR) STUART, who being also strongly attached to the cause of the house of Stuart, linked his fate with that of the unfortunate Charles-Edward in 1745, and participated in all the difficulties and misery which that Prince and his followers were doomed to undergo.

After the result of the battle of Culloden, so fatal to the hopes of the Jacobites, Sir Stuart Threipland's maternal property, as had been the case with his paternal in 1716, was forfeited; and a reward having been offered for his apprehension, he contrived to escape into France, where he remained at the court of the Stuarts, until the act of indemnity permitted his return to Scotland in security; when at a sale of forfeited lands in 1782, he repurchased the family estates, which are now in the possession of his descendants. He m. 1st, in 1753, Jannet, eldest dau. of David Sinclair, Esq., of Southdun, by whom he had a son and daughter, who both d. issueless; and 2ndly, in 1761, Miss Jannet-Budge Murray, of Pennyland, by whom he had four sons and a daughter, viz.

Lineage.

The surname of Pretyman is of considerable antiquity in the County of Suffolk, where it is to be met with upon record in the 13th century. The family was seated at Bacton, and came to be represented, in 1490, by

WILLIAM PRETYMAN, of Bacton; from whom descended

SIR JOHN PRETYMAN, who was knighted at the coronation of King JAMES I., and acquiring Driffeld, in Gloucestershire, was s. therein by his son,

I. JOHN PRETYMAN, Esq., of Lodington, Co. Leicester, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1641, and was s. by his second but eldest surviving son,

II. SIR GEORGE, M.P. for Leicester, who, dissipating the family fortune, left nothing but the title to his brother and successor,

III. SIR WILLIAM; at whose decease the Baronetcy reverted to his nephew,

IV. SIR THOMAS, who d. without issue, in 1749, when the title became dormant, and so remained until revived in favour of the late Baronet, in 1823. At the demise of Sir Thomas, the male representation of the family devolved upon the collateral line of Thomas Pretyman, of Old Newton and Bacton (younger son of the common ancestor, William Pretyman, of Bacton, first mentioned as living in 1490), from whom, by undoubted evidence, descended

GEORGE PRETYMAN, Esq., of Old Newton and Bacton, who d. in 1727, leaving two sons,

George, who d. in 1732, and whose male line failed in 1758;

His Lordship was tutor, at the university of Cambridge, to the Right Hon. William Pitt, and was promoted, by that minister, to the Bishopric of Lincoln, and Deanery of St. Paul's, in January, 1787; from which, in August, 1820, he was translated to the see of Winchester. The Bishop assumed, 1803, the additional surname of TOMLINE, in compliance with the testamentary injunction of Marmaduke Tomline, Esq., of Riby Grove, Co. Let him love well Sir John Tirlawnee.

From this valiant Knight we pass over several other very eminent men to Sir John s. his father as 2nd Bart. 3 Aug., 1832, and is M.P. for the northern division of Essex.

Lineage.

This family has been of knightly degree ever since the Conquest, when

SIR WALTER TYRELL, a Norman Knight, came into England, and soon after became tenant of the manor of Langham, Co. Essex, which he held at the general survey, under Richard de Tonbrigg. Of this Sir Walter, Morant, in his History of Essex, observes, "whether he was the same person who shot William Rufus in New Forest, or whether he did at the instigation of Archbishop Anselm, through the persuasion of a fanatic monk, as it is asserted by Alan de Insulis, we are not able to determine." It is far, indeed, from being an ascertained point, that this family is descended from the Walter Tyrell who slew Rufus; and as far as it is from being certain that the deed was done designedly. Ordericus Vitalis, in his History of Normandy, relates, that Sir Walter Tyrell, on his death-bed, declared that he was not so much as in the field when William Rufus was killed. From Sir Walter Tyrell descended

THOMAS TYRELL, Esq., of Rumseys Tyrrell, Co. Essex, who m. Margaret, dau. of John Fillol, Esq., of Old Hall, and had issue two sons,

I. JOHN (Sir), of Heron, Sheriff of Essex and Hertfordshire in 1423, who served in the French wars of King HENRY V., and was appointed by that monarch Surveyor of the Carpenters for the new works at Calais, with the wages of twelve pence per day. Sir John was also Treasurer of the Household to King HENRY VI., and marrying Alice, dau. and co-heiress of William Coggleshall, of Little Sandford, Co. Essex, had a son,

JOHN TYRELL, Esq., who was created a Baronet in 1673, which Baronetcy became extinct on the demise, without issue, of SIR JOHN, the 5th Baronet.

Lineage.

This family descends from the lords of Vernon, in the duchy of Normandy. Their common ancestor,

WILLIAM DE VERNON, assumed that surname from the town and district of Vernon, of which he was proprietor, in 1032. This William had two sons,

RICHARD DE VERNON, } who both came into Eng-
and } land with William the Con-

WALTER DE VERNON, } queror. The elder,

RICHARD, Lord of Vernon, was one of the Barons created by Hugh Lupus, Earl of the County Palatine of Chester, by the title of Baron of Shipbroke. This Richard, who, according to Domesday Book, was a considerable landed proprietor, was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DE VERNON, whose great-grandson,

RICHARD DE VERNON, had a grant, in the 37th of HENRY III., of the castle and manor of Pecke, and dying before his father, left four sons, whereof

WARINE, who s. his grandfather as Baron of Shipbroke, m. Ada, dau. and co-heir of William Malbank, Baron of Wich-Malbank, now Nantwich, Co. Chester, with whom he acquired several manors in that shire, and by whom he had two sons, WARINE and Ralph. He was s. by the elder, WARINE, Baron of Shipbroke, who m. Margaret, dau. of Ralph de Andeville, and relict of Hugh de Altaribus, by whom he had a son, WARINE (who d. s. p.) and three daughters, his co-heirs, viz.

EDITH, m. to Sir William Stafford, Knt.

ROBESIA, m. to John Littlebury.

These ladies, after prolonged litigation with their uncle RALPH, were obliged to surrender to him a moiety of their patrimony. The son of this Ralph, Sir Ralph de Vernon, is said to have lived to the age of 150, and thence was generally called the OLD LIVER.

And,

SIR WILLIAM DE VERNON, Knt., of Harlaston, in the County of Stafford (the third son), was Chief Justice of Chester in the reign of HENRY III. He m. Alice, dau. and co-heiress of William de Avenall, of Haddon, Co. Derby, and was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM VERNON, Knt., Treasurer of Calais, and Constable of England for life. Sir William was the last person who so held the high and important office of Constable. Such a grant being considered too influential for a subject, the constableness has ever since been conferred pro hac vice. He m. Margaret, dau. of William Swynfen, and co-heiress of Sir Robert Pype, Knt., and dying in 1467, was s. by his eldest son, SIR HENRY VERNON, Lord of Haddon, &c. &c. Lineage.

The Wakes are mentioned by Brompton, in the immediate train of the Conqueror; but it is the opinion of antiquaries, that the individual of the name of Wake, recorded in the roll of Battle Abbey, was one of those who, being weary of Harold's rule, fled into Normandy, and invited Duke WILLIAM; hence the family is supposed to have been of importance prior to the Conquest. From

BALDWIN, LORD WAKE, founder of the Abbey of Brusa, who d. in 1156, descended, through a long line of eminent ancestors,

SIR THOMAS WAKE, a gallant knight who fought with the Black Prince, and distinguished himself particularly at the battle of Najara. By Alice, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Pateshull, Knt., of Bletso, Bedfordshire, he had a son and heir,

Lineage.

The surname of this family derived from a place in Co. Northampton, was anciently written Walgrave, and we find, so far back as the year 1205, John de Walgrave serving the office of Sheriff of London. The great-great-grandson of this eminent citizen,

SIR RICHARD WALGRAVE, Knt., of Smallbridge, Co. Lineage.

The family of Wallace, which the Baronetcy represents, is the parent stock whence the renowned Sir William Wallace descended, and it has been established in Scotland since the reign of King DAVID, for we find its founder, Eimerus Galleus, a subscribing witness to that Monarch's foundation-charter of the Abbey of Kelso.

RICHARD WALENSE (supposed to be the son of Eimerus), obtained the extensive estate of Riccarton, which was possessed by his descendants as military tenants of the Stewarts, until that family ascended the throne, when the Wallaces, no longer sub-feudal vassals, became tenants to the crown in capite. From this Richard (the common progenitor of all the numerous families of Wallace,) immediately descended

ADAM WALLACE, of Riccarton, living about the middle of the 12th century, who left two sons,

RICHARD, his successor.

Malcolm, Laird of Ellerslie, who m. Jean, dau. of Sir Ronald Crawford, of Crosbie, Sheriff of Ayr, and was father of the celebrated SIR WILLIAM WALLACE, of Ellerslie, the victorious opponent of the English monarch, EDWARD I., and the patriotic upholder of the freedom of Scotland. This illustrious hero, who so often braved the dangers of the battle field, and bade defiance to his own and his country's foes, fell at length, the victim of perfidy, beneath the axe of the foreigner, 23 Aug., 1305, having been betrayed into the hands of his enemies by one of his associates, Sir John Monteith. Sir William Wallace leaving no legitimate issue (he had a natural daughter, who m. Sir William Baillie, of Hoprig), his estate of Ellerslie returned to the elder branch of Riccarton, since of Craigie, and went off again in patrimony, to another younger branch of the family, about the beginning of the reign of King ROBERT III.; whose descendants continued a separate branch until 1678, when the estate again reverted to the original stock. Mrs. Scott, mother of the present Duchess of Portland, and of Viscountess Canning, was supposed to be the last representative, in the direct line, of this immortal hero. His collateral descendant is the present ROBERT WALLACE, Esq., of Kelly, in Ayrshire, M.P. for Greenock. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iii. p. 274.)

Adam Wallace was s. at his decease by his elder son,

SIR RICHARD WALLACE, of Riccarton, whose grandson,

Earl of Nithsdale, by whom he had five sons, and was s. by the eldest,

II. SIR THOMAS. This gentleman m. Eupham, dau. of William Gemmill, Esq., of Templeland, by whom he had two sons and four daughters. Sir Thomas, who filled the high judicial office of Lord Justice Clerk, was s. at his decease by his elder son,

III. SIR WILLIAM, who m. Miss Menzies, dau. of Menzies, of Pittfodds; but leaving an only daughter, at his decease, the Baronetcy devolved upon his brother,

V. SIR THOMAS, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Colonel Agnew, of Lochryan, by whom he had a son, a Captain in the Guards (who predeceased him), and an only daughter, his heiress,

Sir John, who is Dep.-Lieut. of the counties of Hereford and Radnor, was created a Bart. 30 Sept. 1831, in consideration of his being the eldest co-heir and representative of Gen. Sir Thomas Morgan, Bart., whose title (extinct since 1768) was conferred upon him, in 1660, as a reward for his great military services, and for his zeal in forwarding the Restoration.

Lineage.

This very ancient family dates its first establishment in England from the conquest, being descended from

WILLIAM MALET, Constable of York, a Norman baron of great distinction, to whose charge the remains of HAROLD were entrusted after the battle of Hastings, and who was himself slain in action with the Danes in 1069. His eldest son,

ROBERT MALET, Lord Great Chamberlain of England in the reign of HENRY I., and Baron of Eye, was grandfather of

WALTER MALET, Lord of Sibton, whose 2nd son Reginald, took the name of Peyton from that lordship, and was grandfather of Sir John de Peyton, Knt. (ancestor of that distinguished family,) and also of

SIR ROBERT DE UFFORD, Knt. who assumed that surname from his Lordship of Ufford, in Suffolk; he was appointed Lord Justice of Ireland in 1200, accompanied Edward I. in his expedition to the Holy Land in 1270, was again Justice of Ireland in 1276, and died in 1300, leaving issue, by his wife Mary, widow of William, Baron de Say; John de Ufford, Archbishop of Canterbury, and

SIR ROBERT DE UFFORD, Knt. who having greatly distinguished himself in the Scotch wars of Edward I., was summoned to parliament as Lord Ufford in 1310, (see Burke's Extinct Peerage.) This powerful baron married Cicely, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Robert de Valoines, Knt. Lord of Walsham, (by Mary, sister and heiress of William de Bount, Baron of Ixworth,) and by her had issue amongst other children, Robert de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, K.G. one of the most eminent commanders in the French wars of Edward III.; and

SIR EDMUND DE WALSHAM, Knt. Lord of Colton, in Norfolk; who, in compliance with a very prevalent custom at that period, adopted the name which his descendants have since borne, from his mother's Lordship of Walsham, in Suffolk. Sir Edmund was great grandfather of

THOMAS WALSHAM, Esq. of Colton, who is mentioned in "Blome's Britannia," as one of the principal gentry of Norfolk in the reign of HENRY V., and whose 2nd son,

RICHARD WALSHAM, Esq. being possessed of lands in Cheshire in right of his wife, Joan, dau. and heiress of his kinsman John Walsham, settled in that county, and was father of WARDLAW.

WARDLAW, SIR ALEXANDER, of Pitreavie, Co. Fife; b. in 1792; s. to the title, as 12th Baronet, at the decease of his father.

Lineage.

This Anglo-Saxon family was amongst those that fled into Scotland at the period of the Conquest, and being hospitably received by King MALCOLM CANMORE, settled in that kingdom. Of the Wardlaws, Cardinal Wardlaw compiled a genealogical account, from their first coming from Saxony into England, about the beginning of the sixth century, up to his own time, a copy of which was in the royal library of France until the Revolution; and, according to family tradition, the elder branch of the house, the Wardlaws, of Torrie, had also a copy, which was carried down to his own time, the close of the 15th century, by Sir Henry Wardlaw.

SIR HENRY WARDLAW, Knt. of Torrie, Co. Fife, m.

Sir Henry was s. by his elder son,

SIR ANDREW WARDLAW, Knt., of Torrie, (the genealogist of the family mentioned above), who m. the dau. and heiress of James de Valloniis, (which alliance brought the estate of Lochor into the Wardlaw family,) by whom he had two sons,

I. WILLIAM, his successor.

II. Henry, was Archbishop of St. Andrews, and one of the most celebrated men of his time. He and his brother, Sir William, were the faithful friends of ROBERT III., supporting the sickly monarch against the insidious arts of the Duke of Albany, when loyalty had almost forsaken the land. To Wardlaw the king committed the charge of the heir to the throne, and by him France was selected as a secure retreat for the Earl of Carrick. The captivity of the prince in England, by a breach of the law of nations, was the consequence of this measure, which the prelate could not have foreseen. On the return of the royal James to his kingdom, he found his venerable guardian still filling his archiepiscopal chair of Saint Andrews. Wardlaw was immediately sent for, and during his life he continued the chief stay of his royal master. Besides founding the University, this munificent prelate built a bridge over the mouth of the Eden, of six arches, long considered the first in Scotland, at his own expense. Archbishop Wardlaw was Legate from Pope Benedict III. to Scotland and Ireland in 1412, and protector of the children of Hotspur, after the battle of Shrewsbury.

Sir Andrew was s. by his elder son,

SIR WILLIAM WARDLAW, of Torrie, about the year 1431; and dying in 1432, was s. by his son, (by Margaret, dau. of Sir John Oliphant, lineal descendant of the Princess Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Bruce),

SIR HENRY WARDLAW, of Torrie. This gentleman was one of those who attended the daughter of the Scottish monarch on her way to Rochelle, upon her marriage with the Dauphin of France. He m. Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Lindsay, of Byres, ancestor of the Earls of Crawford, by Lady Anne Stuart, dau. of the Lord of Lorn, and was s. by his only son,

Family of De-La-Poer.

SIR ROGER LE POER, knt. who accompanied Strongbow, into Ireland, obtained for his services there considerable territorial grants. Of Sir Roger, Cambrensis writes, "It might be said without offence, there was not a man who did more valiant acts than Roger le Poer; who, although he were young and beardless, yet he showed himself a lusty, valiant, and courageous gentleman, and who grew into such good credit, that he had the government of the country about Leighlin, as also in Ossory, where he was traitorously killed; on whose slaughter a conspiracy was formed among the Irish to destroy the English, and many castles were destroyed." Sir Roger married a niece of Sir Amory St. Laurence (ancestor of the noble house of Howth), and left a son,

JOHN LE POER; from whom descended

NICHOLAS LE POER, who had summons to parliament as BARON LE POER, 23 Nov. 1375, and thrice afterwards, in 1378, 1381, and 1383, being the most ancient writs to be found in the Rolls' office of Ireland. This nobleman was s. by his son,

RICHARD, second baron, who was created Lord Le Poer, Baron of Curraghmore, by King HENRY VI. in 1452. His lordship m. a dau. of Richard Butler, second son of the Earl of Ormonde, and was s. by his son,

PETER, 3rd Baron Le-Poer, and 2nd Baron of Curraghmore, who m. the dau. of Lord Decies, and left

RICHARD, who was re-created, 13 Sept. 1535, Lord Le Poer, Baron of Curraghmore. This nobleman m. Catharine, dau. of Pierce, Earl of Ormonde, and dying in 1551, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN (More), Lord le Poer, b. in 1516. Of this nobleman, Sir Henry Sidney, in his account of the province of Munster to the lords of the council, thus writes:—"27 Feb. 1575. The day I departed from Waterford, I lodged that night at Corraghmore, the house that the Lord Power is baron of; where I was so used, and with such plenty and good order entertained (as adding to it the quiet of all the country adjoining, by the people called Power Country, for that surname has been since the beginning of Englishmen's planting inhabitants there), it may be well compared with the best ordered country in the English Pale. And the lord of the country, though he be of scope of ground a far less territory than his neighbour is, yet he lives in shew far more honorably and plentifully than he or any other, whatsoever he be, of his calling, that lives in this province." His lordship m. Ellen, dau. of James, 15th Earl of Desmond, and was s. by his only son,

RICHARD, Lord Le-Poer, who m. Catharine, dau. and heiress of John, Viscount Buttevant, and dying in 1607, was s. by his grandson,

JOHN, Lord Le Poer (son of John Oge, the late lord's eldest son, who was killed in his father's lifetime, by Edmund Fitzgerald, the White Knight, by Hellen, dau. of David, Viscount Buttevant). His lordship m. Ruth, dau. and heiress of Robert Pyphoe, Esq., of St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin, and was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD, Lord Le-Poer. This nobleman was advanced, 9 Oct. 1673, to the Viscounty of Decies and Earldom of Tyrone. His lordship m. in 1654, Dorothy, dau. of Arthur, Earl of Anglesey, and dying in 1690, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

JOHN, 2nd earl; at whose decease, unmarried, in 1693, the honors devolved upon his brother,

JAMES, 3rd earl, who m. Anne, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Andrew Rickards, Esq., of Dangan Spidoge, Co. Kilkenny, by whom he left at his decease, 19 Aug. 1701, an only dau. and heiress, LADY CATHARINE PORR, who m. Sir Marcus Beresford (as stated in the family of Beresford).

Upon the decease of his lordship, the Earldom of Tyrone, and all his other honors, except the original barony by writ, expired, but that devolved upon his dau. as BARONESS LE PORR.

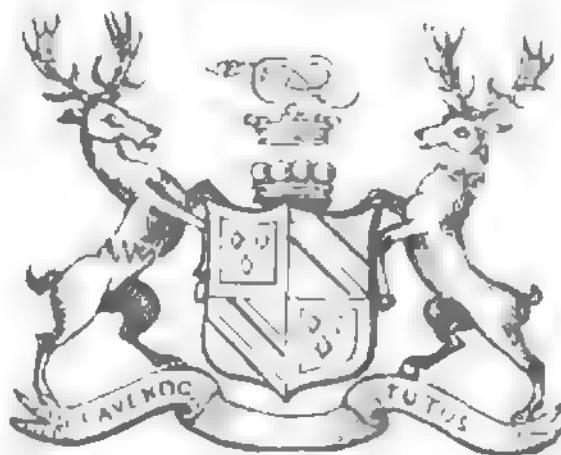

WATERFORD AND WEXFORD.

WATERFORD AND WEXFORD, EARL OF, (John Talbot,) Baron of Dungarvon, and hereditary high-seneschal of Ireland (Earl of Shrewsbury, in England; see that dignity).

On 17 July, 1446, King HENRY VI. created John Talbot 1st Earl of Shrewsbury, whom his majesty styles in the patent, "John, Earl of Shrewsbury and of Wexford, Lord Furnivall and Le Straunge," Earl of Waterford, and Baron of Dungarvan, to hold the same with the extensive estates and royalties therein mentioned, by the service of being seneschal of the King in Ireland, in remainder to the heirs male of his body. These honors, with the estates then granted, as well as the whole county of Wexford, already in Lord Shrewsbury's possession by inheritance, continued in the enjoyment of the successive earls until 1537, when the "Act of Absentees" was passed, by which the estates of the Talbot family, and others, were seized on by the crown. On this account, in 1612, when Gilbert, Lord Shrewsbury, sought his writ, as a peer of Ireland, the English judges were consulted, who gave an opinion, that the act which divested the estates had the same effect as to honors, which, according to their construction, could not exist without territorial possessions. But there appear, in the paper offices, numerous acts of the king and his council, of the lord-lieutenant and privy-council of Ireland, petitions of the nobility of England, and the resident peers of Ireland, as also several orders on the journals of the lords' house, proving that however well founded this opinion might be as to peerage in England, it was wholly opposed to, and inconsistent with, the long established rights of the peerage, prerogative to the crown, and law of parliament, as then and previously known in Ireland. Therefore numerous creations of persons (who had no estates in Ireland,) by JAMES I. and his successor, and the different subsequent resolutions of the house of lords show that this opinion was not received as law, and consequently, in the years 1661, 1692, and 1697, Francis and Charles, Earls of Waterford, are recognized on the journals of the house, as Earls of Waterford and peers of Ireland. On the death of the latter the titles devolved upon a branch of the family labouring under religious disabilities, and these disabilities continued from that year, 1717, until 1829, when they were removed by parliament, and the present earl, in 1831, petitioned the house of lords for leave to vote for representative peers of Ireland, as eldest heir male of John, 1st Earl of Shrewsbury, under the patent of HENRY VI., creating the earldom of Waterford, barony of Dungarvan, and seneschalship of Ireland, as above mentioned. This petition was referred to a committee of privileges, wherein, after hearing counsel on several occasions, and after much legal argument, it was at length decided that his lordship's claim and right to vote should be, and was thereby allowed.

THE MARQUESS'S MATERNAL FAMILY.

The very eminent family of Wesley, or Wellesley, or, as it was formerly written, de Welesley, alias Welseley, was founded in Ireland, by a gentleman of that name, of an ancient Anglo-Saxon family, who held the honorable station of standard bearer to King HENRY II., and having accompanied that monarch into Ireland, in 1172, obtained, for his military services, large grants of land in the counties of Meath and Kildare, a considerable portion of which his descendant still enjoys. From this successful soldier descended

WILLIAM DE WELLESLEY, who appears to have been summoned to parliament as a Baron of the realm, by the title of Baron of Noragh, in 1330, and had a grant by patent, from EDWARD II. of the custody of the Castle of Kildare, for life; but that monarch conferring, subsequently, the office upon John Fitz-Thomas, Earl of Kildare, together with the county of Kildare, to hold to his heirs male for ever, William de Wellesley was removed, and lost the fee of £20 a year annexed thereunto; in recompense whereof, however, King EDWARD III. granted him a commission, dated at Molyngar, March, 1342, to have the custody of the manor of Demor, then in the crown, from 1 Aug., 1341, with the annual fee of twenty marks. His Lordship was father of

SIR RICHARD DE WELLESLEY, who served the office of Sheriff of Kildare in the year 1418. This gentleman does not appear to have inherited the Barony from his father, and for what reason that dignity ceased with the first possessor, we have not been able to ascertain. Sir Richard m. Johan, eldest dau., and eventually heiress of Sir Nicholas de Castlemartin, by which alliance he obtained the Lordships of Dangan, Mornington, Clonebreny, and several other manors, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM WELLESLEY, Esq., of Dangan Castle, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of James Cusack, Esq., of Portraine, Co. Dublin, and was s. by his eldest son, WELLINGTON.

WELLINGTON, DUKE OF, (Arthur Wellesley.) Marquess of Douro, Marquess of Wellington, Earl of Wellington, of Wellington, Co. Somerset; Viscount Wellington, of Wellington and of Talavera, and Baron Douro, of Wellesley, Co. Somerset; b. at Dangan Castle, Co. Meath, 1 May, 1769; m. 10 April, 1806, Catherine, 3rd dau. of Edward Michael, second Lord Longford, by whom (who d. 25 April, 1831) he has issue, ARTHUR, Marquess of Douro, b. 2 Feb. 1807, Lieutenant-Colonel in the army.

Charles, b. 16 Jan. 1808, Major in the Army.

To attempt even the most abridged epitome of the glorious achievements of this pre-eminent military commander, would far, very far indeed, exceed our limits, and would, in the present day at least, be a work of supererogation. We shall, therefore, merely confine ourselves to stating, that his grace, who is the 3rd son of Garrett, 1st Earl of Mornington, and brother of the present Marquess Wellesley, commenced his military career upon active service in 1794, when he commanded a brigade, under his Royal Highness the Duke of York, in the unsuccessful expedition to Holland; that he was subsequently engaged in India, where he exhibited traits of that transcendent military genius, which, at no distant period, was destined to elevate him to the enviable rank of one of the first and greatest captains of the age; that, in 1808, he entered upon the field, where the full harvest of his renown was to be reaped; and that his good sword has, since that period, opened to him the very highest honors of the state—honors conferred with the most enthusiastic approbation of the people, and accompanied by the most popular and liberal grants from the national purse. His grace was created Baron Douro, of Wellesley, Co. Somerset, and Viscount Wellington of Talavera, and of Wellington, in the same county, 4 Sept., 1809; Earl of Wellington, 28 Feb., 1812; Marquess of Wellington, 18 Aug., 1812; and Marquess of Douro and DUKE OF WELLINGTON, 3 May, 1814. His grace is also Duke of Ciudad Rodrigo, and a grandee of the first class in Spain; Duke of Vittoria, Marquess of Torres Vedras, and Count Vimiera, in Portugal; and most illustrious of all, PRINCE OF WATERLOO, a principality conferred by the King of the Netherlands upon his grace, in consideration of his last, greatest, and most decisive victory over the French army, commanded by the Emperor Napoleon in person, 18 July, 1815.

The Duke of Wellington is a Field-Marshal in the army, Colonel of the royal regiment of horseguards, and Colonel-in-chief of the rifle brigade. His grace is a Knight of the most noble order of the Garter, a Knight-Grand-Cross of the Bath, and of all the most distinguished foreign orders.

The Duke of Wellington is Lord-Warden of the Cinque Ports, Constable of the Tower, Commissioner of the Royal Military College, and Military Asylum, Lord-Lieutenant of the county of Hants, &c. &c.

Lineage.

This ancient family traces its origin to John, baronial Lord of Weems, whence the surname was probably derived, who was younger son of the celebrated Macduff, Thane of Fife, the vanquisher of the tyrant Macbeth.

SIR MICHAEL DE WEMYSS was sent, according to Fordun, in 1290, with Sir Michael Scot, to Norway, by the lords of the regency in Scotland, to conduct the young Queen MARGARET to her dominions; but her Majesty unfortunately died upon the journey, at the Orkneys. Sir Michael swore fealty to EDWARD I., in 1296, and he witnessed the act of settlement of the crown of Scotland, by King ROBERT I., at Ayr, in 1315. From Sir Michael lineally descended *

W E N WENMAN.

WENMAN, BARONESS (Sophia-Elizabeth Wykeham), of Thame Park, Co. Oxford, so created in 1834.

Lineage.

The family of Wykeham has been settled at Swalcliffe from a very remote period; we find mention of a Sir Ralph Wykeham, living in the time of King JOHN, and of a Sir Robert Wykeham, contemporary with HENRY III.; but of these knights little more is recorded. The great luminary of the family was the celebrated Bishop of Winchester—WILLIAM OF WYKHAM—the founder of Winchester College, and New College, Oxford. It is still, however, a contested point whether this eminent churchman was or was not a descendant of the Wykehams of Swalcliffe. They have, from time immemorial, claimed him as one of their race; and in later times an intermarriage has taken place between Richard Wykeham, of Swalcliffe, and the sister of Richard Piennes, last Viscount Saye and Sele, who was the lineal descendant and ultimate heiress of William of Wykeham.

ROBERT WYKHAM, Lord of Swalcliffe at the commencement of the 14th century, was direct ancestor* of

RICHARD WYKHAM, Esq., of Swalcliffe, who m. Vere-Alicia, dau. of the Rev. Richard Piennes, and sister and co-heir of Richard, last Viscount Saye and Sele, by whom (who d. in 1769), he had issue, WENTWORTH.

WENTWORTH, SIR CHARLES-MARY, Bart., of Parlut, Co. Lincoln, D.C.L.; b. in 1775; s. to the title, as 2nd baronet, at the decease of his father, 1820.

Lineage.

"The ancient and honorable family of Wentworth," says Thoresby, in his History of Leeds, "which for six hundred years hath borne the honor of knighthood, was seated four hundred years before that in the county of York; the ancient and chief seat of the principal branch of this noble family hath been, for many ages, at Wentworth Woodhouse, in the wapentake of Strathford, whence they spread into other parts, at Ganthorpe Hall, and Potter Newton, in the parish of Leedes." Thoresby gives two pedigrees of the Wentworth family. In the second, wherein he deduces the descent to Sir Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, who was beheaded 12 May, 1641, he commences with Reginald Wyntword de Wyntworth, whose descendant in the seventh generation, Robert de Wentworth, living in the reign of Henry III., m. Emma, daughter and heiress of the ancient family of Woodhouse.

The Wentworths of Yorkshire intermarried with the Neville and Clifford families, previous to the sixteenth century, and with many other families of the first distinction; and we find on record, William de Wentworth, abbot of the priory of Monk Bretton, in Yorkshire, in 1323; and Hugh, son of Henry de Wentworthe, who gave eleven acres of his demesne lands in Wentworth to the said priory in 1302. Of this very illustrious family was

WILLIAM WENTWORTH, Esq., who emigrated from Co. York to Boston, in America, in the year 1628, and removed, subsequently, to New Hampshire. This gentleman was grandfather of

JOHN WENTWORTH, Esq., Lieut.-Governor of New Hampshire, who m. Sarah, daughter of Mark Hunkyn, Esq., by whom he had eighteen children, and was s. by his eldest son,

WES WESTMEATH.

WESTMEATH, MARQUESS OF, (George-Thomas-John Nugent,) and Earl of Westmeath, in the peerage of Ireland; one of the Representative Lords, b. 17 July, 1783; m. 29 May, 1812, Emily-Anne-Bennet-Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of James, 1st Marquess of Salisbury, and has an only surviving daughter, ROSA-EMILY MARY-ANNE.

His Lordship inherited the Earldom, as 8th Earl, at the decease of his father, 30 Dec., 1814, and obtained the Marquisate, by patent of creation, 12 Jan., 1822. The Marquess is Lord-Lieutenant of the Co. Westmeath, and Colonel of its militia.

Lineage.

This family has been settled in Ireland since the subjugation of that country by HENRY II. Its founder,

SIR GILBERT DE NUGENT, one of the knights who accompanied Hugh de Lacie in the expedition to Ireland, having m. Rosa, the sister of the said Hugh, obtained thereby the lordship of Delvin; but, his sons predeceasing him, he was s. at his decease by his brother,

RICHARD NUGENT, whose only dau. and heiress carried the barony of Delvin into the family of Johns, or Jones, into which she married, and it so remained until brought back by the intermarriage of

SIR WILLIAM NUGENT, of Balrath, descended from Christopher Nugent, Esq., the third brother of Sir Gilbert, with Catherine, dau. and heiress of John Fitz Jones, Baron of Delvin. This Sir William was elected, 10 November, 1401, Sheriff of Meath, by the county; in which office he was confirmed by the King, for one year, and again during pleasure, by patent, 21 November, 1402. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 2nd Baron of Delvin, who, in consequence of his services and expenses in the King's wars, to the impoverishment of his fortune, had an order, dated at Trim, 20 February, 1426, to receive twenty marks out of the exchequer. This Richard m. Catherine, dau. of Thomas Drake, sister and heiress of Nicholas Drake, of Drakerath, Co. Meath, and was s. by his eldest son, JAMES, 3rd Baron of Delvin, who m. Elizabeth, elder dau. and co-heiress of Sir Robert Hollywood, of Artane, Co. Dublin, and granddaughter, maternally, of Christopher, 3rd Lord of Killeen, and had four sons, viz.

CHRISTOPHER, his heir.

Robert, of Drumcree, Co. Westmeath.

Lavallin, of Dysert, Co. Westmeath.

Andrew, of Donore, Co. Westmeath, ancestor (in the female line) of the present SIR PEACY NUGENT, Bart., of Donore.

His Lordship was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER, 4th Baron of Delvin, who m. the dau.

of Sir Robert Preston, of Gormanston, and was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD NUGENT, Knt., 5th Baron of Delvin, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of the Earl of Kildare, and was s. by his son,

CHRISTOPHER, 6th Baron, who was father of RICHARD, 7th Baron, who had summonses to parliament in the years 1436, 1490, and 1493, and was constituted by the Lords Justices and Council, in 1496, commander and leader in chief of all the forces destined for the defence of the counties of Dublin, Meath, Kildare, and Louth. His Lordship was, subsequently, summoned to parliament in 1498, but failing to appear, he was fined forty shillings for non-attendance. In 1504, Lord Delvin accompanied the Earl of Kildare to the famous battle of Knocktough, in Connaught, and was the first to throw a spear into the ranks of the Irish, by which he chanced to kill one of the Burkes. In 1527, he was nominated Lord-Deputy of Ireland, and conducted the public affairs with integrity and honor, until treacherously taken prisoner by O'Connor. That native chieftain having made inroads upon the confines of the Pale, in 1528, Lord Delvin ordered the detention of a yearly rent, due to him out of certain carucates of lands in the county of Meath; which procedure led to a conference at the castle of Rathin, belonging to Sir William D'Arcie, when, by stratagem, the Lord-Deputy was seized and detained prisoner, many of his attendants being slain, wounded, and taken. Walter Wellesley, of Dangan Castle, and Sir Walter Delahide, of Moyclare, were, subsequently, deputed to expostulate with O'Connor, and to procure his Lordship's liberation, but ineffectually; when another Lord Deputy was appointed to administer the government, and Lord Delvin remained in confinement, until O'Connor's pension was restored. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Lord Houth, and had two sons,

Sir Christopher Nugent.

Sir Thomas Nugent, of Carlanstown, founder of the family, now represented by the Duke of Buckingham, as Earl Nugent.

His Lordship d. 28 February, 1537, and was s. by his son,

CHRISTOPHER, 8th Baron of Delvin. This nobleman obtained a commission from the crown, in 1567, authorizing him to extirpate the O'Mores, sons of Ferrase Mac Rosse, and their followers; but, notwithstanding the zeal his Lordship evinced in that service, he was himself sent prisoner to London, in 1580, and committed to the Tower, on suspicion of holding correspondence with the rebels of Leinster; but his innocence being soon afterwards fully established, he was enlarged, and, returning to Ireland, was present in Sir John Perrott's parliament, in 1585. In 1588, he obtained a grant of the priory of Four, Co. Westmeath; and being, in 1593, appointed, by commission, leader of the forces raised in the county of Westmeath, at the general hosting, on the hill of Tarah, he brought, with the Nugents, his kinmen, twenty horsemen thither; and so acceptable were his services to QUEEN ELIZABETH, that, by privy seal, A. D. 7 May, 1597, she ordered him a grant in fee farm, of so many manors and forfeited lands, in the counties of Cavan and Longford, at his election, as should amount to the crown-rent £100 a year English. But this grant not having been executed during his life, on account of the troubles in Ireland, KING JAMES, 10 August, 1603, ordered £60 in lands, per annum, to be granted to his widow and son. His Lordship m. Mary, dau. of Gerald, 11th Earl of Kildare, and dying in 1602, was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 9th Baron of Delvin by tenure, and 4th by writ. This nobleman was arrested in 1607, and committed, by the Lord-Deputy Chichester, to the castle of Dublin, upon a charge of high treason, being concerned in a conspiracy with the Earls of Tyrone and Tyrconnel, and others, to surprise the castle of Dublin, cut off the Lord-Deputy and Council, dissolve the state, and set up a government of their own. His Lordship effected, however, his escape, by the assistance of his servant, and was, subsequently, proclaimed a traitor. Surrendering in the following year, he obtained a pardon under the great seal, (A.D. 1606,) and so entirely re-established himself, in a few years, in royal favor, that he was created EARL OF WESTMEATH 4 September, 1621. He m. Jane, dau. of Christopher, 9th Lord Killeen, and dying in 1641, was s. by his grandson,

RICHARD, 2nd Earl (only son of Christopher, Lord Delvin, who predeceased his father, by Anne, eldest dau. of Randall McDonnell, Earl of Antrim). This nobleman m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Nugent, of Moyrath, Bart., and had, with junior issue,

CHRISTOPHER, Lord Delvin, who m. Mary, eldest dau. of Richard Butler, Esq., of Kilkash, and niece of James, 1st Duke of Ormonde, and dying in the lifetime of his father, left, with three daughters, three sons, RICHARD, who s. as 3rd Earl.

Thomas.

John.

Thomas, of Pallace, Co. Galway, Lord-Chief-Justice of the Court of King's-Bench, was created Baron Nugent, of Riverston, Co. Westmeath, in 1669, but the title being conferred after the King (JAMES II.) had abdicated the English crown, is not acknowledged in his descendant and representative, the present proprietor of the estate of Pallace.

The Earl d. in 1684, and was s. by his grandson,

RICHARD, 3rd Earl. This nobleman, adopting a religious life, became a friar of the order of Capuchins, and dying in April, 1714, at Wassey, in a convent of his order, the honors devolved upon his brother,

THOMAS, 4th Earl, who had a Colonel's command in the army of King JAMES II., and was outlawed in consequence, in 1691; but being one of the hostages exchanged for the observance of the articles of Limerick, the outlawry was reversed, and he was restored to his estates and honors. His Lordship m. Margaret, only dau. of John, Lord Bellew, by whom he had (with two sons, Christopher, Lord Delvin, who d. unm., at Bath, 12 April, 1752, and John, who d. unm. in 1725,) two daughters, in whose descendants the Barony of Delvin is presumed to have fallen into abeyance, namely,

Sir Richard le Scrope complained of Sir Robert le Grosvenor's using a particular coat, viz., azure, a bend or, which belonged to him; and the decision of the court confirmed Sir Richard's right, but permitted Sir Robert le Grosvenor to use instead "Az. a GARB OR," which has ever since continued the arms of the family.

Lord Westmoreland was author of a scarce volume of poems, printed only for private circulation, in 1648, entitled, "Otia Sacra," of which the following specimen is extracted from Parke's Royal and Noble Authors,

"Virtus vera nobilitas."

"What doth he get, who e'er prefers
The 'sentcheons of his ancestors?
This chimney piece of gold or brass?
That coat of arms blazoned in glass?
When these with time and age have end,
Thy prowess must thyself commend.
The smooty shadows of some one
Or other's trophies carved in stone,
Defac'd, are things to whet, not try
Thine own heroicism by,
For cast how much thy merit's score
Falls short of those went there before;
By so much art thou in arrear,
And stain'st gentility, I fear.
True nobleness doth those alone engage,
Who can add virtue to their parentage."

WIL WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY.

WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY, BARON, (Peter-Robert Drummond-Burrell,) and Baron Gwydyr, of Gwydyr, Co. Carnarvon, and a Privy Councillor; b. in March, 1782; m. 20 April, 1807, Clementina-Sarah, dau. and sole heiress of James Drummond, 1st Lord Perth, (a dignity now extinct) by whom he has issue, ALBERIC, b. 25 Dec., 1821.

Clementina-Elizabeth, m. 6 Oct., 1827, to Gilbert-John Heathcote, Esq., M.P., eldest son of Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Bart.

Elizabeth-Susan.

Charlotte-Augusta-Arabella.

In consequence of his alliance with the heiress of Lord Perth, his Lordship assumed by sign manual, 5th of November succeeding his marriage, the additional surname and arms of DRUMMOND. He inherited the Barony of Gwydyr, as 2nd Baron, at the decease of his father, 29 June, 1820, and the ancient Barony of WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY, as 19th Baron, upon the demise of his mother, 29 Dec., 1828, as well as the joint-hereditary great-chamberlainship of England.

Lineage.

This is one of the very ancient baronies created by writ of summons, which pass, being heritable by heirs male or female, at different periods, into different families, and sometimes remain for centuries dormant: for, in the instance of there being no male heir, but several female, the barony does not devolve upon the eldest dau., but upon all conjointly, and cannot, consequently, be inherited until there be a single heir to the whole, without the especial interference of the crown.

The Lordship of Eresby, which constituted the head of this barony, was settled, by WILLIAM the Conqueror, with other manors, upon

WALTER DE BEC, one of his companions in arms, who m. Agnes, dau. and heiress of Hugh, son of Pinco, Lord of Tatshall, in the Co. Lincoln, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY DE BEC, of Eresby, in the Co. Lincoln, whose son and heir,

WALTER BEKE, m. Eva, niece and heiress of Walter de Grey, Archbishop of York, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY BEKE, who m. Hawise, sister of Thomas de Muleton, and was s. by his son,

WALTER BEKE, who left three sons,

JOHN, of whom presently.

Anthony, Bishop of Durham, and patriarch of Jerusalem.

Of this prelate, Godwin, in his catalogue of bishops, gives the following account: "Before the end of that yeere, 1293, it seemeth Anthony Beake was invested in the bishopricke of Durham, in which he so flourished, as neuer I think any of his predecessors came neer him. He was wonderfull rich, not onely in ready money, but in lands also and temporal revenues; for he might dispend yeerely (besides that which belonged to his myter) 5000 markes. Much of that he had of the Lord Vessy, who thinking so to conueigh it vnto his base son, William, (for that he had no other issue,) passed it ouer to this Bishop in trust; which trust, men say, he neuer answered. A man now of this extraordinary welth must not content himselfe with ordinary titles; therefore he procured the pope to make him patriarche of Hierusalem, and obtained of the king the principality of the Isle of Man." (For a more detailed narrative of this celebrated prelate and the family of Bec, see Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

Thomas, Lord Bishop of St. David's.

The eldest son and heir,

JOHN BEKE, had license of King Edward I. in the 4th year of that monarch's reign, to make a castle of his manor-house at Eresby, and was summoned to parliament, amongst the Barons of the realm, in the 23rd and 24th of the same reign; dying in seven years afterwards, his lordship left issue, by his wife, Sarah, dau. of Thomas, Lord Furnival,

WALTER, his son and heir, Lord of Eresby, who survived his father but a few years, and d. issueless, when the BARONY OF BEC, of ERESBY, fell into ABBYANCE, as it still continues.

Alice.

Margaret, m. to Richard de Harcourt.

Mary, d. unmarried.

ALICE BEKE, the eldest dau., and one of the co-heiresses of her brother, married

SIR WILLIAM DE WILLOUGHBY, Knt., great-grandson of Ralph de Willoughby, Lord of the manor of Willoughby, in the Co. Lincoln; which Sir William de Willoughby, in the 54th of HENRY III., was signed with the cross, together with many other persons of the first rank, who accompanied that monarch's son, PRINCE EDWARD, into the Holy Land. He d. in 1306, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT WILLOUGHBY, who, upon the decease of Anthony Beke, Bishop of Durham, succeeded, as next heir to that prelate. This Robert Willoughby being actively engaged in the French and Scottish wars of KING EDWARD I., was summoned to parliament among the Barons of the realm, in the 7th of EDWARD II., (20th July, 1313,) as LORD WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY; and dying in three years afterwards, was s. by his son, (by Margaret, dau. of Edmund, Lord Deincourt,)

JOHN WILLOUGHBY, then a minor, who was committed to the wardship of William, Lord Zouch, of Harringworth, for which that nobleman paid a thousand marks to the king. In the 20th of EDWARD II., this John Willoughby received the honor of Knighthood, by bathing, &c., having all the necessary appendages out of the king's wardrobe; and in the 1st of EDWARD III., making proof of his age, had livery of his lands, and was summoned to parliament from 27 Jan., 1332, to 10 March, 1340. His lordship subsequently distinguished himself in the Scottish wars, and was one of the principal Commanders at the battle of Cressi. He m. Joan, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Rosceline, Knt., and was s. by his eldest son,

King of Castile. Lord Willoughby m. 1st, Alice, dau. of Sir William Skipwith, by whom he had

His lordship espoused, 2ndly, Margery, dau. of William, Lord Zouch, of Harringworth, but had no issue; and, 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William, Lord Latimer, and widow of John Nevil, Lord Raby, but it does not appear that he had any other issue. He d. 13th RICHARD II., and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 5th Baron. This nobleman was one of the Peers in the parliament of the 22nd of RICHARD II., when that monarch made a formal resignation of his royal dignity. His lordship m. 1st, Lucy, dau. of Roger, Lord Strange, of Knokin, by whom he had (with four daughters)

Thomas, ancestor of Lord Middleton.

Lord Willoughby m. 2ndly, Joan, dau. of Thomas Holland, Earl of Kent, (by Joan, surnamed the Fair Maid Kent, only dau. of Edmund, of Woodstock, Earl of Kent, son of King Edward II.,) and widow of Edmund, of Langley, Duke of York, son of King EDWARD III. (Her ladyship, after Lord Willoughby's decease, m. a 3rd husband, Henry, Lord Scrope; and a 4th, Henry Bromfielde, Lord Vesey). Lord Willoughby de Eresby d. in the 11th of Henry IV., and was s. by his elder son, ROBERT, 6th Baron. This nobleman took a distinguished part in the French wars of HENRY V., and participated in the triumph of AGINCOURT. He was subsequently at the storming of the castle of Caen, and at the protracted siege of Roan. In the reign of HENRY VI. he shared the laurels of Vernoil; and, with Sir John Falstolf, soon afterward gallantly defeated a projected surprise of Charles de Villiers. For all these eminent services, his lordship was created Lord Willoughby, of Monblay and Beaumesgull, and Earl of Vendome and Beaumont, and installed a Knight of the most noble order of the Garter. His Lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, youngest dau. of John Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had an only dau., JOAN. He espoused 2ndly, Maud, dau. of Sir Richard Stanhope, Knight, and cousin and co-heiress of Ralph, Lord Cromwell, of Tatshall, but had no other issue. His lordship dying in the 30th of HENRY VI., the honors acquired by himself expired, while the barony devolved upon his only dau. and heiress,

JOAN WILLOUGHBY, who m.

SIR RICHARD WELLES, Knight, who bore in her right the title of Lord Willoughby de Eresby, and was summoned to parliament, as 7th Baron, in 1455. His lordship was son of Leo, 6th Baron Welles, who fell in one of the conflicts between the Houses of York and Lancaster, and was attainted in 1461. Lord Willoughby obtained a full restoration, however, in blood and honors in 1468; but fell a victim, afterwards, himself to the vibrations of fortune between the red and white roses, and was beheaded in 1469, when he was s. by his only son,

ROBERT, 8th Lord Welles, and 8th Lord Willoughby, who coming into immediate conflict with the Yorkists, under King EDWARD IV. at Stamford, and suffering a signal defeat, was taken prisoner and beheaded (refer to BURKE's Extinct Peerage). The baronies then devolved upon the last Lord's only sister and heiress, JOANE WELLES, who m.

RICHARD HASTINGS, and he was summoned to parliament, as Baron Welles; but dying without issue in 1503, and his lady in three years afterwards, the ancient barony of Willoughby reverted to her ladyship's kinsman (refer to Sir Thomas Willoughby, younger son of WILLIAM, 5th Baron,)

WILLIAM WILLOUGHBY, as 9th Baron. This nobleman d. in 1525, and was s. by his only dau., (by his second wife, the Lady Mary Salines,)

KATHERINE, Baroness Willoughby de Eresby. Her ladyship m. twice; 1st, Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, brother in law of King HENRY VIII., by whom she had two sons, Henry and Charles, who both d. in minority. She espoused, 2ndly, Richard Bertie, Esq., by whom she had a son and heir, Peregrine. Her Grace, the Duchess of Suffolk, d. in 1580, when her son,

PEREGRINE BERTIE, claimed the ancient barony, and was summoned to parliament, as 10th Lord Willoughby de Eresby, 16 January, 1581. His lordship m. Lady Mary Vere, dau. of John, Earl of Oxford, and sister and heiress of Edward, 17th Earl of Oxford, Lord-High-Chamberlain of England, by whom he had five sons and a daughter, Catherine, who m. Sir Lewis Watson, of Rockingham Castle, Co. Northampton, subsequently created Lord Rockingham. Lord Willoughby d. in 1601, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT, 11th Baron, who claimed the Earldom of Oxford, and the Great-Chamberlainship of England, in right of his mother, but succeeded in establishing his pretensions to the Chamberlainship only; he was, however, created Earl of Lindsay, 22 November, 1626. In 1630, his Lordship was installed a Knight of the Garter; and, at the breaking out of the civil war, was nominated Commander-in-Chief of the King's forces. Of this nobleman, Lord Clarendon says, "He was a man of great honor, and spent the youth and vigour of his age in military actions and commands; and albeit he indulged to himself great liberties of life, yet he still preserved a very good reputation with all men, and a very great interest in his country, as appears by the supplies he and his son brought to the King's army; the companies of his own regiment of foot being commanded by the principal knights and gentlemen of Lincolnshire, who engaged themselves in the service, principally out of their personal affection for him." The Barony of Willoughby de Eresby merged in this Earldom of Lindsay, and the Dukedom of Ancaster, to which honor the 4th Earl was elevated, until the demise of Robert, 4th Duke, without issue, in 1779 (see BURKE's Extinct Peerage), when the Dukedom of Ancaster, and the Marquisate and Earldom of Lindsay, reverted to his Grace's uncle, the Hon. Brownlow Bertie, with whom those honors expired in 1809; and the ancient Barony of Willoughby de Eresby fell into abeyance between his Grace's sisters and heiresses,

Lineage.

The name of Wylmot, or Wilmot, is very ancient in England. Speed mentions Wilmot, a nobleman of Sussex, in the time of King ETHELRED. The family before us (as we find by deeds in their possession, some of which were made before the custom of dating those instruments, and others bearing date 1582) was settled, antecedently to the Conquest, in Nottinghamshire; from whence it removed into the Co. Derby, in 1539, where, according to Sir William Dugdale, it flourished in great repute, and produced many eminent persons.

JOHN WILMOT, Esq., of Spondon, purchasing the estate of Chaddesden, in Derbyshire, made it the place of his residence, where his descendants have since continued. From this John lineally sprang

ROBERT WYLMOT, Esq., of Chaddesden, who purchased considerable estates at Osmaston, Litchurch, and other places in Derbyshire. This gentleman m. Dorothea, dau. of Lawrence Shrigley, of Shrigley, Co. Chester, and had issue,

Lineage.

The family represented by this peerage, and the house of Cholmondeley, derive from a common progenitor, namely,

ROBERT FITZHUGH, of Malpas, in Cheshire, one of the Barons of Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester temp. WILLIAM the Conqueror, whose only dau. and heiress married

WILLIAM LE BELWARD, who thus acquired the Barony of Malpas, and was s. by his son,

DAVID DE EGERTON, who was heir to his uncle, William, Baron of Malpas, but was ousted of his inheritance by his bastard cousin, David. It is, however, stated, by Camden, that he eventually recovered a moiety of the Barony. From this David lineally descended

SIR JOHN EGERTON, of Egerton, Knt., who fell, with the flower of the Cheshire gentry, in the memorable battle fought 2 Sept., 1459, at Bloreheath, in Staffordshire, between the Lord Audley, on the part of HENRY VI., and Richard Neville, Earl of Salisbury, the general of Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York. table conflict, Drayton, in his "Polyolbion," alluding to the knights of Cheshire, thus speaks:—

"There Dutton Dutton kills; a Done doth kill a Done;
A Booth a Booth; and Leigh by Leigh is overthrown;
A Venables against a Venables doth stand;
And Tronthbeck fighteth with a Tronthbeck, hand to hand;
There a Molineux doth make a Molineux to die;
And Egerton the strength of Egerton doth try.
Oh! Cheshire! wert thou mad of thine own native gore;
So much until this day thou never shed'st before!
Above two thousand men upon the earth were thrown,
Of whom the greater part were naturally thine own."

Sir John Egerton m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Pitton, of Cheshire, and was s. by his eldest son, Cecilia.

His lordship, the premier Marquess of England, is groom of the stole to the King.

Lineage.

This family is said by Collins to derive its surname from the Lordship of PAULET, in Somersetshire, whereof its progenitor, Hercules, Lord of Tournon, in Picardy, became proprietor, upon settling in England, in the reign of HENRY I. But by Collinson's History of that county, it appears that Walter de Dowai owned this lordship in the time of the CONQUEROR; and that from him it descended to the Paganel, Fitzhardings, Gaunts, and Gournays. It is certain, however, that the Paulets enjoyed from a very early period a manor in this parish, and hence doubtless took their surname.

SIR JOHN PAULET, Knt. m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir John Creedy, of Creedy; and dying in 1378, left two sons, Sir Thomas, the elder, progenitor of the Karls Paulett, and

WILLIAM PAULET, (the younger son), of Melcomb Paulet, in Somersetshire, serjeant-at-law, from whom sprang the extinct ducal house of Bolton, and

SIR WILLIAM PAULET, great-grandson of John Paulet, Esq., by Constance de Poynings, one of the co-heiresses of her brother, Sir Thomas de Poynings, Lord St. John, of Basing, (at the decease of which nobleman, the Barony of St. John, of Basing, and Poynings, fell into abeyance, see Burke's Extinct Peerrage). This Sir William, enjoying the confidence of King HENRY VIII., was elevated, by that monarch, to the peerage, 9 March, 1538-9, as Baron St. John, of Basing, and, at his majesty's decease, was appointed one of the executors to his will. Lord St. John continuing a leading political character, was created in the ensuing reign, 12 Jan., 1549-50, Earl of Wiltshire; and, 12 Oct., 1551, Marquess of Winchester. He was installed a Knight of the Garter, and held the important office of Lord-Treasurer of England during the reigns of Edward VI., and Queens Mary and Elizabeth. The Marquess being asked how he had contrived to preserve the treasurership through so long a series of changeable years, replied, by being a willow, not an oak. This nobleman erected the beautiful and magnificent seat called Basing, in the Co. Southampton. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Alderman Sir William Capel, Knt., of the City of London; and dying at the advanced age of ninety-seven, 10 March, 1572, was s. by his eldest son,

John, 2nd Marquess, who had been summoned to parliament in the lifetime of his father, as Lord St. John, and by that title was one of the Peers who sat 10 Jan., 1571-2, on the trial of Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Robert Willoughby, Lord Broke, by whom he had four sons and two daus.; and, 2ndly, Winifred, dau. of Sir John Burges, Knt., Lord-Mayor of London, and widow of Sir Robert Sackville, Knt., but had no other issue. He d. 4 Nov., 1576, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 3rd Marquess, who had been summoned to parliament in the lifetime of his father, as Lord St. John, of Basing. This nobleman was a man of letters and was enrolled amongst the poets of his day. His lordship m. one of the daughters of William, Lord Howard, of Effingham, and dying 24 Nov., 1606, was s. by his only son,

William, 4th Marquess. This nobleman entertained Queen Elizabeth most magnificently at Basing, during one of her majesty's tours, by which, and other expenses, he involved himself in pecuniary difficulties. His lordship m. Lucy, dau. of Sir Thomas Cecil, Earl of Exeter, by whom he had six sons; the second surviving of whom,

Henry, who was seated at Amport, in the Co. of Hants, m. Lucy, dau. of Sir George Philpot, of Thruxton, Hampshire, and was s. in 1672, by his son,

Francis, of Amport. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir Richard Norton, of Rotherfield, Hants, and was s. in 1696, by his only son, Norton, who m. Jane, dau. of Sir Charles Worsley, of Droxford, and had eight sons; the youngest, but longest survivor of whom, George Pawlett, Esq., succeeded as 12th MARQUESS OF WINCHESTER.

The Marquess d. in February, 1626, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

John, 5th Marquess, who, at the commencement of the civil wars, hoisted the royal banner on the battlements of Basing, and there triumphantly maintained it so long as a single stone of the noble mansion remained; but that, after a protracted siege, falling by storm, into the hands of the Usurper, was burnt to the ground, and the Marquess's property, in plate, jewels, &c., destroyed by the rebels to the amount of £200,000. His lordship had, however, the satisfaction of living to witness the restoration of the monarchy. He d. in 1674, and was buried at Englefield, where the following lines, by Dryden, appear upon his monument:

"He who in impious times undaunted stood,
And midst rebellion durst be just and good;
Whose arms asserted, and whose sufferings more,
Confirm'd the cause, for which he fought before,
Rests here, rewarded by a heavenly prince;
For what his earthly could not recompense.
Pray, reader, that such times no more appear,
Or, if they happen, learn true honor here.
Ask of this age's faith and loyalty,
Which (to preserve them) heaven confin'd in thee.

1632

Few subjects could a king like thine deserve,
And fewer such a king so well could serve.
Blest king, blest subject, whose exalted state
By sufferings rose, and gave the law to fate;
Such souls are rare, but mighty patterns given
To earth, and meant for ornaments to heaven."

His Lordship m. 1st, Jane, dau. of Thomas, Viscount Savage, by whom he had one son, Charles, his successor. He espoused, 2ndly, Honora, dau. of Richard, Earl of St. Albans and Clanricarde, by whom he had four sons and three daus.; and, 3rdly, Isabel, dau. of William Howard, Viscount Stafford. The Marquess was s. by his eldest son,

Charles, 6th Marquess, who was elevated to a Dukedom, 9 April, 1689, as Duke of Bolton. His Grace m. 1st, Christian, eldest dau. and co-heiress of John Precheville, of Stavely, afterwards created Lord Precheville, by whom he had no surviving issue; and, 2ndly, Mary, eldest illegitimate dau. of Emanuel Scroop, Earl of Sunderland, and widow of the Hon. Henry Carey, and by that lady had two sons and three daus.,

Charles, his heir.

* William, who married twice, and left issue by both marriages.

Jane, m. to John, Earl of Bridgewater.

Mary, d. unm.

Elizabeth, m. to Toby Jenkins, Esq.

Of this Duke, Burnet says, "This year," (1690) "died the Marquess of Winchester, whom the King had created Duke of Bolton. He was a man of a strange mixture. He had the spleen to an high degree, and affected an extravagant behaviour; for many weeks he would not open his mouth, till such an hour of the day, when he thought the air was pure. He changed the day into night, and often hunted by torch-light, and took all sorts of liberties to himself; many of which were very disagreeable to those about him. He was a man of profuse expense, and of a most ravenous avarice to support that; and though he was much hated, yet he carried matters before him with such authority and success, that he was in all respects the great riddle of the age." His Grace was s. by his eldest son,

Charles, 2nd Duke, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland in 1717. His Grace m. 1st, in 1679, Margaret, dau. of George, Lord Coventry, but by her had no issue; and, 2ndly, Frances, dau. of William Ramsden, Esq. of Byrom, Co. York, by whom he had two sons and two daus.,

Lineage.

It is the opinion of Sir William Dugdale, that this family is descended from a common ancestor with the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke, namely, Henry Fitz Herbert, chamberlain to King HENRY I.; and Leland says, "The Finches that be now, say, that their proper name is Herbert, and that, with marriage of the Finche's heir, they took Finche's name. One Vincent Finch, in Henry the Fourth's days, recovered, by a suit, the manor of ———, by Winchelsea." And in an old inscription in Braborne Church, the name is written Herbert, alias Finch.

WILLIAM FINCH, Esq., of Netherfield, Co. Sussex, (lineally descended from Vincent Herbert, otherwise Finch, of Netherfield, who lived there about the close of EDWARD the Second's reign,) was sheriff of Sussex and Surrey in the 8th of King Henry VI. This William m. Agnes, dau. of Walter Roo, Esq., of Dartford, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR WILLIAM FINCH, Knt., who distinguished himself in the French wars of King HENRY VIII., and, for his services, obtained a grant of the manor of Borowe Marche, otherwise Burmarsh, Co. LAWRENCE FINCH, Esq., who m. Mary, dau. and heiress of Christopher Kemp, Esq.; but, dying without issue, was s. by his brother,

THOMAS FINCH, Esq., who for his services against Sir Thomas Wyatt, and upon other important occasions, was made one of the knights of the carpet 2 Oct., 1553, the day after the coronation of Queen MARY, in the palace of Westminster, before her majesty, in her chamber of presence, under the cloth of state, by the Earl of Arundel, who was commissioned to confer the honor. In the 6th year of the next reign, Sir Thomas was made knight marshal of the forces in Newhaven, then besieged by the French, but perished by shipwreck, with a numerous suite, in his voyage to that place. Sir Thomas m. Catherine, elder dau. and one of the co-heiresses of Sir Thomas Moyle, (Chancellor of the Court of Augmentations) of Eastwell, Co. In 1676, Sir Heneage was constituted Attorney-General, and made Lord Keeper of the Great Seal 9 Nov., 1673, when he was elevated to the Peirage (10 Jan., 1673-4) as *Lord Finch, of Daventry, Co. This enterprising seaman, who when the vessel in which he had sailed, for the purpose of apprising thirty rich East India ships that war was expected with Spain, was wrecked, took an open boat, and in defiance of the elements and the Malays, (who had killed more than half his crew,) cruised in the Straits of Sunda during three months, and succeeded in imparting the desired information to twenty-nine sail out of the thirty. For this act of intrepidity, being strongly recommended for promotion by Lord Cornwallis, Mr. Wood, anxious to reach home, purchased a boat of less than five tons, and with three lascars on board, embarked for the Cape of Good Hope, where he arrived in safety after a voyage of sixty-three days. Not meeting with any ship there proceeding to England, he again put to sea in his small vessel, with three foreign sailors, but has never since been heard of.

Lineage.

This very ancient family of the principality of Wales is descended from Cadrod Harrd, or the Handsome, a British chieftain, who resided at Tremadog, and was lord of Tallybolion, in the beginning of the twelfth century. The paternal surname was originally Williams. The first Baronet,

I. WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Esq., an eminent lawyer, Recorder of Chester; and Speaker of the House of Commons in the reign of CHARLES II., was knighted by King JAMES II., upon his appointment to the Solicitor-Generalship, and created a Baronet 6 July, 1688. Sir William, while Speaker, was tried, upon an information brought against him in the Court of King's Bench, for a libel, in causing to be printed (as Speaker of the House of Commons) the information of Thomas Dangerfield, Gent.; and, although he pleaded the privilege of parliament, and that he had acted in obedience to the orders of the House, he was, nevertheless, fined ten thousand pounds; the greater part of which he was, eventually, compelled to pay. Sir William was constituted one of the King's Council, after the Revolution, and terminated his political life by the introduction of the Treating Act, which passed into a law, and still continues one of the safeguards to the purity of parliament. The title of EARL OF ANNANDALE having become extinct by the death of James Murray, the 2nd Earl of that family, Lord Hartfell made a resignation of his peerage into the hands of the King, who granted a new patent 13 Feb., 1661, creating him EARL OF ANNANDALE AND HARTFELL, Viscount of Annand, Lord Johnston, of Lockwood, Lockmaben, Moffatdale, and Erondale, to himself and his heirs male, whom failing, to the eldest heirs female of his body, and the eldest heirs-male of the body of such heirs-female, bearing the name and

ANNA, m. Sir William Hope-Johnstone, and left a son,

* There is some doubt regarding this marriage, and upon that depends the claim of SIR ROBERT GRAHAM, Bart., of Esk. Sir Robert maintains that this lady did not marry his ancestor, but espoused the Earl of Crawford. He asserts that it was Mary, the niece of her ladyship, and dau. of James, 2nd Earl, who did m. The loss of his brother Lord JOHN JOHNSTON, deeply affecting the spirits of this nobleman, he became eventually deranged; and an inquest from the Court of Chancery, in 1748, declared him incapable of managing his own affairs. His Lordship d. 29 April, 1792, when his English estates, derived from his mother, passed to that lady's son (by her second husband), SIR RICHARD VANDEN-BEMPDE-JOHNSTON, Bart.; his Scottish estates to his grand-nephew of the half-blood, James, 3rd Earl of Hopetoun; and his personal property became the subject of litigation before the Court of Chancery in England, and Court of Session in Scotland. It was finally determined, that he was domiciled in England, and that his personal estate, wherever situated, was distributable according to the law of England. In consequence, that property, amounting to £415,000, fell to be divided into three equal portions, between Sir Richard Vanden Bempde-Johnston, Charles Johnstone, his uterine brother, and his niece of the half blood, Lady Christian Hope, widow of Thomas Graham, of Balgowan. Since the decease of his Lordship, the honors of the house of Annandale have remained DORMANT.

Claimant—JAMES REDMOND BARRY, Esq.

Descent of the Dignity.

The earliest document which mentions the title of VISCOUNT BUTTEVANT,‡ bears date in 1406, and is enrolled on the patent roll, in the Rolls Office of Chancery, in Ireland, of the 12th of King JAMES I. It recites that John Barry, Esq., required a certain deed to be enrolled in Chancery, dated the Monday next before the Epiphany, in the 7th of King HENRY IV. (1406), whereby James, VISCOUNT BUTTEVANT, granted to John Stapleton, gentleman, the lands of Island Cullyne, at the rent of two shillings Irish per annum. PEERAGES CLAIMED, ETC.

Ireland, or by Henry IV. soon after his accession. Whether he was son or brother of the above-mentioned John Fitz-David cannot as yet be proved.

WILLIAM BARRY, Viscount Buttevant, was summoned to Parliament as Premier Viscount of Ireland, in the 6th year of HENRY VII. (1490).

The grandson of this Lord, JAMES-FITZ-JOHN BARRY, Viscount Buttevant, executed a deed dated 9 Feb., in the 3rd and 4th of PHILIP and MARY, whereby he settled his estates of Buttevant, Oletan, &c., upon himself for life, with remainder to the heirs of his body; in failure of which upon his cousin, JAMES-FITZ-RICHARD BARRY-ROE, commonly called Baron of Ishawne, and after him, upon various other persons. His Lordship d. without male issue, 20 March, 1557, and was s. by his cousin aforesaid,

JAMES-FITZ-RICHARD BARRY-ROE, Viscount Buttevant, who was summoned to the Parliament of Ireland, which met 12 Jan., 1559. His Lordship d. in 1562, leaving (with two younger sons),

I. RICHARD, who never bore the title of Viscount of Buttevant, in consequence of being deaf and dumb. He d. s. p. in 1622.

II. DAVID, who in consequence of the incapacity of his elder brother, was summoned to Parliament as Viscount Buttevant, in 1665. The son of this David, —another DAVID BARRY, predeceased him, leaving a son,

DAVID BARRY, who succeeding his grandfather and grand-uncle, became Viscount Buttevant, and was created in 1627, EARL OF BARRYMORE, in which higher dignity the Viscounty merged until the decease issueless, 28 Dec., 1823, of

HENRY BARRY, 8th EARL OF BARRYMORE, when that dignity became EXTINCT, and the Viscounty of BUTTEVANT devolved, as he alleges, upon JAMES-REDMOND BARRY, the claimant.

III. WILLIAM, of Lislee, who was s. by his son,

JAMES, who was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, who forfeited the estate of Lislee, in the time of CROMWELL. He was living in 1636. His son and successor,

JAMES, was of Ballymachraheen, Co. Cork.

He d. about 1700, and left a son,

JAMES, of Mount Barry, Co. Cork, who d. in 1802, having had issue,

JAMES, of Donoughmore, who d. in 1800, leaving a son,

JAMES-REDMOND BARRY, heir of his grandfather, and claimant of the Viscounty of BUTTEVANT.

DE WAHULL, BARONY OF, in the PEERAGE OF ENGLAND.

Claimant—JONATHAN CHETWOOD, Esq., of Woodbrook, in the Queen's county.

Descent of the Dignity.

THOMAS DE WAHULL, of Wahull (now Wodhull, or Odhull), Co. Bedford, was summoned to Parliament as a BARON, by King EDWARD I., 20 Jan., 1297. He d. in 1301, seized of the barony of Wahull, as also of the manor of Wahull, Co. Bedford, and Pateshill, in Northamptonshire, leaving, by his wife, Hawise, dau. of Henry Praers, an infant son and heir,

JOHN DE WAHULL, who, although possessed of the barony of Wahull, had no similar summons to Parliament, nor had any of his descendants. This John d. 10th EDWARD III., and from him we pass to his descendant,

ANTHONY WODEHULL, who attaining majority, 31st HENRY VIII., had livery of his lands, but dying in two years afterwards, left, by Anne, his wife, dau. of Sir John Smith, an only dau. and heiress,

AGNES WODEHULL, who espoused, 1st, Richard Chet-wode, Esq., 3rd son of Sir Roger, ancestor of the present Sir John Chetwode, Bart.; and, 2ndly, Sir George Calverley, Knt. By the latter she had two sons, who both predeceased her; and by the former, an only son, her heir,

SIR RICHARD CHETWODE. This gentleman, in the time of JAMES I., preferred a claim to the barony of Wahull, as possessor of the manor and castle of Odell (Wahull), and his petition being referred to the Duke of Lennox, the Lord Howard, and the Earl of Nottingham, these noblemen made a report in his favor (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage), but their recommendation was not carried into effect, and Sir Richard in consequence declined accepting a peerage, under a new creation by patent, which was then offered to him. His son,

RICHARD CHETWODE, m. Anne, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Valentine Knightley, son and heir of Sir Richard Knightley, by the Lady Eliza Seymour, dau. of Edward, Duke of Somerset, and had a son,

VALENTINE CHETWODE, who m. Mary, dau. of Francis Shute, Esq., of Upton, Co. Leicester, and had two sons, KNIGHTLEY, in holy orders, Dean of Gloucester. This gentleman had two children, John and Eliza, who both d. unm.

JOHN, in holy orders, D.D., who had a son,

KNIGHTLEY, who inherited the estates, and became representative of the family upon the decease of his cousins, John and Eliza. He m. Hester, dau. and heir of Richard Brooking, Esq., of Totness, Co. Devon, and sister of the Bishop of Cloyne, and had (with a dau., Anne, m. to Joseph Stopford, Esq., brother of James, Earl of Courtown) a son,

VALENTINE KNIGHTLEY CHETWOOD, who marrying Henrietta-Maria, dau. of Sir Jonathan Cope, Bart., of Brewern, Co. Oxford, aunt of Arabella, Duchess of Dorset, present Countess of Whitworth, and of Catherine, Countess of Aboyne, and also sister of Mary, Lady Jenkinson, 1st cousin of Charles, Earl of Liverpool, left a son, JONATHAN CHETWOOD, Esq., of Woodbrook, Queen's Co., the present CLAIMANT to the BARONY OF DE WAHULL.

Claimants—THOMAS - ALEXANDER FRASER, Esq., of Lovat.

Descent of the Dignity.

HUGH FRASER is the first of the family designed in legal writings "of Ard and of Lovat," lands which still remain in the possession of his descendants. Under this title he figures in the year 1367. The precise period when the Frasers, of Lovat, came to the peerage is not ascertained: there is no patent of the honor, and indeed, prior to the reign of JAMES VI., patents having reference to dignities alone were unknown, but there are strong reasons for believing that the chiefs of the clan sat as Parliamentary Barons in the reign of JAMES I. Hugh Fraser d. in 1440, and was s. by his son,

HUGH FRASER, 2nd Lord Lovat, from whom the peerage descended in a direct line to

SIMON FRASER, 13th Lord Lovat, who signed the association in 1740, to join CHARLES-EDWARD, from whom he accepted the commission of Lieutenant-General, and General of the Highlands, with a patent, creating him DUKE OF FRASER. On the breaking out of the rebellion, five years afterwards, 1745, he sent his eldest son and his clansmen to join the standard of the Chevalier, but remained at home himself. When all was over he was taken into custody, 1746, conveyed to London, and put upon his trial for high treason, before the House of Lords, on the 7th March, 1747, convicted on the 10th of the same month, and decapitated on Tower Hill, 9 April following, in the 80th year of his age, when his honors fell under the attainder. With Simon Fraser's second son, COLONEL ARCHIBALD-CAMPBELL FRASER, of Lovat, who d. in 1815, the male descendants of Hugh, 9th Lord Lovat, becoming extinct, when the male representation of the family, as well as the heirship to the attainted barony, devolved upon (the descendant of the HON. THOMAS FRASER, 2nd son of the 6th Lord) the present THOMAS-ALEXANDER FRASER, Esq., of Lovat and Stricken, who, having presented a petition to his Majesty to recognise his claim to the dignity of BARON LOVAT, the same was remitted to the House of Lords before the Lords Committee for privileges, of which Lovat, in June, 1827,* terminated the proof of his pedigree.

PEERAGES CLAIMED, ETC.

GALMOYE, VISCOUNTY OF, Co. Kilkenny, in the Peerage of Ireland.

Claimant—GARRET BUTLER, Esq., who has assumed the title.

Opinion of his Majesty's Attorney-General and Solicitor-General for Ireland.

"Upon the whole of this case, we are humbly of opinion that the said Garret Butler, the claimant of said title of Viscount of Galmoye, has well proved his right to the same, in case said attainder were out of the way, and that his Majesty may, if he shall be graciously pleased so to do, recommend the proper measures to be taken to reverse the attainder created by the said act of WILLIAM III., in order that the said title, honor, or dignity of Viscount of Galmoye, of the kingdom of Ireland, may be revived in the person of the petitioner, the said Garret Butler, the more so as such attainder arose from the acts of Piers, the third Viscount, who was not the lineal ancestor of the said claimant, he having, as before stated, shown his right to the said title through the uncle of the said Piers.

"All which is humbly submitted to your Excellency, as the report of your Excellency's obedient and very humble servants, (signed) H. JOY.
"Dublin, 19 June, 1828. JOHN DONERTY."

Descent of the Dignity.

THOMAS BUTLER, 10th Earl of Ormonde and Earl of Ossory, K.G., surnamed from the darkness of his complexion, the "BLACK EARL," left, at his decease, in 1614, a legitimate dau. and heiress, and had, beside, an illegitimate son,

PIERS FITZ-THOMAS BUTLER, in whose favor the Earl executed a deed of conveyance in 1597 (when the said Piers had reached majority), of certain church lands, considerable in amount, which had been granted by Queen ELIZABETH, in 1576, to James Butler, the Earl's brother, and which reverted to his Lordship at the decease of the said James's son, James, without issue. This Piers Fitz-Thomas m. Katherine, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Thomas, Lord Slane, by whom he had two sons, and dying in 1601, was s. by the elder,

SIR EDWARD BUTLER, Knt., who was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 16 May, 1646, as VISCOUNT OF GALMOYE, Co. Kilkenny. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Edmund, 2nd Viscount Mountgarret, by whom he had two sons, viz.

1. Piers, of Barrowmount, Colonel of Dragoons in the royal army, who fell at the battle of Worcester, in 1650, leaving by Margaret, dau. of the 1st Lord Netterville,

* When the family was first raised to the Peerage the title was simply Lord Fraser, as demonstrative of the chief's being the Fraser, or head of the clan.

For a detailed account of the Frasers of Lovat, see BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iii.

EDWARD, who s. his grandfather.

Richard, d. in 1678, without male issue.

Edmund, of Killoshulan, Co. Kilkenny, ancestor of the present family.

Frances, m. to Hervey Morres, grandfather of the 1st Viscount Mountmorres.

Eleanor, m. to William Grace, Esq., of Ballylinch.

- ii. Thomas, whose only child, Anne, m. William Cook, Esq., of Painstown.

The Viscount d. in 1653, and was s. by his grandson,

EDWARD, 2nd Viscount, who m. Eleanor, Lady Aston, dau. of Sir Nicholas White, Knt., of Leixlip, Co. Kildare, by whom he had two sons, Piers and Richard, the younger of whom m. and had issue,

JAMES, who assumed the title as 4th Viscount, and d. s. p. in 1770.

Sophia, m. William Hay, Esq., of Nantes, ancestor of the Chevalier Hay, of the same place.

His Lordship d. in 1667, and was s. by his elder son,

PIERS, 3rd Viscount, a distinguished officer in the royal army (King JAMES's), at the battle of the Boyne, who was outlawed, in consequence, 11 May, 1691, but being in the October following one of the Commissioners for the surrender of Limerick, his Lordship was included, of course, in the celebrated treaty of that city; following, however, the fortunes of his royal master (who had created him Earl of Newcastle) into France, he was despoiled of all his estates, and attainted, in 1697, by the statute 9th WILLIAM III. c. 8. His Lordship, who had the rank of Lieutenant-General in the French service, dying in 1740, without male issue, the Viscounty was assumed, notwithstanding the attainder, by his nephew and next male heir,

COLONEL JAMES BUTLER, of the Irish brigade in the French service (eldest son of the deceased Lord's only brother, the Hon. Richard Butler, of his Majesty King JAMES's body-guard), as 4th Viscount. His Lordship d. s. p. in 1770, when the dignity was assumed by the illegitimate son of his youngest brother, Captain Francis Piers Butler, of the Irish brigade, by Catherine-Julie de Vallory (a lady whom Captain Butler eventually married, and acknowledging the said son, legitimated him according to the laws of France, but, indisputably, not according to the laws of England), PIERS-LOUIS-ANTOINE, as 5th Viscount. This Piers dying issueless in 1826, it is of no importance whether he assumed, consistently with the English law of descent, the representation of the family, or not; but, while he lived, the branch which should have inherited the peerage did not urge their claim, owing to ignorance of the taint in the birth of the said Piers, but, upon his decease, the present claimant and next male heir to the (assumed) 4th Viscount, Garret Butler, Esq., of Garrendenny Castle, Queen's Co., lost no time in asserting his right, upon which the law-officers of Ireland came to the favorable conclusion given above. We shall now deduce the line of the said GARRET.

EDMOND BUTLER, Esq., of Killoshulan, Co. Kilkenny (youngest son of the Hon. Piers Butler, and brother of Edward, the 2nd Viscount), a Major in the army of King JAMES II., m. Catharine, dau. of Sir Nicholas Crisp, of Luddenham, Co. Kent, and dying in 1691, left a son,

PIERS BUTLER, Esq., Major of Dragoons in King JAMES's army, comprehended within the articles of Limerick. This gentleman m. Domville, eldest dau. of Sir Robert Hartpole, Knt., of Shrule, and grandau. of Sir William Domville, King CHARLES the Second's Attorney-General, by whom he had

EDMOND BUTLER, Esq., Captain of dragoons in the service of King GEORGE II., who conformed to the Protestant faith in 1719. This gentleman served the office of Sheriff of the Queen's county, and of the county of Kilkenny. He m. Miss Anne Skellerin, by whom he had several children, and was s. by his son,

PIERS BUTLER, Esq. (who, but for the attainder, would have succeeded at the decease of the 4th Viscount Galmoye, in 1776, owing to the illegitimacy of the person who assumed the dignity as 5th Viscount). This gentleman m. Mary, only dau. of Theobald Mandeville, Esq., of Ballydine, and was s. by his only son,

EDMOND-THEOBALD-MANDEVILLE BUTLER, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Garret Nevile, Esq., and niece of Sir Robert-Adams Hodson, Bart., by whom he had four sons,

- i. Piers-Theobald.
- ii. Garret (present assumed Viscount Galmoye).
- iii. William.
- iv. Tobias.

Mr. Butler d. in 1815, and was s. in his estates by his eldest son,

PIERS-THEOBALD BUTLER, Esq., at whose decease, unmarried, in 1824, the estates and representation of the family devolved upon his next brother, GARRET BUTLER, Esq., who, upon the demise of the (illegitimate) 5th Viscount, Piers-Louis-Antoine, in 1826, as already stated, adopted the usual course of proceeding to establish his right to the peerage.

Descent of the Dignity.

THE HONORABLE SIR ALEXANDER ERSKINE, Knt., of Gogar, Co. of Mid-Lothian (4th son of John, 4th Lord Erskine, by Margaret, dau. of Archibald, 2nd Earl of Argyll, and brother of John, Earl of Mar, Regent of Scotland), was sworn, in 1578, of his Majesty's (Scottish) Privy Council, nominated Governor of Edinburgh Castle, and constituted Vice-Chamberlain of Scotland. He m. Margaret, dau. of George, 4th Lord Home, by whom he had three sons and three daus. On the death of his brother, the Regent, in 1572, Sir Alexander was entrusted with the custody of King JAMES VI., and the keeping of the Castle of Stirling, where his Majesty resided, which office he executed with great fidelity, until the Castle was seized by his nephew, the Earl of Mar, in 1578, who made himself master of the King's person, and turned Sir Alexander out of the fortress; the disgrace of this expulsion so deeply affected his eldest son, Alexander, a youth of great promise, that he is said to have died of grief in the same year. Sir Alexander Erskine's next son,

SIR THOMAS ERSKINE, born in the same year with King JAMES I., and educated with that monarch, having accompanied him into England, was created, in 1603, *Baron of Dirlتون, Co. WILLIAM, of Fleming Hall, who assumed the title of Lord Slane on the death of Christopher, Viscount Longford, but it was not acknowledged on account of the outlawry against his grandfather. He left an only child, CHRISTOPHER, who d. in 1772, leaving three daughters, Sarah, Anne, and Jane.

William, Lord Slane, was outlawed after his death in 1641, but afterwards declared innocent by the King and Commissioners appointed under the Act of Settlement. The outlawry was revived, however, after the REVOLUTION, to deprive his family of the Peerage. He was s. by his eldest son,

CHARLES FLEMING, Lord Slane, a military man of eminence, distinguished in the Cromwellian wars in Ireland against the Usurper, and afterwards in the service of LOUIS XIV. He d. s. p. in 1661, and was s. by his brother,

RANDALL FLEMING, Lord Slane, who got possession of all his estates at the Restoration. He m. 1st, Elinor, dau. of Sir Richard Barnewall, Bart., of Crickstown, by whom he had a daughter,

Mary, who m. 1st, Richard Fleming, Esq., of Stabolinck, and had a son, JAMES, who d. young. She espoused, 2ndly, Colonel Oliver O'Gara, descended, according to the Abbe Mac Geoghegan, from the ancient house of the O'Garas of Coolavin, Co. Sligo, and had four other sons, who are thus mentioned by the same historian. "The three eldest having entered into the service of Spain, the first died there with the rank of Brigadier-General; the second is Colonel of the regiment of Hibernia; and the third Lieutenant-Colonel of the regiment of Ireland; the latter's conduct at the battle of Valetti attracted the notice of his Catholic Majesty, who rewarded him with a commandery of the order of Calatrava. The fourth son, Oliver O'Gara, having attached himself to the service of Leopold, Duke of Lorraine, that Prince honored him with the charge of Master of the Horse to his two sons, by the elder of whom, when the Prince became EMPEROR, O'Gara was made a Privy-Councillor, and constituted Comptroller of the Household to the Princess his sister."†

Lord Slane espoused, 2ndly, Penelope, dau. of Henry, Earl of Drogheda, and had issue,

i. CHRISTOPHER, his successor.

ii. Henry, outlawed in 1691, and d. unm.

iii. Randall, d. issueless.

iv. Alice, m. to Sir Gregory Byrne, Bart. (his second wife), and had two sons,

1 Charles Byrne, who m. Miss Margaret Colclough, and had four sons and four daughters, viz.

Dudley, John, Cesar, James, Mary, Anne, Margaret, Frances,	}	who all d. issueless.

2 Henry Byrne, of Oporto, who m. Catherine, dau. of James Enstace, Esq., of Yeomanstown, Co. Kildare, and left an only child,

CATHERINE-XAVIERIA BYRNE, who wedded George Bryan, Esq., and dying in 1779, left two sons, Eustace Bryan, who d. s. p. in 1786.

GEORGE BRYAN, of Jenkinstown, Co. Kilkenny, the REJECTED claimant.

Lord Slane d. in 1676, and was s. by his son,

CHRISTOPHER FLEMING, Lord Slane; This nobleman, while yet scarcely eighteen years of age, unhappily saw in his own demesne the great contest between JAMES and WILLIAM: the battle of the Boyne was fought almost under the walls of Slane Castle, wherein his Lordship entertained King JAMES the night before that memorable engagement. In consequence of his Lordship's fidelity to that unfortunate Monarch, from whose family his predecessors had received so many favours, he was outlawed and attainted in the year 1691, and all the ancient family estates became forfeited, and were sold, pursuant to the provisions of the English statute 11th and 12th WILLIAM III. After the accession, however, of Queen ANNE, when the crown considered his youth and peculiar situation, as also the services he had rendered her Majesty in her armies abroad, his Lordship received a grant, 7 April, 1707, of £500 per annum for his support; and, by an act of the English parliament, was subsequently restored in blood. It should be observed, that the parliament of Ireland had already, viz. 7 Dec., 1693, passed an act, confirming the attainder of Christopher Fleming, late Baron of Slane; and by a resolution of the House of Lords of that kingdom, made 2 Dec., 1697, it was ordered, "that such lords whose ancestors or themselves stand outlawed on record, ought not to have privilege of sitting in this house, or take upon them, on any occasion, any title of honor." Under this and subsequent orders, Lord Slane and several others of the most ancient Peers in Ireland, who had incurred attainders, during the disastrous periods of 1641 and 1688, were debarred the use of their accustomed titles; and from that time until about the end of the last century, when His Majesty King George III. permitted the reversal of several attainders, all such Peers used the words "commonly called" before their titles of honor, and in that manner were styled in all law and equity proceedings; Lord Slane, however, considering himself restored in blood by the English statute just mentioned, presented a petition to the House of Lords in Ireland, praying his writ of summons "that he might take his place as a Peer of this realm," he having been "restored to his blood and title of honor in this kingdom;" but no definitive order was made on this petition, owing to the jealousy then existing, as to the question of the paramount authority of the English legislature, and which authority his Lordship seems to have acknowledged, in obtaining the above statute of reversal. He was subsequently created (1713), by Queen Anne, Viscount Longford. His Lordship, who was a Lieutenant-General in the Portuguese service, m. Anne, dau. of Sir Patrick Trant, Bart., and left an only daughter, HELEN, who d. mm. in 1748. He d. in 1728, when the Viscounty of Longford expired, and the Barony of Slane became DORMANT.

* LADY BARNEWALL in this instance, according to the English practice, as the only surviving daughter of CHRISTOPHER, Lord Slane, and sister and heir of JAMES, Lord Slane, should have become BARONESS SLANE, but the dignity appears to descend continuously with the MANOR OF SLANE.

Note.—LORD DUNSANY was also a claimant to the SLANE Peerage, as one of the co-heirs of Christopher, Lord Slane, who had summons in 1613 and 1615, and his Lordship petitioned parliament accordingly, upon the presumption that he descended from The Hon. MARY FLEMING, only dau. of Randall, Lord Slane, by his first wife, and half-sister of Christopher, Viscount Longford and last Lord Slane; but it has since been established that his Lordship did not derive from that lady, but from her first husband by a former wife; thus:

RANDALL, Lord Slane, left by Elinor Barnewall, his first wife, an only child, the above-mentioned MARY FLEMING, who m. 1st, RICHARD FLEMING, Esq., of Staholnock, and had an only son, JAMES, who d. young. Richard Fleming, of Staholnock, was a widower, and had an only daughter by his first wife, BRIDGET FLEMING, who m. Randall Plunket, 11th Lord Dunsany, great-grandfather of the present Lord.

6 MARY VAUX, m. to Sir George Simeon, of Brightwell, Co. Oxford, and had two daughters, ANNE SIMEON, who, it is presumed by the claimant, Mostyn, must have died unmarried, as no trace, it is alleged, can be found of her, although the most diligent search has been made.

ELIZABETH SIMEON. This lady, in the event

* The Barony of Vaux of Harrowden, is stated to have been created by writ of summons to, and sitting in parliament in the reign of HENRY VIII., by which a Barony was created to the heirs of the body of Nicholas, Lord Vaux, the first Peer, and is now claimed by Edward Bouchier Hartopp, Esq., and George Mostyn, Esq., two of his co-heirs. The only other co-heir, is the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery.

† The authority of this statement is the following passage in Stowe's Annals:—"The 27th of April was Sir Arthur Plantagenet, a bastard son to King EDWARD IV., at Bridewell, created Viscount L'Isle, in the right of his wife, which was some time wife of Edward Dudley, beheaded; Sir Maurice Berkeley, Lieutenant of Calais, was made Lord Berkeley; Sir William Sands, Lord Sands; and Sir Nicholas Vaux, Lord Vaux." The creation of these Barons cannot now be proved by legal evidence, because neither the Parliamentary Pawn, nor the writs of summons which were issued to them in 15 HENRY VIII. are extant; and because the Journals of the House of Lords, from the 7th to the 23th of that monarch, 1515-1534, have long been lost.

 Edward Lord Portman.
 Thomas Alexander Lord Lovat.

MEV.—According to the Usage of Parliament, when the House appoints a Select Committee, the Lords appointed to serve upon it are named in the Order of their Rank, beginning with the Highest; and so, when the House sends a Committee to a Conference with the Commons, the Lord highest in Rank is called first, and the rest go forth in like Order: But when the whole House is called over for any Purpose within the House, or for the Purpose of proceeding forth to Westminster Hall, or upon any public solemnity, the Call begins invariably with the Junior Baron.

PEERAGES OF ENGLAND, IRELAND, AND SCOTLAND, COLLECTIVELY IN ORDER OF PRECEDENCE.

"All peers of Scotland shall be peers of Great Britain, and have rank next after the peers of the like degree in England at the time of the Union."—23rd Article of Union with Scotland, confirmed by 5 Anne, cap. 8.

"The Lords of Parliament, on the part of Ireland, shall have the same privileges as the lords on the part of Great Britain; and all the Lords Spiritual of Ireland shall have rank next after the Lords Spiritual of the same rank in Great Britain, and shall enjoy the same privileges (except those depending upon sitting in the House of Lords), and the Temporal Peers of Ireland shall have rank next after the Peers of the like rank in Great Britain at the time of the Union; and all Peerages of Great Britain and Ireland, shall, in all other respects, enjoy the same privileges, except those depending upon sitting in the House of Lords.—Act of Union with Ireland, 39 and 40 Geo. * By the date of Lord Gray's patent, 9th October, 1437, it would seem that his Lordship should precede Lord Forbes, whose creation was in 1440, and at the election of Peers of Scotland, 12th May, 1739, Lord Gray protested for precedency, and against the calling of Lord Forbes, or any other Baron, before himself.

Note.—The foregoing list comprehends all the Peerages extant, excepting minor titles that merge in superior ones of the same kingdom. It must be understood, however, that in many instances two or more dignities centre in one individual: thus—the Duke of Richmond is placed in his precedence as an English Duke, and also as a Scottish one, as Duke of Lennox. The Duke of Leinster is amongst the Dukes in his Irish Dukedom, and amongst the Viscounts in his English Viscounty, &c. &c. Some Lords too enjoy distinct Peerages of the same grade, inherited from different ancestors, and, in such cases, both titles are given, each in its own order of precedence.

BRITISH ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

THE MOST HONORABLE ORDER OF THE BATH.

Instituted in 1399. Revived in 1725. Enlarged in 1815.

In the year 1725, King George I. revived the Order of the Bath, which was originally derived from the ceremonial of bathing, which the knights underwent on the vigil of their inauguration, and enacted statutes for its regulation, by which it was ordained to consist of the Sovereign, and thirty-seven Knights Companions.

On 2nd of Jan., 1815, it was declared that, "for the purpose of commemorating the auspicious termination of the long and arduous contest in which this empire has been engaged, the Order should be composed of three classes, viz.

1st. Class—to consist of Knights Grand Crosses, number not to exceed seventy-two, exclusive of the Sovereign and Princes of the Blood Royal; one sixth of which may be appointed for civil services. The remainder must have attained the rank of Major-General in the army, or Rear-Admiral in the navy, and must have been previously appointed to the second class.

2nd Class—Knights Commanders, number, not to exceed, upon the first institution, one hundred and eighty, exclusive of Foreign officers, holding British commissions, of whom not exceeding ten may be admitted as Honorary Knights Commanders. In the event of actions of signal distinction or of future wars, the number of this class may be increased. To be entitled to the distinctive appellation of Knighthood; to have the same rights and privileges as Knights Bachelors, but to take precedence of them; to wear the badge, &c. pendant by a red riband round the neck, the star embroidered on the left side. This Class is not now conferred upon any officer below the rank of Major-General in the army, or Rear-Admiral in the navy.

3rd Class—Companions of the Order; not limited in number; they are to take precedence of Esquires, but are not entitled to the appellation, style, &c. of Knights Bachelors. To wear the badge assigned to the third Class, pendant by a narrow red riband to the button-hole. No officer can be nominated, unless he shall have received a medal, or other badge of honor, or shall have been especially mentioned in despatches in the London Gazette, as having distinguished himself in action. This class has never been conferred upon any officer below the rank of Major in the Army and Commander in the Navy.

The new BADGE for the MILITARY CLASSES of the Order, is a gold Maltese cross, of eight points, enamelled argent, in the four angles, a lion passant guardant, or; in the centre, the rose, thistle, and shamrock, issuant from a sceptre between three imperial crowns or, within a circle gules; thereon the motto of the Order, surrounded by two branches of laurel proper, issuing from an escrol azure, inscribed Ich Dien (I serve), in letters of gold. It is worn by the Grand Crosses pendant from a red riband across the right shoulder, by the Knights Commanders from the neck, and by the Companions from the button-hole.

THE COLLAR is of gold, weighing thirty ounces Troy weight, and is composed of nine imperial crowns, and eight roses, thistle and shamrock, issuing from a sceptre, enamelled in their proper colours, tied or linked together with seventeen gold knots, enamelled white, having the badge of the Order pendant therefrom.

THE STAR of the MILITARY GRAND CROSSES is formed of rays, or flames of silver, thereon a gold Maltese cross, and in the centre, within the motto, branches of laurel, issuant as in the badge.

THE CIVIL KNIGHTS GRAND CROSSES retain the old Badge and Star of the Order, which is of silver, formed with eight points or rays, charged with three imperial crowns proper, upon a glory of silver rays, surrounded with a red circle, upon which is the motto of the Order. Their Badge is of gold, and contains a rose issuant from the dexter side of a sceptre, and a thistle from the sinister, all between three imperial crowns encircled by the motto.

THE STAR of the KNIGHTS COMMANDERS is in the form of a cross patée of silver, having the same centre as the Grand Crosses, but without a gold Maltese cross thereon.

BRITISH ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORDER OF ST. MICHAEL AND ST. GEORGE.

Instituted 27th April, 1818, by Letters Patent, under the great seal of Great Britain, for Natives of the United States of the IONIAN ISLANDS, and of the Island of MALTA and its Dependencies, and for such other subjects of his Majesty as may hold high and confidential situations in the Mediterranean.

By Statutes dated 16 Aug., 1832, the Order is to consist of fifteen Knights Grand Crosses exclusive of the Grand Master, twenty Knights Commanders, and twenty-five Cavalieri or Companions.

The Members of the Orders enjoy rank and precedence immediately after the corresponding classes of the Order of the Bath; that is to say, the Knights Grand Crosses after Knights Grand Crosses of the Bath; the Knights Commanders after the Knights Commanders of the Bath; and the Cavalieri and Companions after the Companions of the Bath, with the exception of the six senior Cavalieri, who retain the appellation of British Knighthood ("Sir"), and the precedence assigned to them by the original statutes of April 1818. All natives of the Ionian Islands and of Malta, who receive the third class of the Order, are styled "Cavalieri," and all natives of Great Britain and Ireland "Companions." The Grand Master is the First and Principal Knight Grand Cross, and the Lord High Commissioner has precedence of all other Grand Crosses. The Knights Grand Crosses are entitled to bear supporters, and to encircle their arms with the collar, riband, and motto of the Order. The Knights Commanders and Cavalieri also encircle their arms with the riband and motto; and the Companions suspend the badge of the Order to their arms.

HABIT AND INSIGNIA.

THE STAR of a Knight Grand Cross is composed of seven rays of silver, having a small ray of gold between each of them, and over all the cross of St. George, gules. In the centre is a representation of the archangel St. Michael encountering Satan, within a blue circle, inscribed with the motto AUSPICUM MELIORIS ÆVI.

THE COLLAR is formed alternately of lions of England, of Maltese crosses, and of the cyphers S M and S G, having, in the centre, the imperial crown, over two winged lions passant gardant, each holding a book, and seven arrows. At the opposite end of the Collar are two similar lions. The whole is of gold, except the crosses, which are of white enamel, and it is linked together by small gold chains.

THE BADGE is a gold Cross of fourteen points of white enamel, edged with gold, having in the centre, on one side, the archangel St. Michael encountering Satan, and on the other St. George, on horseback, encountering a dragon, within a blue circle, on which the motto of the Order is inscribed. The Cross is surmounted by the imperial crown, and is worn by the Grand Crosses to a wide Saxon blue riband with a scarlet stripe, from the right shoulder to the left side; and on Collar days from the Collar.

THE CHAPEAU is of blue satin, lined with scarlet, and surmounted with white and black ostrich feathers.

THE KNIGHTS COMMANDERS wear the badge suspended to a narrower riband from the neck, and have on their left side, a Star composed of four rays, with a small cross of eight points in saltire, of silver, surmounted by the cross of St. George, gules, and having the same centre as the star of the Grand Crosses.

THE CAVALIERI and COMPANIONS wear the small cross of the Order from a still narrower riband, at the button-hole of their coats.

MOTTO—AUSPICUM MELIORIS ÆVI.

VALVASORS.—The first name of dignity, next beneath a peer, was anciently that of Vidames, Vicedomini, or Valvasor, who are mentioned by our ancient lawyers, as virī magnæ dignitatis, and Sir Edward Coke speaks highly of them. Yet they are at present entirely out of use; and our legal antiquaries are not agreed upon even their original or ancient office. Now, therefore, the first personal dignity, after the nobility, is a Knight of the Order of St. George, or of the Garter, first instituted by Edward III., anno 1344.—Blackstone.

 In Canopo ut ad Canopum. Louis, Bt. The sense of this legend is the most obscure in the whole list of mottoes. The following explanation has been offered by a learned correspondent. "Canopus is the name of a city in Egypt (Gens fortunata Canopi, Virg. Georg. iv. v. 237), now Abouquir, a place celebrated during the crusades. The word also signifies a star (fixed) of the first magnitude, in the constellation Argos, and southern hemisphere (Sidus ingens et clarum. Plin. Hist. Nat. vi. 23). The motto may therefore have been assumed by a crusader, importing that to have fought for the cross in Egypt (in Canopo), was the road to heaven (ad canopum, a star, equivalent to ad astra)." Admiral Louis, however, having died on board the ship Canopus, another meaning, though perhaps somewhat similar, is intended.

Lamh laidir an nachtar. The strongest hand is on high. O'Brien, Bt. The literal translation of this motto is, "The strongest hand uppermost," but by an alteration of one letter in the last word it will mean "The strongest hand is on high," or "in heaven," and it has been so translated by the Marquis of Thomond, whose motto is in French, "Vigueur de dessus."

Lamh derg eirin. The red hand of Ireland. O'Neill, E. In an ancient expedition of some adventurers to Ireland, their leader declared that whoever first touched the shore should possess the territory which he reached. O'Neill, from whom descend the princes of Ulster, bent upon obtaining the reward, and seeing another boat likely to land, cut his hand off and threw it on the coast. Hence the traditionary origin of the motto. The RED HAND was adopted by JAMES the First, as the badge on instituting the order of Baronet. The design of the institution being the colonization of the province of Ulster, in Ireland, the arms of the province were deemed the most appropriate insignia.

"Fallitur egregie quisquis sub principe credit
Servitium, nunquam libertas gratior exstat
Quam sub rege pio"

He errs indeed, who thinks if single sway
Should rule the land, 'tis slavery to obey:
A good king's subjects cherish liberty,
No other freemen are so safely free.

Libertate quietem. Quiet in liberty. Woodford, Bt. The sentence is, "Manus hæc inimica tyrannis, ense petit placidam sub libertate quietem," written in the album of the University of Copenhagen, by Algernon Sidney, when ambassador from the English commonwealth at the court of Denmark. Sidney also repeated them in the book of mottoes, in the royal library in the same city.  Be this thy screen, and this thy wall of brass."—Pope.

Murus æneus conscientia sana. A sound conscience is a wall of brass. Scarborough, E.
 Mutas inglorius artes. To exercise unambitious of glory the silent arts. Halford, Bt. This motto is an elegant quotation from the description of the physician Iapetus, in the twelfth book of Virgil's Æneid, which has thus been rendered by Dryden :

"Iapetus was at hand to prove his art,
 Whose blooming youth so fir'd Apollo's heart,
 That, for his love, he proffer'd to bestow
 His tuneful harp, and his unerring bow :
 The pious youth, more studious how to save
 His aged sire, now sinking to the grave,
 Prefer'd the pow'r of plants, and silent praise
 Of healing arts, before Phœbean bays."

The medical profession was by no means in honor at Rome. Every senator and rich Roman had his family physician among his own bondmen, and none but slaves practised the art until Augustus made Antonius Musa a freed man : in Greece it was different. Tasso, speaking of Erotimo, when attending on the wounded Tancred, closely imitates the lines of Virgil :

"E già l'antico Erotimo, che nacque
In riva al Po, s'adopra in sua salute,
Il qual d'herbe, e de le nobil'acque
Ben conosceva ogni uso, ogni virtute.
Caro a le Muse ancor; ma sì compiacque
Ne la gloria minor de l'arti mute
Sol caro torre à morte i corpi frali,
E potea far' i nomi anco immortali."

"Gray Erotimus, born beside the Po,
Came to his aid; a sage who knew the use
And secret virtues of all springs that flow—
Of all green herbs, the hills and woods produce:
He too was smiled on by the partial muse,
But valued sweet Castalia's warbling wave
Less than the mute fall of Poenian dew;
His science wounded men from death could save,
And cancelled names in verse immortally engrave."—J. H. Wiffen.

is, at the suggestion of Mr. HOOK, incorporated with the NEW MONTHLY, and forms a prominent feature of Wit and Comicality in that Magazine, which is accordingly increased in quantity, and contains various other improvements.

THE NEW SERIES OF LITERARY PORTRAITS (lately commenced) continues to form a distinguishing embellishment of this Periodical.

THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE AND HUMORIST FOR JANUARY.—This popular and clever periodical has passed the threshold of the new year under auspices, and with omens, the most propitious. With such wit and various ability as this number displays, it cannot but succeed in reaching a very high place in public estimation. Mr. Theodore Hook, whose services have been secured as editor, is, it is superfluous to say, in himself a host, and many of the most popular and successful writers of the day lend their valuable aid. We have in this number a continuation of the Gurney Papers. Marriage does very well to end a comedy, but real life only begins with it. Mr. Hook introduces us to Gilbert's domestic circle, in which the retired Indian nabob plays an amusing part.—Carlton Chronicle.

Now Complete, in 4 Vols. elegantly bound, price 11.—or in 20 Numbers, at 1s. each, any of which may be had separately,
